Northwest Community to build new wing

Hospital officials hope to break ground next month for 20-bed intensive-care facility

Officials of Northwest Community Hospital announced plans Tuesday for a new intensive-care wing and expressed hope they would be able to start work within a month.

The wing, to be located on the south side of the main building facing Central Road, would have 20 beds and life-monitoring and support devices for critically ill patients. The wing is part of the hospital's expansion program, financed through the sale of a $20.5 million bond issue backed by the Village of Arlington Heights.

The new wing would increase the hospital's capacity to 600 beds. The officials said that, while a review of growth plans is being considered, the 600-bed facility would adequately serve the area. They said, however, plans for Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke Medical Center in Schaumburg could affect plans for further growth.

Plans for the $16 million Schaumburg hospital have been under way for several years, but have not received final approval from the state. That hospital is expected to have 160 beds and expand to a maximum of 400. Schaumburg officials approved zoning for the hospital site at Schaumburg and Barrington roads last week.

MEANWHILE, Northwest Community Hospital is now completing work on a nine-story addition to the main hospital building as part of the expansion program. The intensive-care wing was part of the growth package presented to Arlington Heights trustees when they agreed to issue the bonds, a hospital spokesman said.

The latest plans were presented to the plan and subdivision subcommittee of the plan commission Tuesday by hospital attorney William R. Kucera and administrative vice president Burton Chotiner.

Kucera and Chotiner asked for permission to begin digging the foundation before approval of the project is granted by the village. They said the unusual procedure would represent savings in construction costs, which they said are rising about 1 per cent a month.

Chotiner said if the hospital could start to "dig the hole (for the foundation)" while still going through the approval procedure, the hospital would be able to curb inflation of the construction costs. He said the digging could start in "three to four weeks," with village authorization.

PLAN COMM. Lewis O'Donnell said the commission only makes recommendations to the village board and start-work authorization would have to come from the trustees.

He said such action "is out of our bailiwick" and because "this is all in the family," village regulations and rules would have to be closely followed.

Under the bonding agreement, the village is the technical owner of the hospital and has a lease-back arrangement with the hospital's board of directors, who retain policy-making authority. After the 20-year life of the bonds, the hospital would be sold back to its board of directors for $1.

Chotiner said the hospital wanted to appear before the trustees as soon as possible for the granting of approval to start the foundation. He said the hospital is "committed to abide by the rules of the village."

The subcommittee agreed to schedule hospital officials to appear before the plan commission March 5 to give village departments time to study the plans and comment.

Kucera said hospital officials would seek to appear before the trustees March 3 to get permission to start work on the foundation early.

Will avoid well improvements

'Need Lake Michigan water here in 5 years': engineer

by JOHN MAES

Buffalo Grove must obtain water from Lake Michigan within the next five years to avoid the need for costly improvements to the village well system, said Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg.

Seaberg said the village's water table is dropping at the rate of 15 to 16 feet per year and without lake water, the village will have to improve the well system to pump water from greater depths.

Buffalo Grove's five wells would have to be revamped every five years beginning in 1980 at a cost of $120,000 per well to keep up with decreasing water levels, he said.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said two additional wells will have to be dug in 1978 if no arrangements are made to get Lake Michigan water.

DISCUSSION ON the matter came up at a workshop session Monday while the board was examining its proposed five-year capital improvements program.

Seaberg said he sees no chance of the wells running dry, but said additional village development in the next few years will make it necessary to dig deeper for water.

He said rates of decline, however, have been "significant — almost 100 feet in the last five years." He added that Wheeling and Arlington Heights pump from the same depths.

By 1980, at least half of Buffalo Grove's water supply should come from Lake Michigan and Seaberg said the lake could ultimately be the primary source of village water.

Buffalo Grove consumes an average of 1.9 million gallons of water daily, a figure that may increase by four times in the next several years, according to village estimates.

OFFICIALS ARE EXPLORING four possibilities for Lake Michigan water, but a problem exists because of limitations on the amount of water that can be diverted from the lake for general use.

The state will not permit any more than 3,200 cubic feet of water per second to be pumped from the lake and other communities are trying to supplement their supplies with lake water allocations.

The question is the subject of public hearings being conducted by the Illinois Division of Waterways. The state is expected to assign priorities for communities wishing to extract water from the lake.

Among the plans being studied is the inclusion of Buffalo Grove in a Lake County Public Works Dept. plan to deliver water to area communities. The plan could be in effect in two years, Larson said.

Another possibility is village participation in a Lake County Water District project to extend a main to Buffalo Grove from North Chicago. Water service to Mundelein and Libertyville are included in engineering reports outlining the plan.

A THIRD PROPOSAL is a joint project with Wheeling and Northbrook for a Builder seeks to meet with village on lawsuit

Dominion Development Co., Chicago, has requested a meeting with Buffalo Grove officials to discuss a lawsuit the company has filed against the village.

A court hearing on the matter was continued last week to allow time for the two sides to meet, but Village Atty. Richard Raysa would make no comment as to whether there may be an out-of-court settlement.

Raysa said Dominion attorneys requested the chance to meet with village officials to see if the dispute could be "amicably adjusted."

The firm is seeking a court order to force the village to issue building permits for pizza and chicken restaurants the company wants to build.

Dominion filed the suit last December in Circuit Court after the matter had been before the village for more than a year.

At that time, the village board turned down a request to build the restaurants at Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads, upholding a previous plan commission recommendation urging its denial.

Plan commissioners and trustees raised objections to traffic and architectural problems and said Dominion changed its building proposals from original site plans.

A village motion to dismiss the suit is also pending in court.

When contacted Tuesday, Alan Foss, Dominion vice president, said he was unaware of any request that his firm meet with Buffalo Grove officials. Richard Houpt, an attorney for the firm, as well as Village Mgr. Daniel Larson were not available for comment.

State funds OK'd for high-risk nursery in area

Ordered to leave for Sandstone Friday

by BARRY SIGALE

Former Des Plaines physician Dr. James G. Middleton was ordered Tuesday to begin serving an 18-month sentence in a federal prison for violation of federal firearms and explosives regulations.

U.S. District Court Judge James B. Parsons told Middleton, 48, to report Friday to federal authorities at Sandstone, Minn., after reducing the doctor's original four-year sentence.

The judge's ruling came minutes after he turned down Middleton's request for a new trial. The order came as a surprise to Middleton who said he was assured by Parsons he would not have to begin his sentence until he had exhausted all his appeals on a separate state conviction of deviate sexual assault.

James G. Middleton

PARSONS APPARENTLY agreed to the reduction in sentence because of the hardship Middleton contends it would cause his wife, Margaret, and because Middleton's record has been clean since his conviction on the charges in February 1972.

The sentence may be appealed, Middleton said, but his attorney, Federal Defender Jean Kamp, said the process probably would be futile.

"I'm afraid we'd just be spinning our wheels," she told the couple outside the Federal Building courtroom in Chicago. Parsons originally sentenced Middleton.

Miss Kamp said there was no evidence that Middleton ever used or intended to use any explosives and that he never posed any danger to anyone. Probation is appropriate.

Middleton and his wife were dazed when they heard Parsons' decision. "It's not the worst thing in the world... but I don't like it," said Middleton, who had offices at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines. "I'm not looking forward to this vacation, but I'm not going to set any duration record."

MIDDLETON WAS relieved when he heard he would be eligible for parole in six months and would be able to return to his wife by September. "Is she going to fall apart? No, she's not going to fall apart. And neither am I," he said.

Middleton was convicted on charges resulting from a raid on his office Dec. 1, 1970, by Sheriff's Police. Investigators discovered pipe bombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and what were described as bizarre sexual devices.

The exact charges were possession of material which could be assembled into a destructive device and possession of a tear gas pen gun that did not have a serial number and was not registered.

MSD must cover tanks or shift plant

The Metropolitan Sanitary District has been ordered to cover or huge settling tanks at its proposed Des Plaines sewage plant or move the plant to receive state or federal funding. The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday it will not certify the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant for construction funds unless the sanitary district agrees to cover open-air tanks or ponds "which are sources of odor" or possible disease — or move the plant from residential areas. Mayor Herbert H. Behrel of Des Plaines, which has been fighting the sewage plant plans, said the EPA order "certainly is what the City of Des Plaines has been requesting and we hope they will do that (cover the tanks) or agree to move the plant."

Intensive-care wing announced

Officials of Northwest Community Hospital announced plans Tuesday for a new intensive-care wing and expressed hope they would be able to start work within a month. The wing would include 20 beds, boosting the hospital's capacity to 600 beds, and life-monitoring and support devices for critically ill patients. The plans are part of the hospital's expansion program, being financed through the sale of a $20.5 million bond issue backed by the Village of Arlington Heights.

Employment agency may move

Des Plaines officials are trying to help the Illinois Employment Services office move to larger quarters to avoid problems that have developed because of the office's recent heavy caseload. Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said the increasing number of unemployed persons, who pick up unemployment checks at the office, is causing parking problems for downtown merchants. The state office processes about 800 claims a day.

Lake Michigan water needed

Buffalo Grove must obtain water from Lake Michigan within the next five years or face costly improvements to the village well system, said Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg. Seaberg said the village's water table is dropping at the rate of 13 to 16 feet per year. Without lake water, the village will have to improve the well system to pump water from greater depths.

Trust fund set up for orphans

A trust fund has been established for five children orphaned Friday by an apparent murder and suicide in Mount Prospect. Virginia Zilligen, 36, of Des Plaines, was shot three times and her husband, Gary, 40, of Chicago died of apparently self-inflicted wounds. The Zilligen children range from nine to 14 years. Contributions to the trust fund are being accepted at the Messiah Lutheran Church, 1605 Vernon Ave., Park Ridge.

Parks candidate's petitions OK

Nominating petitions submitted by Rosemary Argus to retain her seat on the Mount Prospect Park Board apparently are valid. Another candidate, William Hickey, charged Monday that 23 persons who signed Mrs. Argus' petitions also signed the nominating petitions of another board member, invalidating Mrs. Argus' petitions. A spokesman at the county election department said Tuesday, however, that under state law, voters can sign as many petitions as there are offices to be filled. There are three vacancies on the park board.

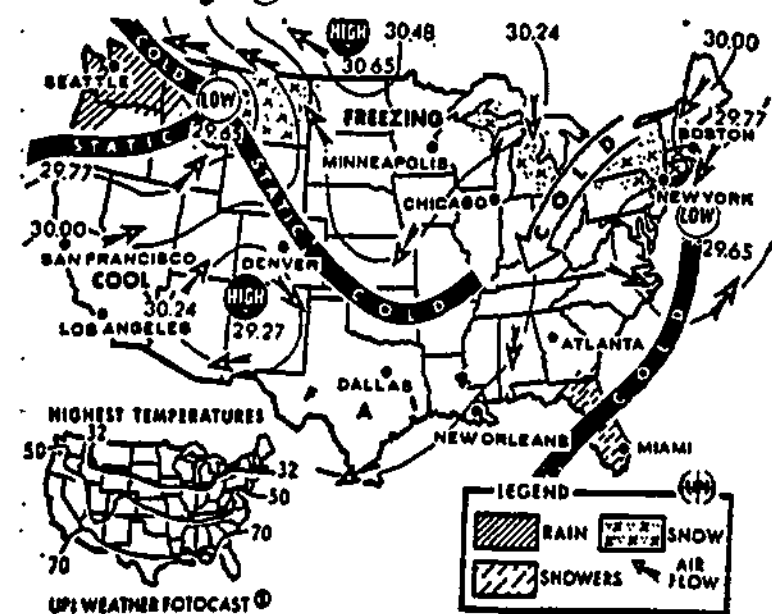

2 state reps tell endorsements

Two of the three state legislators who live in Arlington Heights are getting involved in the village election by endorsing candidates for village president. State Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, a Democrat, said she would support Caucus-endorsed candidate David Griffin, and State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, a Republican, endorsed James T. Ryan, an independent. Meanwhile, State Rep. Virginia B. Macdonald, a Republican, says she is "staying out of the election pretty well."

Escaped convict captured

An escaped convict from Arkansas was arrested by Arlington Heights police Tuesday in Wheeling. Louis A. Voltz, 63, was captured without a struggle. Police said Voltz was carrying identification listing three Arlington Heights addresses, but he had been staying in Wheeling recently. Voltz has been sought since late 1969 when he failed to return from a furlough at the Hemstead County Penitentiary in Grundy, Ark., where he was serving a 15-year sentence for armed robbery. Police said Voltz has an extensive criminal record dating to 1930.

15 considered as Juckett successor

by BOB LAHEY

At least 15 persons are under consideration as successors to the late State Rep. Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, who died Feb. 2.

Republican township committeemen from the four townships in Juckett's 4th Legislative District will meet this weekend to discuss the appointment to fill the vacancy.

According to law, Juckett's successor will be selected by committeemen Floyd Fulle of Maine Township, Cook County Republican chairman; Fred Yonkers of Wheeling Township; State Sen. John Nimrod of Niles Township; and William Bringham of Northfield Township.

Realistically, however, the decision could be made by Fulle alone. According to a system of weighted voting, based on Republican ballots cast in the November 1972 election, Fulle's township represents 58.3 per cent of the Republican votes in the 4th District.

The committeemen have declined to list the names of candidates to be discussed this weekend. Fulle said some who have contacted him have asked for confidentiality, and other names have been submitted by third parties and may not be interested in the appointment.

AMONG THOSE KNOWN to be under consideration is Wayne Andersen, 29, of Des Plaines, the 1974 GOP candidate for Cook County treasurer.

Also reportedly interested in the job are Leonard Grazian, 50, of Morton Grove, and Roy H. Bergquist, 48, of Niles.

Grazian, president of the Maine Twp. High School Dist. 207 school board, was a Republican candidate for Circuit Court judge in November.

Bergquist, elected Maine Township collector in 1973, was an unsuccessful candidate against Juckett in the 1970 GOP primary election in which Juckett and former Rep. Arthur Simmons were nominated.

Others who have been mentioned as possible successors to Juckett are Penny Pullen of Park Ridge, who served as a part-time legislative aide to Juckett; Ron Cassidy of Park Ridge, former administrative aide and campaign manager for Juckett; and Dan Preston, a Park Ridge alderman, and Fulle's administrative aide.

Although Fulle has indicated that Juckett's successor should come from Maine Township, Yonkers has said that geographical considerations should not enter into the decision.

"I don't anticipate any problems among the four of us who must choose a successor," Yonkers said. "We are all interested in finding an acceptable candidate and aiming toward improving the party in every instance."

YONKERS SAID he would encourage any Republican in the district interested in the appointment to contact one of the committeemen.

The committeemen indicated they will have preliminary discussions about the appointment this weekend. They must fill the vacancy in the legislature by March 2.

In case of a vote, the 22,913 GOP votes cast in the Maine Township portion of the district in November would give Fulle his 58.3 per cent of the ballots and the right to make the decision. Yonkers, with a total of 9,250 4th District votes, would represent 23.6 per cent; Nimrod, with 6,629 votes, has 18.9 per cent; and Bringham, with only 453 votes (only two Northfield Township precincts are in the district) has 1.1 per cent.

Judge says 14 lawyers didn't get ballots

One of two associate judges rated "not qualified" in a recent poll by suburban lawyers said Tuesday he has talked to several attorneys who say they never received ballots.

The Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., in a two-part poll of its estimated 500 members, asked for opinions on each of 17 suburban judges up for retention this year in the 2nd and 3rd municipal districts. The ballot showed associate judges James Maher Jr. and John J. Limperis "not qualified" because they received less than 66 per cent "yes" votes from the participating attorneys.

Limperis said Tuesday, after the results of the poll were published, "Naturally it concerns me. But I think I've done a good job out here." Maher would not comment on the association's lack of endorsement. The two districts serve the North and Northwest suburbs.

Park Ridge Atty. Robert L. Sklodowski, chairman of the association's judiciary committee, validated the ballots but disagrees with the results. "I happen to feel these two judges are qualified. I only certified the results. I am writing a letter of endorsement for these two to the Chicago Bar Assn. committee."

Sklodowski said some association members are planning to seek a recall of the election results, but he feels it was done fairly. As for Limperis' charge that at least 14 attorneys did not receive the ballots, Sklodowski said, "I checked it out. The executive secretary said she sent ballots on the same basis as the preceding questionnaire."

Limperis said he did not know what the basis was for his low vote in the poll. "You try to call them as you see them," he said. "I think I've consistently tried to do a good job."

The results of the association's poll are to go to the Chicago Bar Assn., which will make recommendations later to the circuit court judges who vote on retention of the associate judges.

Guidelines may face tough Congress

by WANDALYN RICE

Guidelines drawn up by the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare to enforce a federal law against sex discrimination in education will be sent to HEW Sec. Caspar Weinberger within the next week, but they may meet tough sledding under Congressional review.

The controversial proposed guidelines, which call for integration of physical education classes by sex, equal access to competitive athletics and equal admissions and financial aid standards for men and women, are being revised. HEW received more than 10,000 letters commenting on the proposed guidelines after they were issued last spring.

Officials at HEW said the guidelines will be sent to Weinberger and then to President Ford for approval. Following that, they must be reviewed by Congress before they will become law.

AFTER THE review, Congress may then choose to pass a resolution opposing any part of the proposed guidelines, said Clerlia Steele, an official on the Project on Equal Educational Rights (PEER), a nonprofit group set up to monitor federal sex discrimination laws. Such a resolution would nullify the proposed rule.

Women's groups interested in the laws fear that the Congressional review will result in a "backlash" against the regulations, Miss Steele said. She said staff members from the House special subcommittee on education, which will hold hearings on the regulations, have said they are concerned that "the most discrimination may be occurring against white males," she said.

Miss Steele said the required Congressional review, an unprecedented requirement in a case where a federal department has been directed to set up guidelines for administering a law, is not the only action that has been taken by Congress since the proposed guidelines were announced.

Last session, she said, an amendment to the HEW appropriations bill, sponsored by U.S. Rep. Marjorie S. Holt, R-Md., would have prohibited the department from enforcing anti-race or anti-sex discrimination laws against schools. The proposal was defeated in the Senate after it was approved in the House. Miss Steele said Rep. Holt indicated she may reintroduce the measure this year.

ONE MEASURE affecting the guidelines that has passed the Congress is one sponsored by U.S. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind. The Bayh amendment exempts social fraternities and sororities and groups like the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls from the requirement that they integrate by sex.

The largest amount of mail about the proposed sex discrimination regulations was generated by the rules requiring equal access to interscholastic sports and integrated physical education classes, Miss Steele said. She said colleges and universities have asked that football, basketball and other revenue producing sports be exempted from the equal access rule, while others said the rules should require equal expenditure for men's and women's sports, not just equal access.

ANOTHER ISSUE that aroused controversy in the proposed guidelines, she said, was HEW's refusal to make rules calling for the elimination of sex-role stereotyping in textbooks and other curriculum materials. The National Organization for Women (NOW) and other groups have insisted that curriculum must be included in the rules.

The law eliminating sex discrimination, Miss Steele said, "did not attract very much attention when it was first passed, but since the regulations were proposed a lot of people have become involved."

Metric-system class offered to teachers

A course to help teachers teach the metric system will be offered beginning this month in the Northwest suburbs by the College of St. Francis, Joliet.

The course, "Teaching the Metric System," will carry two hours of graduate credit. It will meet Feb. 22 and March 1, 8, and 15 at Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Rolling Meadows. Hours will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. all four days.

The registration deadline for the course is Saturday. Further information is available from the College of St. Francis office of continuing education.

Electronic Pollution

by Ed Landwehr

You read much about pollution — air, water, noise, food and so on. Recently a new form of pollution is being checked out.

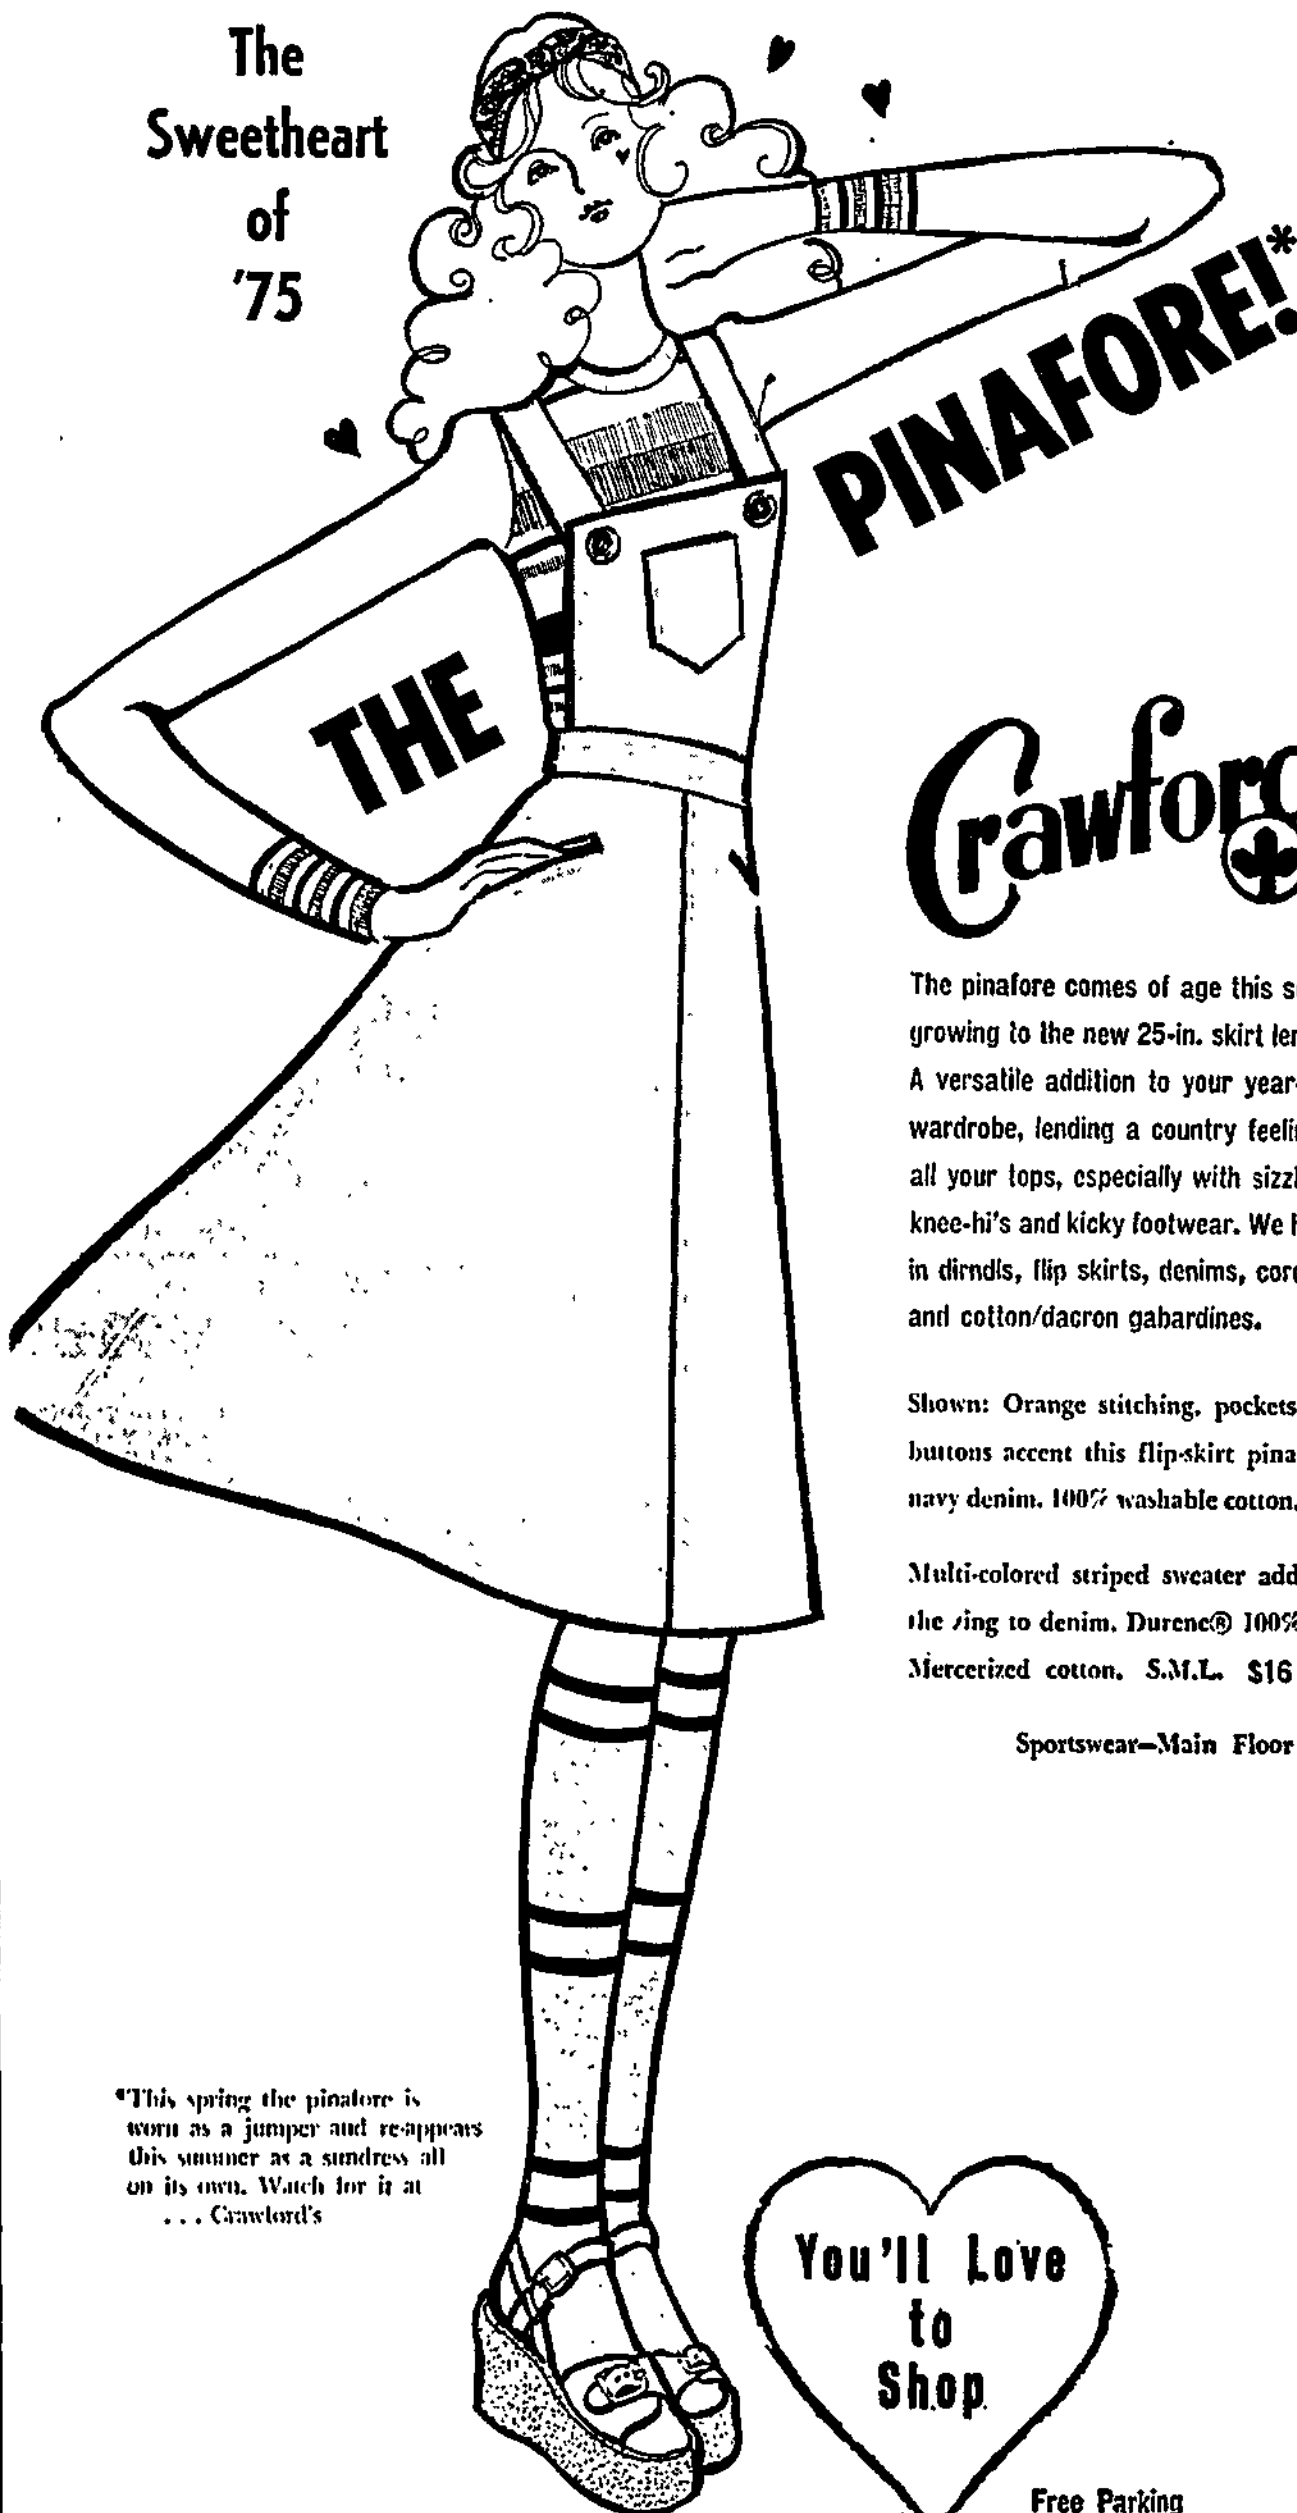

This is the electronic age, and more and more of this equipment is being used. Besides the customary TV's and radios, there are microwave ovens, public testers, high power lines, space items, x-rays and many others. Electromagnetic forces are around us continually.

Is this kind of pollution dangerous? Many laboratories are testing, and conflicting reports are released from time to time. Actually no one really knows.

We think not, because we spend a lot of time servicing all kinds of electronics at Landwehr's Home Appliances, and we feel pretty good. You'll like our work. Phone 255-0700 next time.

Stop in at 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights and look over some of the latest displays of nationally-advertised TV's, stereos and radios. Service with sales is important with electronics.

Bermuda Triangle

Underwater force may be blocking satellite signals

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (UPI) — Government officials scoffed Tuesday, but a small town college physicist has suggested erratic signals from weather satellites are being caused by something in the mysterious Bermuda Triangle.

Over the years more than 100 ships and planes have disappeared without a trace in the triangle, an Atlantic Ocean expanse between Cuba and Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Physicist Wayne Meshejian believes "some kind of external energy force under the water" in the triangle could be blocking signals from polar-orbiting weather satellites of the National Oceanographic and Atmosphere Administration while they are over the area.

"We've been plotting satellite pictures for three years," said Meshejian, an instructor at Longwood College in Farmville, Va. "For the last two, the NOAA satellites have been misbehaving. It's not just my receiver. Anyone in range will notice."

Jack Glover, an assistant technical director with the National Environmental Satellites Service in Suitland, Md., is among the government officials who say there is no connection between the Bermuda Triangle and satellite malfunctions.

"I guarantee it's nothing in the Bermuda Triangle anymore than there's a hole in the North Pole as some people think," Glover said.

He said the problem experienced by Meshejian probably was caused by ground stations reading out data from the satellites, tying up their circuits, or possibly by interference between satellites.

Lloyd Tourville, an NOAA official at Wallops Island, denied the weather satellites are malfunctioning.

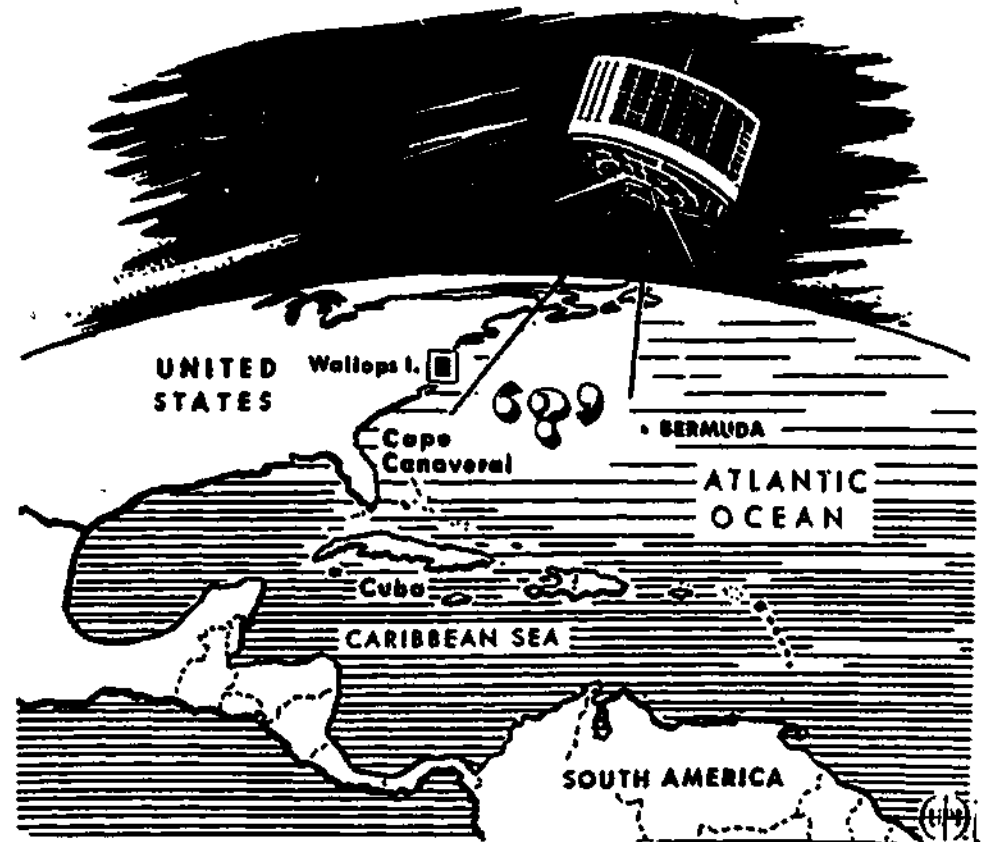

"No way," he said. "We would have caught it a long time ago. Thousands of people pick them (satellite pictures) up... anybody with an antenna can do it. We look over the data coming in very carefully for anything of environmental significance."

Meshejian contends that there is "no way the visible photograph is interfered with by other impulses" and that telemetry and electronic synchronization pulses from the satellites are also being interfered with.

"Why only over this part of the earth, why localized?" he asked, saying the interference begins just south of New York and ends near Cuba, roughly the area of the Bermuda Triangle.

Technicians at Suitland explain the interference over the area as being caused by data readouts tying up the satellite circuits beginning shortly after the satellites cross over Iceland and ending when the satellites approach Peru in their north-south orbits.

Glover said Meshejian may have been trying to receive pictures when magnetic tape recorders storing images were either filled or being read out by ground stations, making it impossible for him to get the signals.

Is there a link between erratic satellite signals and Bermuda triangle?

Report resource estimates too low

The government has vastly overestimated the nation's remaining oil and gas resources, and this may have a critical impact on efforts to achieve energy independence, the National Academy of Science's Committee said. The panel questioned U.S. Geological Survey estimates of undiscovered but recoverable resources of between 200 billion and 400 billion barrels of oil and 900 trillion to 2,000 trillion cubic feet of gas. The committee said its estimates place recoverable oil at 113 billion barrels, with about 530 trillion cubic feet of gas.

Emergency 'morning after' pill OK'd

The Food and Drug Administration has approved a controversial "morning after" birth control pill for emergency situations to be determined by the doctor and his patient. The pill is composed of the synthetic hormone DES, a substance linked to cancer in some cases. The FDA says it believes doses for emergency purposes would not pose a health hazard.

Ford: Mideast progress must be made

Oil embargo, war a serious prospect

From Herald news services

President Ford said Tuesday night in Topeka, Kan. that unless progress is made toward a Middle East settlement "There is a very serious prospect of another war... and another oil embargo."

He added Henry Kissinger — on an exploratory trip has a "difficult assignment" and "deserves full support of the American people and Congress."

He said Kissinger had his full backing and hoped the secretary's efforts can avoid the war prospect and oil embargo.

Turning to domestic matters, Ford again defended his energy conservation proposals but acknowledged "there were some gray areas."

On other matters, Ford:

— Declined to specify what contingency plans he has for action if the economic situation worsens;

— Said AFL-CIO President George Meany, in predicting 10 per cent unemployment, "pulled that figure out of the air."

— Indicated he might go along with moves by Congress to modify his windfall profits tax on oil companies;

— Said he believed Congress would go along with his defense budget.

— Defended his request for an additional $300 million in aid to South Vietnam, saying: "The $300 million would give the South Vietnamese an opportunity to defend themselves against aggression, and;

— Indicated he might well wage a Harry Truman-like "give 'em hell" campaign in 1976.

Earlier in the day, Ford told a cheering Kansas legislature that $2 billion in impounded federal highway funds would be released immediately to create more jobs for Americans.

The President, elated by an enthusiastic greeting, also announced plans for rebates to farmers forced to pay higher fuel prices under his energy program.

Ford departed from his text in mid-speech to accuse the Democratic-controlled Congress of delaying a solution to the country's problems.

Ford said the highway-mass transit funds will create an estimated 125,000 jobs and can be put to work by states as early as June 30. He said details of his rebate plan for farmers would be announced "within the next few weeks."

During a luncheon with governors, Illinois Gov. Dan Walker told Ford Illinois did not have matching funds to put up for the highway program and suggested the federal government put up the entire amount. Ford explained the federal highway act prohibits such action.

A spokesman for the Transportation Department said action will come "within a matter of days" in approving the highway construction funds.

Reacting to Ford's highway plan, Harvard economist Otto Eckstein said the release of funds could create 200,000 jobs. He added, however, there also could be a negative impact on the economy if the budget deficit is raised and the government must borrow the money through open markets. Eckstein said $2 billion in spending for highway construction would add $4 billion to the economy through its rippling impact.

Margaret Thatcher elected to succeed Heath in Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Margaret Thatcher, a blonde housewife frequently called the Barry Goldwater of British politics, was elected leader of the opposition Conservative party Tuesday.

Her victory made her Britain's first woman party chief and put her in the running to become the country's first woman prime minister.

Mrs. Thatcher, 49, education secretary in the 1970-74 government of former Prime Minister Edward Heath, won the party's top spot on the second round of balloting with 146 votes, seven more than the absolute majority of 139. Whitelaw, her closest challenger, trailed with 79 votes.

Mrs. Thatcher succeeds Heath as party leader. He resigned last week after she upset him in the first round of voting by the 276 Conservative members of Parliament.

Before the election, Mrs. Thatcher, the mother of 21-year-old twins, was criticized for her right-wing political views, her upper class accent and the "suburban housewife" image she was said to project.

"I am very, very thrilled," she told newsmen after the results were announced. She said she would welcome Heath as a member of her Conservative party "shadow cabinet" in Parliament. But after resigning, Heath said he preferred to take his seat among the rank-and-file.

Mrs. Thatcher said she now hopes to reunite the party after the bitter leadership fight and win back working class votes lost in the two 1974 general elections. The party has lost three of the last four general elections.

Parole board action April 14

Kerner release deferred

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Appellate Parole Board Tuesday deferred action until April 14 on the appeal of former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner for an immediate release from prison.

The three-member appellate board announced that all eight members of the parole board will consider Kerner's appeal on April 14. Federal officials said the board would be given a medical report on Kerner's condition by that time.

Documents filed by Kerner's attorney in federal court in Chicago Monday said Kerner, 66, had suffered four heart attacks since entering prison last July 28 and is "dangerously undernourished."

However, first Assistant U. S. Attorney Samuel Skinner, who helped prosecute the Kerner case, contradicted the report. Skinner said Kerner has not suffered any heart attacks, and is being adequately cared for at the U. S. penitentiary at Lexington, Ky.

The appellate board members — who hold three of the eight seats on the full parole board — gave no reason for their decision to lay the case before the full board two months from now.

The five regional U. S. Parole Board members, sitting as a panel on Jan. 15, had turned down Kerner's bid for immediate freedom and put the case over until January, 1976.

Kerner then appealed to the three-man appellate board. Kerner was convicted in February, 1973, of taking race track stock as a bribe during the 1960s when he was governor, and then using his influence to help racing heiress Marjorie Lindheimer Everett get rich in return.

U. S. Attorney James R. Thompson, chief prosecutor in the case, asked for a prison sentence for Kerner at the time of conviction, and U. S. District Court Judge Robert Taylor imposed a three-year term.

But last week Thompson, in response to a request from Kerner's attorney, asked the parole board to grant Kerner's appeal for release from prison. Kerner is suffering from a heart condition, and was sent to the Lexington prison because it has hospital facilities.

Kissinger: faith required for peace

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Tuesday promised Israeli leaders the Jewish state would not be sacrificed in any disengagement pact with Egypt in the interests of superpower politics.

Speaking at an official banquet in his honor, Kissinger told ministers and legislators that Washington was not putting any pressure on Israel to reach an agreement with Cairo.

"Israel, which was built on faith, is being asked to undertake another act of faith," he said of the present negotiations. "Now the process of peace requires another act of faith — for all of us. "We will not knowingly sacrifice Israel to the considerations of great power politics," he said.

The dinner hosted by Foreign Minister Yigal Allon followed seven and a half hours of talks in which no formal proposals were made. Kissinger goes to Cairo Wednesday for similar talks with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Obviously referring to Israel's concern about giving up territory in the Sinai, Kissinger said the tangible possession of territory would have to be weighed against such intangibles as "legitimacy, recognition and a desire for peace."

Allon described the peace-making process as "not as quick as the cooking of instant coffee. Through patience we may achieve our ultimate goal. One can see in the distance a ray of hope."

"We are well aware that there will not be a military solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict."

Beginning the diplomatic explorations he hopes will lead to a new agreement next month, Kissinger also delivered an oral message from President Ford to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

London teen sets record for eating pancakes

• Pating a bulging stomach, Mark Mithon, 19, of London, England claimed a world record Tuesday for eating pancakes. He got through 61 six-inch diameter flapjacks in seven minutes, nearly double the previous record of 32 credited in the Guinness Book of Records to Mike Veschio of Los Angeles. Mark said "I only enjoyed the first 25." ... In Liberal, Kan., meanwhile, Sheila Turner, 31, flipped pancakes and raced down a 415-yard course in a record 58.4 seconds to claim the 26th annual Shrove pancake title. She beat the winner of the Olney, England race, Sally Ann Faulkner, 18, by 1.5 seconds.

• CHERYL SHAF, mother of the four surviving quintuplets peered through the nursery window at Resurrection Hospital Tuesday and said: "Oh, my goodness... they're adorable." Putting aside her grief over the death of one quint, she chattered excitedly as she glimpsed the babies for the first time since delivery. "She's going to be a little fighter," she said of one. "Derek has a lot of hair. "He looks like a little bird!" she exclaimed, looking from one to another so rapidly onlookers often were unable to determine which quint she was talking about.

• She may be the nation's only woman governor, but Connecticut's Ella Grasso is rated by the League of Women Voters lower than several men from her state. Mrs. Grasso ranked a modest 50 per cent in the latest rating by the liberal-oriented group. Every other Connecticut politician rated higher except for one, who got the same rating.

• Sign of the times: A blue jeans shop in Paris erected a half dozen billboards showing a girl wearing an extra tight pair of blue jeans with the zipper half open. Tuesday the posters sported black paper pasted over the fly. The vice squad said it censored the posters. A spokesman at Jeans Bazaar said, "More people may look at the posters now than would have before, eh?"

• Ray Zrinsky of Lombard figures if the automobile world can give rebates to sell cars, then so can he. For two weeks Zrinsky had a "for sale" sign on his 1962 sedan, but no luck. Then he decided to use the rebate plan. He had been snowed under with callers since he put a sign on the car reading "Buy now and get a $200 rebate." Zrinsky says the car is for sale for $175, but he will take $375 and refund $200.

• Capt. Mark Phillips, husband of Princess Anne, arrived in Valletta, Malta Tuesday along with other officer instructors from the British military academy at Sandhurst for a 15-day exercise code-named "Golden Star." The exercise is the climax of military training for future army officers.

Guidelines may face tough Congress

by WANDALYN RICE

Guidelines drawn up by the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare to enforce a federal law against sex discrimination in education will be sent to HEW Sec. Caspar Weinberger within the next week, but they may meet tough sledding under Congressional review.

The controversial proposed guidelines, which call for integration of physical education classes by sex, equal access to competitive athletics and equal admissions and financial aid standards for men and women, are being revised. HEW received more than 10,000 letters commenting on the proposed guidelines after they were issued last spring.

Officials at HEW said the guidelines will be sent to Weinberger and then to President Ford for approval. Following that, they must be reviewed by Congress before they will become law.

AFTER THE review, Congress may then choose to pass a resolution opposing any part of the proposed guidelines, said Clerlie Steele, an official on the Project on Equal Educational Rights (PEER), a nonprofit group set up to monitor federal sex discrimination laws. Such a resolution would nullify the proposed rule.

Women's groups interested in the laws fear that the Congressional review will result in a "backlash" against the regulations, Miss Steele said. She said staff members from the House special subcommittee on education, which will hold hearings on the regulations, have said they are concerned that "the most discrimination may be occurring against white males," she said.

Miss Steele said the required Congressional review, an unprecedented requirement in a case where a federal department has been directed to set up guidelines for administering a law, is not the only action that has been taken by Congress since the proposed guidelines were announced.

Last session, she said, an amendment to the HEW appropriations bill, sponsored by U.S. Rep. Marjorie S. Holt, R-Md., would have prohibited the department from enforcing antirace or antisex discrimination laws against schools. The proposal was defeated in the Senate after it was approved in the House. Miss Steele said Rep. Holt indicated she may reintroduce the measure this year.

ONE MEASURE affecting the guidelines that has passed the Congress is one sponsored by U.S. Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind. The Bayh amendment exempts social fraternities and sororities and groups like the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls from the requirement that they integrate by sex.

The largest amount of mail about the proposed sex discrimination regulations was generated by the rules requiring equal access to interscholastic sports and integrated physical education classes, Miss Steele said. She said colleges and universities have asked that football, basketball and other revenue producing sports be exempted from the equal access rule, while others said the rules should require equal expenditure for men's and women's sports, not just equal access.

ANOTHER ISSUE that aroused controversy in the proposed guidelines, she said, was HEW's refusal to make rules calling for the elimination of sex-role stereotyping in textbooks and other curriculum materials. The National Organization for Women (NOW) and other groups have insisted that curriculum must be included in the rules.

The law eliminating sex discrimination, Miss Steele said, "did not attract very much attention when it was first passed, but since the regulations were proposed a lot of people have become involved."

Electronic Pollution

by Ed Landwehr

You read much about pollution — air, water, noise, food and so on. Recently a new form of pollution is being checked out.

This is the electronic age, and more and more of this equipment is being used. Besides the customary TVs and radios, there are micro-wave ovens, public testers, high power lines, space items, x-rays and many others. Electromagnetic forces are around us continually.

Is this kind of pollution dangerous? Many laboratories are testing, and conflicting reports are released from time to time. Actually no one really knows.

We think not, because we spend a lot of time servicing all kinds of electronics at Landwehr's Home Appliances, and we feel pretty good. You'll like our work. Phone 255-0700 next time.

Stop in at 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights and look over some of the latest displays of nationally-advertised TVs, stereos and radios. Service with sales is important with electronics.

Schools won't recognize special ed teachers' union

The School Dist. 96 Board of Education has reaffirmed its refusal to recognize a union for teachers in the Special Education District of Lake County.

The district's Teachers' Assn. affiliated with the American Federation of Teachers in 1973 and has asked the district governing board to recognize the union as its bargaining agent. Before the affiliation, the teachers were organized into a local negotiating team with no union affiliation.

The governing board, which includes a representative from each of the 42 school districts in the special education district, must approve this change. In November only nine districts voted to recognize the affiliation.

THE DIST. 96 BOARD Monday night told special education district representatives it voted against recognition in October because its members did not feel the union had given evidence that at least 50 per cent of the teachers belong to the federation.

The board members also said a report was established with the teachers and they did not feel a teachers' union was necessary in Dist. 96 or in the special education district.

YOLANDE CROSBY, special education district representative, said Tuesday the teachers' association decided to affiliate because "we feel we could negotiate more effectively with the kind of support the AFT can give."

She said the teachers have negotiated under a "gentleman's agreement" but found that did not work effectively.

"We had no real holding power in the agreements because we weren't under contract," she said.

She also said teachers had little say in setting working conditions or fringe benefits.

MISS CROSBY SAID many districts refused to recognize the affiliation because of confusion over membership. A majority of the 218 special education teachers joined the federation. However, the administration says there are 244 other professionals, including therapists, psychologists and other special service workers, employed by the district.

Under the current decision of the governing board, groups of teachers or workers can request to meet with the board for negotiations but these groups cannot be recognized as an affiliate of a union.

Bid specs OKd for squad cars

The Buffalo Grove Village Board authorized bid specifications Monday for seven police squad cars to be purchased this year.

The police department plans to buy six sedans for patrol cars and one station wagon. The village will accept sealed bids until 10 a.m. Friday.

Officials said, however, they must buy the vehicles under the state purchasing contract if the price is lower than the bids.

The department will trade in six of its cars when the new ones are purchased.

The board also repealed an ordinance to raise the salaries of new trustees and the village president.

Last month, the board decided to cancel an ordinance enacted in 1973 that would have raised trustees' pay from $30 to $100 per month, a 233 per cent increase. The new village president's pay also would have been raised from $1,800 to $3,000 annually.

The raise was to have taken effect after the April 15 election.

Custodial care not covered

My mother is 84 years old. She's not really sick, but she's going into a nursing home because she has trouble getting around and taking care of herself. Will Medicare help pay for her care?

No. Care such as help in walking, dressing, bathing, and eating is called custodial care and is not covered under Medicare. Only continuing skilled nursing or rehabilitation services furnished in a skilled nursing facility can be covered by Medicare.

Junkyard rejected for Lake County

The Lake County Board rejected a developer's request Tuesday to build a junkyard in Vernon Township near Buffalo Grove.

The board of commissioners voted down the request 18 to 0. Developer Eugene Potempa requested permission for an auto-scrap and metal-salvage yard on four acres near Aptakisic and Weiland roads.

Cranston Byrd, chief of planning and zoning for the county, said the yard would have been large enough to store 400 autos.

The proposal drew formal objections from Buffalo Grove officials who were concerned about access and traffic problems, along with noise pollution and chemical spillage problems they say would have resulted.

Byrd said a number of area residents also raised objections to the yard.

The county's zoning board of appeals recommended the project's denial. Earlier, the planning and zoning commission returned a favorable recommendation.

Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said Tuesday he was "absolutely delighted" by the county action.

Youth satisfactory after car-truck crash

A 17-year-old Buffalo Grove youth was admitted in satisfactory condition Tuesday to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines after a car-truck accident on Milwaukee Avenue in Wheeling.

The youth, Daniel Lawyer, 17, of 616 Raupp Blvd., Buffalo Grove, went through the windshield of his car, sustaining facial cuts and a possible concussion, police said.

The driver of the truck, Cruz Moreno, 33, of 14 Grove Dr., Wheeling, was uninjured, police said.

The truck had been stopped to make a turn into Wheeling Auto Parts, 141 141 S. Milwaukee Ave., when it was struck from behind by Lawyer's car, authorities said. Police charged Lawyer with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident. He will appear in circuit court March 14.

The accident occurred shortly after 3 p.m.

The two groups will review the progress of the study being conducted by a team of research consultants who are examining the feasibility of the downtown concept in a six-to-nine-month project.

Representatives of the two panels will meet at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

$50,000 a year for life

Lottery adds new game: 'grand slam'

"Fifty-thousand dollars a year for life? FIFTY-THOUSAND DOLLARS A YEAR FOR LIFE?"

That is what the man said and that is what the super-duper jackpot is worth in the new supplementary lottery game with special $1 tickets which went on sale Tuesday.

It is called the "Grand Slam" game, with 16 chances to win prizes every week for 12 weeks leading up to a final winner on June 14. The winner will be determined by the finish of a special race at Arlington Park Race Track.

The game does not take the place of the present three-in-one lottery setup in which persons can qualify for big prizes in the Weekly Lotto, Weekly Bonanza and Millionaire Game. Those drawings will still be held Thursdays at separate locations. Drawings for the new game will be every Friday beginning Feb. 21.

THE MOST distinguishing feature of the new contest is that persons winning big weekly prizes will know right away that they are winners. There are not any special drawings, except to find qualifiers for the ultimate prize.

In other words, four separate numbers will be drawn weekly. If you have a ticket with a matching number you immediately win the amount of money corresponding to that number. Prizes are $40, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000, and $100,000 ($10,000 a year for 10 years). A fifth number to determine preliminary finalists will be drawn May 9. All tickets purchased up to that time are good for the drawing of the special five-digit number. If your number in the Winner's Circle box matches the number drawn by lottery officials you will qualify for the June 14 race. Ten finalists will be selected May 9 with others winning prizes of $250 or $500. IN ADDITION to the $50,000 for life, other finalists can win runnerup prizes of $50,000 or $15,000. Each of the 10 persons is guaranteed a minimum of $2,500. Lottery officials explained that an 18-year-old person living to the age of 70 would receive upwards of $2.5 million. If a person does not live long enough to collect at least $1 million, the balance of his winnings will go to his estate. The state has begun a massive advertising campaign to boost the new game and the six-month-old game with the 50-cent tickets. The game has paid out or guaranteed $26 million in prize money so far. A new federal law enables them to advertise. Officials see a fall-off in the purchase of 50-cent tickets but the sale of $1 tickets will more than offset the loss in revenue from the other game, they said. Meanwhile, the lottery is getting set for its fourth millionaire drawing, to be held Saturday, Feb. 22, at a time to be determined at the Mill Run Theater in Niles. About 175 persons are expected to qualify for the $1 million and prizes of $100,000 and $10,000.

Reading the rights

Are state police required to advise a motorist of legal rights when a speeding ticket is issued? Does the motorist have a right to look at the radar scope to verify the charge?

There is no requirement that a person be advised of legal rights unless that person is taken into custody. This is not normally done when a speeding ticket is issued. A motorist has no legal right to look at the evidence of the violation. However, some officers at their own discretion permit a motorist to view the readout of his speed.

State to use funds on highway repair

Federally-funded highways in Illinois will be repaired and rebuilt more quickly than planned because of President Ford's action releasing $2 billion in federal highway funds.

Officials from the Illinois Dept. of Transportation said the release of the funds will enable the state to put out bids on planned improvements within two or three months. The spokesman said the money will not be used to construct new highways, but instead will go to repairing federally-funded highways throughout the state.

Daley has plans for jobs

Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago lashed out at mayoral opponent William Singer and said he has plans for increasing employment in Chicago. He spoke Tuesday before officials of the Teamsters Union.

Daley, in a bid for his sixth term, said the proposed cross-town expressway, dismantling of the elevated tracks in the Loop and construction of a new Loop college would provide the jobs. Ray Schoessling, director of the Central Conference of Teamsters, called on leaders of the union to organize teams to go out and work for Daley.

Prison hide-and-seek

A convicted bank robber sealed himself into a wall of the Marion, Ill., federal penitentiary Monday, prompting a game of hide-and-seek at the prison. James Johnson Jr., 46, Charleston, S.C., crawled into a service corridor between two walls in a toilet area of the prison and settled in with a supply of food to await a chance to escape. He was found by a guard who noticed that one of the blocks in the wall had just been replaced.

Press conference for Hanrahan

Chicago mayoral candidate Edward Hanrahan said Tuesday he will use free time granted to him by WGN-TV to hold a televised news conference on Sunday. Hanrahan and fellow candidates William Singer and Richard Newhouse have all been granted 30 minutes of free time because last Sunday the station televised a half-hour show in which Mayor Richard J. Daley made a report on the "state of the city."

Illinois briefs

Youth held for murders

An 18-year-old youth from Granite City, Ill., is being held on suspicion of murder as scuba divers searched a canal near the southern Illinois community Tuesday for the bodies of two young women hitchhikers. Larry A. Whitford, 18, was arrested after an unidentified man told Madison County sheriff's officers he saw two women being killed and dumped into the canal, which runs into the Mississippi River. Sheriff's office officials would not reveal the circumstances under which the witness was present.

Rochford earns C average

The highest grade Chicago Police Chief James Rochford earned during his first year in office was a C-plus for public accountability, according to Citizens Alert, a group seeking better police-community relations. The group said Tuesday that Rochford rated D's in crime control and hiring and employment and a C on eliminating police misconduct in the department. The group said the low rating on crime control was because "he has failed to deploy his sworn personnel efficiently."

Shoe company to lay off 300

About 300 employees will be laid off in Salem, Ill., as the result of the temporary closing of the Brown Shoe Co. plant there. Jack Johnson, vice president in charge of manufacturing for the company, said Tuesday the shutdown will occur over the next two to three weeks and that the plant will not reopen until economic conditions improve.

Kissinger 'can bridge gap'

U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., said Tuesday that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is "the one man in the world who can bridge the gap" between Israel and Arab nations. Percy, speaking at Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, said he disagrees with Democratic Sen. Adlai Stevenson's statement that Kissinger is a "terrible leader" in foreign affairs. Percy said he believes Kissinger has done an admirable job in the Middle East, but added that he is "inclined to believe there will be another war in the Mideast" despite Kissinger's efforts.

'Blast of wind' levels a party

Pardon us, but was that loud crash we just heard the sound of the Palatine Republican Party falling off its pedestal?

It must be, because there are pieces of Republican integrity all over the place and there's a crack in the party's foundation as well.

Something must have blown the whole edifice over. Maybe it was the big blast of wind last week from Palatine Republican, and Village President, Wendell E. Jones.

Last week word got out that Jones is going to put the bite on Palatine businessmen by inviting them to an exclusive, $50-a-ticket cocktail party "to assure continued pro-business leadership in Palatine." That translates into an invitation from Jones to businessmen to kick in $50 each to help Jones get his own candidates elected in the next municipal election.

That was bad enough, but then Jones started explaining things and the wind started blowing pretty hard.

"Village government needs good business and good business needs good government," Jones wrote to some 150 businessmen. "Help this administration with its working relationship with the business community by assisting us in financing a campaign which will assure continued pro-business leadership in Palatine."

Jones later said with a straight face that there would be no pressure on anyone to attend, or reprisals against anyone for not attending.

And then, to top off everything, Jones said he would not send invitations to certain businessmen: no one holding a liquor license (because they are prohibited from contributing to political campaigns), and no invitations to businessmen who have zoning matters or other action with the village board, or anyone else who might be offended by the invitation.

Doesn't Jones realize that includes almost everyone in town and he will be lucky to have enough people on hand to play cut-throat pinocle?

It is hard to take this whole thing very seriously. We don't imagine for a minute that $50 will bind Jones and his cronies to a businessman's specific interests. But still, you have to wonder how much money it takes to run for office in a small suburb these days and how the Republicans intend to spend their money once they get their "pro-business" fees.

It also tells you something about the Palatine Republicans, who are dunning businessmen for $50 a head the same week they celebrate Abraham Lincoln's birthday.

Area mini-center needed

The Northwest suburbs have been handed an opportunity to speed the construction of a conveniently located mini-center court building.

Chief Circuit Court Judge John S. Boyle recently predicted the construction of such a mini-center in the Northwest suburbs, and other officials have suggested that construction could be speeded if easily accessible land were donated for the project.

Schaumburg has offered to build several courtrooms to meet partially the need. However, our judicial district stretches from Niles to Barrington Hills, and it would be more sensible to build the center further to the east and along the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks.

Suburban Markham already has contributed land to build such a center for the south suburbs, and that project will be built first. It would obviously be to our benefit if, for example, the sometimes-moribund Northwest Municipal Conference would take the leadership and encourage a land donation from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect or Des Plaines for the center.

Critics of the county's construction of mini-centers charge that it represents an "invasion" of the suburbs by the Democratic machine. But the real issue is that we in the suburbs are under-served by the county, and anything local officials can do to speed the availability of services is more to the point than partisan political criticism.

Goodbye, Classics

They were only comic books — but they were life-savers to those of us who had to write last-minute book reports assigned by stern-faced school teachers.

The were the Classic comic books; those brightly illustrated and readable comics that made Twain, Dickens and the rest come alive, and come alive quickly.

Alas, Classics Illustrated comics are about to join in oblivion other relics of our childhood, for Classics' publisher, M. Declan Bransfield, said recently he can no longer afford to print them.

Bransfield's loss is our loss, too. The memory of being bailed out by those books is a fond one to at least some of us. And who knows, perhaps we gained a smidgin of respect for dusty literature by depending at times on those little four-color life-savers.

We had to be careful who we invited

ERA's 'fraud' attacked

It's time the ERA fraud was placed in its proper place and named for what it is — a gigantic grab for power at the federal level. The seldom-mentioned Section 2 of the Equal Rights Amendment provides: "The Congress shall have the power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article." This section will transfer jurisdiction over women's rights, domestic relations, criminal law and property law pertaining to women out of the hands of the state legislatures and into the hands of the federal government: the Congress, the executive branch and the federal courts. State legislatures constitute that part of our governmental system which is closest to the will of the people. What purpose can be served by transferring power and discretion out of state hands to the federal bureaucrats and ultimately to the federal courts? Which is the least responsive to the will of the people? Matters heretofore considered exclusive legislative responsibility of states would be

'Restrict the kids to save gasoline'

The Jan. 30 editorial, "Gas rationing isn't the answer," was interesting. Unfortunately though, The Herald did not provide an alternative or recommendation for a solution to the gas problem.

There are several ways to begin to solve this problem. One is a matter of priorities — who needs to drive and who does not need to drive.

How about high school drivers? Ever notice the parking lots in Dist. 214? Full to capacity! As a matter of fact, I heard that the student lot at Rolling Meadows High School had to be expanded. Unless there is a hardship case in a family, is there reason for a 16 year old to drive to school? Is it necessary that driver's ed start at age 16?

The Herald should conduct an intensive study in teenage driving and related gas consumption. What would happen if every kid over 16 years of age drove to school every day? No need for rationing, because there would be nothing to ration.

We now realize that we cannot undo what has already been done, but hopefully we can attempt to appease the unforgivable act by recovering and replacing the missing equipment.

Please accept our sincere apology, though it is of little consolation for our wrongdoing, and may we through our actions in the future try to show you that we as a wrestling team can be acceptable and trustworthy persons.

How to recall long-ago faces

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON — Here's a little memory test for you: drag out your old high school yearbook and see how many of your classmates you can identify without peeking at the names beneath the pictures.

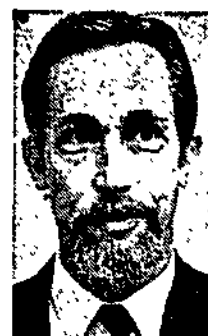

If you are a recent graduate, and if you have average recall, you should get 9 out of 10. But if you graduated five years ago, you should still get 9 out of 10.

Even if you graduated more than 40 years ago, you probably can identify three-fourths of them.

Researchers who established these averages in a series of tests published by Psychology Today professed surprise over the outcome.

"We were totally unprepared for our subjects' ability to retain the names and faces of their old classmates," they wrote.

Surprise was not my reaction, however. Having recently read a series of articles on how the brain functions, I could easily understand how the tests turned out the way they did.

Scientists are now convinced that the hemispheres of the brain operate separately and independently, each tending to its own knitting, so to speak.

Within that concept, one can readily surmise what happens in the brain with respect to remembrance.

Material reaching the brain's "in" basket is instantly sorted out, some data going to the right hemisphere, some to the left.

I'm not sure which hemisphere does what, but for illustration purposes the process can be described thusly:

Information you will no longer need after you finish high school, e.g. names of classmates, goes into the left hemisphere where it remains available for immediate recall.

Often, it suddenly pops into your memory even when you aren't trying to recall it. And occasionally it pops into your memory when you are trying to forget it.

Meanwhile, high school information that might be useful to you in later years, e.g. how to convert Centigrade to Fahrenheit, goes into the right hemisphere where it steps on a trap door and drops into the subconscious, never to be heard from again.

Thus the hemispheric concept accounts for the so-called "cocktail party effect." You can remember the name of a high school classmate you haven't seen for 40 years, yet draw a blank with someone to whom you were introduced at a cocktail party five minutes ago.

While nobody has complete control over what he remembers, there is a way to help guide certain data input to the retaining hemisphere.

When you meet someone at a cocktail party, always say, "Didn't we go to high school together?" Chances are the name will be fixed in your memory ever after.

Fence post

transferred to the federal government. These include family law, divorce, child custody, alimony, minimum marriageable age limits, dower rights, inheritance, survivors benefits, insurance rates, welfare, prison regulations and protective labor legislation.

There are seven constitutional amendments which have a similar section giving Congress the power to enforce legislation. Five of these amendments pertain to voting rights. They are the 15th, 19th, 23rd, 24th and 26th. The 14th, which opened the doors to endless litigation over apportionment, has this section but as Section 5. However, there is one constitutional amendment which does not have a Section 2 — the 18th — which gave Congress the power to levy an income tax, allowing individual states to retain their taxing power.

The dramatic difference between these constitutional amendments which have a Section 2 and those that do not proves that state legislatures are voting away their own powers if they ratify ERA. As we have recently seen in Illinois, the White House has exerted influence on state legislators to support the ERA. The reason is quite obvious.

Several states rescind approval

ERA faces tough hurdles

by ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON — When Congress approved the Equal Rights Amendment in March, 1972, it seemed reasonable to assume that ERA would become the 27th amendment to the Constitution within a year or two.

After struggling for years to get the amendment through Congress and then achieving overwhelming approval, ERA supporters had some cause to believe it would quickly win the ratification of 38 states.

Only two of the previous 26 amendments have taken more than two years to be ratified and the proposition just before ERA, the 18-year-old vote, had whittled through in less than one year.

But it is now nearly three years since ERA got its required two-thirds votes of approval from the House and Senate, and not deratify a constitutional amendment, that did not stop Tennessee from following with a rescinding resolution in 1974.

In the end, in states which have voted to rescind ratification have to be counted for ERA to achieve the required three-fourths majority of 50 states, Congress probably will have to decide the issue.

How did ERA get into difficulty? Part of the answer seems to be that the amendment's opponents have been able to change the character of the debate on the issue. Although there were some dark predictions on Capitol Hill that ERA was trying to change the nature of male-female relationships in this country, the amendment was treated mainly as a legal question when it was debated in Congress.

When it went to the legislatures, ERA was transformed into a full-scale social issue. Opponents found and used two basic approaches that succeeded in providing resistance in the state capitals that did not arise in Washington.

First, by means subtle and overt, opponents pictured ERA's supporters as wild-eyed militant libbers, intent on punishing men for dominating society and determined to turn the tables to take over. The purpose is to make predominantly male legislatures feel threatened and/or hostile.

Second, opponents charged that ERA would destroy the fabric of decent social relationships and family life. Regardless of how many legislators took seriously the contention that ERA would require unisex public toilets, that widely circulated claim typified the argument that the amendment would bring the heavy hand of government into the most personal affairs of citizens, not excluding women, who are content with the world as it is.

These are volatile matters and against their emotional content it has been difficult for ERA supporters to make their argument that the amendment would do no more than give women the same rights before the law as men.

It was on that narrow but important basis that Congress finally passed ERA and on which reasoned debate in the states would probably yield the required ratifications.

But unless the amendment's supporters can find a way to keep the debate from becoming a conflict between the accepted life style of middle class citizens and some kind of hyped-up, amoral counterculture, the ERA could go the way of the Child Labor amendment, which was approved by Congress 51 years ago but died with only 27 state ratifications.

The almanac

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 12, the 43rd day of 1975 with 322 to follow. This is Lincoln's birthday.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury and Mars.

The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

Both Abraham Lincoln, 16th president of the United States, and British biologist Charles Darwin were born Feb. 12, 1809.

On this day in history:

• In 1953, the Soviet Union broke off relations with Israel when terrorists bombed the U.S.S.R. legation in Tel Aviv.

• In 1963, a jetliner crashed into the Florida Everglades, killing 43 persons.

• In 1973, the first American prisoners of war were released by North Vietnam; 116 flown from Hanoi to the Philippines.

• In 1974, Patricia Hearst's abductors asked her wealthy father for $230 million worth of free food as evidence of good faith in negotiating for her release.

A thought for the day: French philosopher Jean Rousseau said, "Nature never deceives us; it is always we who deceive nature."

Area parents, doctors win battle— funds OK'd for high-risk nursery

by KAREN BLECKA

Mothers, doctors and legislators in the Northwest suburbs have won the battle over funding involving the high-risk nursery at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

Parents of babies treated at the nursery now are eligible for state funds to help pay the high cost of intensive care for premature infants, hospital officials announced Tuesday. Dr. Henry Mangurten, high-risk director, said costs can range as high as $20,000.

The announcement came at the official opening of the new $400,000 high-risk nursery equipped to handle 20 critically and moderately ill newborns, twice as many as the old unit. Hospital officials said expansion of the nursery had nothing to do with the state-funding program.

Mothers and legislators in the area protested last fall when the Illinois Dept. of Public Health decided to exclude Lutheran General from a new funding program. The decision meant a parent who needed help with medical bills resulting from a premature birth would have to put their baby in a high-risk nursery in one of six Chicago hospitals approved by the state. No hospitals in the suburbs qualified.

DOCTORS FROM THE area also wrote to the department, objecting to the decision to exclude Lutheran General, said Dr. Seymour Metrick, chairman of pediatrics for the hospital.

As a result, the state reached a "compromise," said William Jacobs, the health department's administrative assistant for prenatal care. Jacobs said the funds originally allotted to the University of Illinois Medical Center for its hospital's high-risk nursery will be shared with Lutheran General. Lutheran General is affiliated with the University of Illinois.

"I'm delighted Lutheran General has been included," said Judith Ramsey, organizer of the protest. Mrs. Ramsey's daughter was treated at the high-risk nursery when she arrived 3½ months early. She said her hospital bill alone cost $16,000.

JACOBS SAID UNDER the new program, which began Jan. 1, the state will pay for part or all of the infant's intensive-care bill if a parent qualifies. He said parents must apply directly to the public-health department, filling out an in-depth report of income and expenses. Then if they can't pay the bill, if their insurance doesn't cover it, if they do not qualify for public aid, the state will pick up the tab, he said.

"We base our decision on how much a family can pay on the Bureau of Labor statistics for the average family," Jacobs said. "If a family has any excess income over normal expenses, they are required to pay one-third of it as the bill."

JACOBS SAID HE did not know how many parents would qualify under the program, but said the health department has a "limited" $25 million budget to cover cases statewide. He said each of the 10 special high-risk centers throughout the state approved by the health department will receive $2,500 a month for administrative costs and $4,000 for educational funds.

JACOBS SAID Lutheran General and the University of Illinois Hospital would share the funds allotted and would be considered together as one of the 10 centers. The state program is designed to try to lower the infant mortality rate in Illinois.

Metrick said he was pleased with the state's decision, pointing out the hospital has written off "a great deal" of medical bills in the past when parents couldn't pay. He said expansion of the nursery had nothing to do with the state's funding plan.

"We created this center long before the state came up with the idea," he said. "We built it chiefly for Lutheran at first but once it was established we got referrals from other hospitals. We were just so crowded we decided to expand."

Mangurten said 500 infants have been treated at the nursery since it opened in 1972. He said the infants have been transferred to Lutheran General from hospitals as far as 45 miles away. He said the smallest infant who survived weighed 1 lb., 10 ounces at birth and the most premature was delivered 15 weeks early.

Mangurten said the newborn infant-mortality rate at Lutheran General has dropped about 30 per cent since the unit opened.

Regner bill would end pre-vote rules

State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, has introduced legislation to end pre-election practices which he estimates cost the voters of Cook County more than $250,000 each year.

Regner introduced one bill to repeal a present statute which requires each city, village and town clerk to print lists of registered voters and post them publicly before each municipal election.

Another bill would eliminate a requirement for notices of the dates, hours and places of registration to be posted in 15 places in each precinct of the county. Regner estimated that eliminating that requirement alone would save more than $200,000 per year in Cook County.

Regner said the requirement to print lists of registered voters duplicates work that is done by the county government, and publication of registration hours could be done more efficiently through publication in newspapers.

Win at bridge

First things first for bid

South played brilliantly (at least he thought he had), quickly (everyone agreed to that), and with conspicuous lack of success.

He rose with dummy's jack of hearts, plunked his ace on East's queen, took the club finesse and ran off six club tricks. Then he led a heart and hoped for the best. The best did not eventuate. West had discarded one spade, one heart and two diamonds. He cashed the last three hearts and led a diamond to give his partner tricks with the ace and king.

South wanted to know why North had bid three notrump, instead of dropping the bidding at two notrump or signing off at three clubs.

North replied, "If I had known I was playing with a butcher, I would have bid three clubs."

We wouldn't go so far as to say that South had butchered the hand, but we do know that a really enterprising player would have brought home nine tricks. At trick two he would have led the queen of spades. If West covered he would take dummy's ace, come back to his hand with the second spade and then finesse the club. If West ducked, South's queen of spades would hold the trick. Now the club finesse would be taken.

This would have led to a substantial set if either finesse had lost, but South wasn't doubled and should have taken the chance.

Blair pact has no stipulations on time, duties

N. Robert Blair

by BOB LAHEY

The contract under which former House Speaker W. Robert Blair of Park Forest continues on the state payroll after his November election defeat guarantees him payment of $2,600 per month, with no stipulation as to his hours or duties.

The agreement, signed by Blair and his successor as Republican leader in the Illinois House, Minority Leader James (Bud) Washburn of Morris, represents a curious departure from standard agreements for "consultants" to state offices. Standard consultants' contracts call for an hourly rate of payment for work performed, usually with a maximum monthly ceiling.

Blair's contract says simply, "... Client (Washburn) agrees to pay the Attorney and Consultant (Blair) a fee of $2,600 per month."

THE CONTRACT also stipulates payment of 15 cents per mile for car travel, or the actual cost of train or airplane fare, to Blair "outside his headquarters city," which is identified as Park Forest. While travel expense allowances for consultants are generally construed to apply to journeys between their homes and Springfield, one attorney said of the Blair contract, "He could travel anywhere in the world."

The contract does specify that such travel expenses must be "incurred in performing the services" of his job as consultant. Those services are described simply as acting "in an advisory capacity to the Client (Washburn) with respect to the legal and substantive aspects of the various operations of the Illinois House of Representatives."

The contract also provides Blair with $38 per day for food, lodging and "other incidental travel expenses," as well as "such secretarial services and support, supplies, materials, duplicating and telephone services as required to complete his services..."

Blair's secretary when he served as speaker of the House, Margaret Precht of Springfield, remains on the state payroll at a salary of $2,310 per month — a yearly total of $27,720.

COMMENTING ON the contract between Blair and Washburn, one legislator who served in the House during Blair's two terms as speaker, declared, "As speaker, he never would have agreed to a consultant fee without demanding proof of services performed."

There have been accusations that Washburn was elected minority leader as a "caretaker" for a possible reentry into Republican party affairs by Blair, who was unseated as a legislator in November. Blair incurred the wrath of voters in his Will County district by helping pass the bill creating the Regional Transportation Authority. After the public reaction against RTA in his district, he attempted to rescind the legislation.

Republican members of the legislature are scheduled to caucus in Springfield Thursday afternoon, and Washburn is expected to be called upon to justify the contract he signed with Blair.

The contract is subject to termination within 30 days by either Blair or Washburn, and a number of Republican legislators, including State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman and State Rep. Virginia MacDonald, both of Arlington Heights, have called upon Washburn to rescind it.

Home for runaway girls may be set up by June

A short-term home for girls who are runaways or who have family problems may be operating by June in the north and Northwest suburban area.

The Chicago-Cook County Criminal Justice Commission Tuesday approved a $143,000 grant request to Crisis Homes, Inc., to establish the home. The Illinois Law Enforcement Commission now will consider the proposal, which requires 5 per cent local funding to qualify for the state and federal money.

Patricia Siebert, administrative aide to Sheriff Richard Elrod, said the home will provide a safe place to cool off while the girls, ages 12-17, try to work out their problems. It will be an alternative to juvenile court action, she said.

Each girl would be allowed to stay up to 10 days while receiving counseling from juvenile officers, social workers and other public-agency representatives.

Parents will know the whereabouts of their children and will be involved in efforts to solve the problems, Mrs. Siebert said. The children will not be kept against the parents' wishes.

MRS. SIEBERT SAID she has been involved in the problem since she helped found the Evanston Youth Commission. The youth commission identified the problem of runaways, particularly girls, and began to seek a solution.

Local financial participation will be sought from suburban communities, many of which already have committed funds. Mrs. Siebert said about $9,000 in local funds will be needed.

Crisis Homes is seeking a rental facility that would house a maximum of 15 girls, plus a project director and a counselor. Three counselors will be hired as well as a cook-dietician and a secretary.

If the project is successful, Mrs. Siebert said, a similar program for boys will be established when money is available. She said national attention is being focused on the problems of troubled youth, and more money is becoming available.

Teachers may get summer compensation

Some Illinois teachers may be able to collect unemployment compensation for at least part of their summer "vacation" this year — but only if the state believes they really are looking for work.

A change in federal legislation on unemployment compensation has made it possible for teachers who are not working or attending school during the summer to collect unemployment compensation, said Ralph Elliott of the Illinois Bureau of Employment Security.

Elliott said the state will decide whether a teacher is eligible on a case by case basis, taking into consideration whether he is actively seeking work and the individual family situation, among other things.

GEORGE KING, a spokesman for the Illinois Education Assn., the state's largest teacher's union, said the IEA has notified teachers that they may be eligible for the compensation. King estimated that not more than a few thousand of the 60,000 IEA members in the state would actually be eligible.

King said that he would anticipate that compensation would only go to teachers who are dependent on summer employment to "make ends meet" and who end up out of work because of the recession. "I would think that a guy who had worked say, for a moving company, for five or six summers and couldn't get a job this summer because the company had to cut back, would probably qualify," King said.

King said he anticipated that the provision would draw criticism as a "loophole" in the federal law, but added, "The fact is there are many teachers throughout the state and nation who are barely eking out a living." He said recent figures show that about 2,400 teachers in Illinois earn less than $3,000 a year. "Eight thousand dollars doesn't go very far if you have a couple of kids," he said.

He added that, although the IEA does not know exactly how the state will determine eligibility, "we would think that they would consider annual income and family size. There are a lot of variables."

Yesterday's Cryptquote: IF YOU CANNOT GET RID OF THE FAMILY SKELETON, YOU MAY AS WELL MAKE IT DANCE. — GEORGE BERNARD SHAW
(© 1975 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Weak legs cause woes

For as long as I can remember my legs, from the knees down, have tired out much quicker than anyone else's doing the same thing. This goes back to my high school basketball days and even to pre-teen days when I stayed home rather than go on shopping trips with my family because my legs got too tired. I have never consulted a doctor about this because I supposed I was born this way and must live with it.

I'm 51 now, have farmed for 27 years, and they are getting worse at an accelerating rate. If I am on my feet too much my feet and legs ache and even feel tired when I get out of bed in the mornings. Do you have any comments as to the cause and treatment of my problem?

Anyone who has excessive fatigue, aching or cramping in the legs with exercise must have a medical examination. Sometimes this is a sign of poor circulation to the legs. The most common cause of poor circulation is the accumulation of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries, but it can also be a birth defect of the major arteries.

Since you have had this since childhood it is less likely that your problem is circulation, but you need to have it checked anyway.

If the circulation is fine my best bet would be lack of muscle strength. Here again we must make a distinction between endurance and strength. A strong muscle is a big muscle. The strength is related to the cross-sectional area of the muscle. Lots of walking will not develop strength because it doesn't increase the weight load on the muscle. Strength is developed in relation to the amount of weight a muscle must contract against, your body weight or any other means of loading the muscle. Because the ache is below the knees I am suspicious you are one of those many people who never developed strong calf muscles.

When a muscle is basically small it may not be so well equipped for endurance. This is why many coaches today include some form of weight training for their overall athletic program.

I WOULD SUGGEST that you start a series of exercises of standing on your toes. First stand flat-footed and slowly rise up on your toes. Then return to the flat-footed position and repeat this. The weight of your body will provide the weight training. Do this about 12 times in succession Monday, Wednesday and Friday for about two weeks. If you can't do it 12 times do the number that is comfortable. Once you can do it 12 times in a row regularly three days a week for two weeks, switch to standing on one foot. You can balance yourself with one hand against the wall. You may be able to raise up on one toe only three to five times at first. Do the toe stands for each foot three days a week until you build up to doing this three times a week regularly.

More frequent or additional toe stands will not help you and can overwork the muscle to the point that it doesn't develop strength as fast as with the schedule outlined here. The rule is train, not strain. Maintain these exercises and it may enable you to increase your endurance during walking and similar activity.

Rivalries

Arlington floors Wheeling, 68-53

by KEITH REINHARD

"They took it away from us," shrugged Wheeling basketball coach Ted Ecker.

He was speaking of the action at Tuesday night's North Division scuffle over at his place and the Arlington kamakaze squad that had aggressively swooped in to rattle off a 68-53 verdict.

Ecker was speaking of the style of play primarily but the Cardinals had come off with a little better reward than that. In dominating the contest they captured the verdict, the series, and the 1975 divisional championship.

It was the third straight North title for Carl coach George Zigman and quite likely set the stage for one of the biggest area showdowns since 1970 when Arlington and Prospect football teams both carried undefeated slates into the Super Bowl.

The Redbirds, along with the Knights need just one more victory apiece now to set up an unprecedented Mid-Suburban League cage finale featuring two unbeaten squads.

And Zigman's gang took just about everything away from the 'Cats. Behind the hot hand of Jerry DeSimone and the super stand on the boards by Terry Donahue and Dennis Gaare, the guests surged into command in the opening minutes and never let go.

It was the second time this season Wheeling had fallen to the Cardinals and pulled Arlington back up even in the over-all series during the past three years at five games apiece.

For the hosts, the major problem was a foul one. By the time the fourth period started four of Ecker's starters had accrued four personals and the fifth had three. By game's end only two 'Cat regulars were still in combat.

But it was at that point between the third and fourth periods when Zigman conjured up the fatal blow. He issued instructions to his troops and their devastatingly quick, running, pressing shooting style of play abruptly switched to a stall style at the outset of the final quarter.

"It was really the logical thing to do," pointed out the Card helmsman who at the same time came to the defense of his club's preferential edge in the foul department. "We felt that our type of play had a lot to do with their foul troubles. Our kids do things to prompt mistakes from the opposition and they did one fine job of making things happen out there tonight."

So there was Wheeling trailing by nine to begin the fourth quarter. They plucked off the tip and Steve Criss banged in a rebound quickly but Arlington responded by putting a clamper on the activity. Zigman pointed out that it was a relatively new tool in the Redbird arsenal — this stall — but turned it on efficiently and effectively. The hosts could not afford to be overly aggressive, and when they were, they departed to the sidelines.

The slowdown took an eventual toll of three Wheeling starters and sent the guests to the line too many times for the Wildcats to recover. Donahue led the free throw parade, connecting on 11 of 16 for the night and he also hit two of them to turn things around when the 'Cats made their last bid late in the third quarter.

At that point a long shot by Steve Rymer and Keith Schildt's short baseline jumper had pulled their team within four of Arlington 43-39. Donahue clicked for two charity tosses, then John Yazel plunked in a pair and Arlington was on their way.

Donahue finished with 12 rebounds and Gaare had 10 as the visitors outboarded the opposition at a better than two-to-one ratio. DeSimone fired in seven of nine afield to help key a balanced offensive attack that was led by Gaare's 17

Recent loss (at home) to Quincy continues Galesburg's frustration

by JOE SWICKARD

If archeologists should uncover Galesburg, Ill., a thousand years from now, they would probably wonder about those structures above the driveways.

These boards and metal hoops are obviously some object of worship — a hex sign or an outdoor altar perhaps.

Object of worship is right. Dribble, drive, lay-up and jumpshot for the greater glory of Naismith, inventor of basketball.

An affliction sweeps the state every spring. The March Madness of the state basketball tournament festers year 'round in the town of 33,000 in west-central Illinois.

Since 1913, the town has been trying to recapture the glory of a state title. Year after year the Silver Streaks start for Champaign and somehow stumble along the way.

1973 looked like a good year for the Streaks. A young club with nine players 6-3 or better.

But the season has been a disappointment to the fans and the coffee shop coaches, though. The team and Coach Mike Owens (formerly of Wheeling) just can't seem to put it together.

The highlight of the season had been a victory over rival Quincy, at Quincy. Maybe Owens and the Streaks could turn the trick again when Quincy came to play on Galesburg's home court, called, with good reason, The Snake Pit.

Quincy takes its basketball seriously, too. Especially against Galesburg. It seems that in the late 1950s two basketball-playing brothers from Quincy suddenly moved to Galesburg. Towns serious about their basketball don't readily forget things like that.

The Galesburg gym holds 3,700 and they pack them in right up to the court. The student body is right behind the benches and the partisans have only to stop across a rubber runner to be in the middle of play.

With 20 minutes before the opening jump ball, the local radio station announced that 200 tickets would go on sale. The tickets were gone within minutes.

Surprisingly, students made up only a small portion of the people crammed into the gym. The rest of the seats were taken by adults, not necessarily parents of players or students. In fact, more than 2,000 seats are filled by season ticket-holding adults.

The teams took the floor for warmups and the radio announcers gave up their efforts to talk over the noise. It was just too damned loud.

The game did not go well for either team. Sloppy ball, mortal sins in these parts, characterized the play.

At halftime the score was 34-27, Quincy, and the townsfolk started their critiques. Owens was (take your pick) 1 not using enough of his tall men; 2 not using the speed of the small men; 3 just in need of the right mix of tall and small players; 4, not using enough sophomores; 5, not aggressive enough.

The cheers and chants gave way to groans as Galesburg slipped behind by 11 points in the third quarter.

The fourth quarter saw Galesburg hustling for the first time of the night. Fouls started to mount and the crowd started to take it personally.

The week before on a road game, a fan jumped onto the floor and punched an official. The people take their basketball seriously.

Sherrill Hanks, the safari-suited Quincy coach, suddenly let out a yelp and turned toward the stands. Someone in the Galesburg student section had pegged something into the back of his neck.

It wasn't a fantastic shot — after all the bench backs into the student section. Hanks yelled and waved a diamond-ringed index finger at the supposed offender. The ushers (all grown men) strung the ropes to separate the fans from the floor.

The ropes weren't needed as the home team lost by three. Almost but not quite again, the fans returned to their season-long slow burn.

Owens says there shouldn't be any pressure, because pressure comes with a winning streak, not a year of "almost." But he admits there are some in town who think everything rides on what a group of teen-agers do on the hardwood every Friday and Saturday night.

What some seem to forget, he says, is that they are seeing amateur ball at the lowest level. These kids aren't the Bulls, he said.

Some adults seem to forget this is a game by and for the kids. His job is to teach basketball and if they don't win, the sun is still going to come up just like yesterday, adds Owens.

Not just like yesterday for some people, because Galesburg lost to Quincy at home.

The bars that night and the coffeshops the next morning were filled with sugar packets as guards and this salt shakers as center. Now all Owens has to do is put in a new shaker as a pick and the sugar can drive in.

These tabletop games go on and on. Paper napkins disappear to map out the plays that'll take them to Champaign for that Saturday night in March.

Yes, the fans know that the sun's going to come up for a lot of tomorrows. There on the deserted gym floor, a father proudly rebounds for his grade school son working on his jump shot. It's late and the crowds and the teams are gone, but the child hefts the ball for another shot in the empty gym.

Niles West dumps Warriors, 66-57

by MIKE KLEIN

An examination presented itself, but Maine West couldn't solve its challenge Tuesday evening as the Warriors fell behind rapidly and lost their Central Suburban basketball game, 66-57, at home against Niles West.

"I honestly felt my hallelub had gotten to the point where it could play with anyone," said Maine coach Gaston Freeman whose Warriors had won four straight. "What can make coaching frustrating is that you never know how individuals will react. We were trying so hard." Freeman added, "We'd had four quizzes. Today was our big test."

In defeat, Maine declined to 7-4 in the Central Suburban South and 11-8 total. Niles West's Indians, 9-1 in the same division, remain one game behind conference leader Maine South and became 14-7 overall.

Two early stolen in-bounds passes, hard-to-beat first half Niles defense, the play of Indian reserve Jim Chappetta and fourth period Niles free throws contributed to Maine's loss.

The stolen passes occurred just moments into the game. Maine had slipped behind, 3-2, after going ahead on the first of Paul Dick's two baskets.

But on Maine's in-bounds pass by Glen Herden, Niles' Bob Krueger intervened and scored an easy lay-up. Then Bob Zy-burt took Heiden's next in-bounds attempt and made it 7-2 for Niles. The Warriors were hardly in the game afterwards.

Niles coach Billy Schnurr dictated combination zone press and man-to-man defense that held Maine to just five-of-19 first half shooting. Heiden, Maine's fine guard, scored just four field goals. He had one dozen points and John Clark led West with 13.

The Warriors finished 20-of-47 from the field by upping their marksmanship to 15-of-27 during the final two periods. But they let the Indians slip ahead to a 15-6 first quarter lead.

Although Marty Block paced Niles with a game high 25 points, it was Chappetta who led them during the second period. The reserve forward entered late in the first quarter when Zy-burt banged up one knee.

John Bruner picked up his third personal at 7:36, second period. Zy-burt was forced back in and Chappetta became very important. He responded with seven field goals for a season high of 14 points.

Niles led, 15-10, when Bruner departed. They lengthened that to a 32-18 halftime lead. Bruner didn't reappear until 2:08, third period, when the Indians were nursing a 44-32 lead.

Down-the-stretch, with Maine grabbing for the ball, Schnurr's Indians managed just one field goal in the last five minutes. But the Warriors gifted Niles with eight personal fouls during that span.

Niles, with seven attempts in the bonus plus one situation calling for two shots, hit 11 of its final 13 points at the line. That's how Block scored nine of his 25.

Maine had one chance early in the fourth period to retrieve the potential loss. Baskets from Steve Zuccarini, Bill Makuch and Clark plus two Heiden free throws cut Niles' lead to 49-42.

Schnurr signalled timeout and the free throw onslaught followed.

Harper blasts McHenry

McHenry was first on the scoreboard Tuesday night, but Harper brought the heavy artillery and blasted their opponents off the floor, 87-74.

The final score doesn't indicate the near-flawless execution by the Hawks during their productive first half. Backed by Chris Mielke's game-high 24 points, 17 by Mike Miller and 14 by Steve Schmidt, Harper bombed away for an insurmountable 53-30 edge at the intermission.

Harper head coach Roger Bechtold's club hit at a blistering pace during the initial 20 minutes, working for the good percentage shot or the layup.

McHenry pecked away at the big Hawk advantage, but never got closer than the final 13-point spread. The victory was Harper's third of the season against 20 defeats.

Arlington, Prospect closing fast, clash Thursday

Elk Grove and Hersey tied as league enters final week

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

Elk Grove finally caught Hersey with a week off and pulled even with the Huskies in the MSL gymnastics race at 7-0, but Arlington, with two conference dual meet losses, turned in the most impressive showing of the top schools with the conference meet just around the corner.

"We looked really decent," said Arlington head coach Tom Chapman of his Cardinals' 146.08 to 52.31 waltz past Wheeling. "But we could have gone higher because there were several minor breaks in the routines."

The point total was more than 11 over their average and boosted Arlington into second place (judged by average points per meet) past Elk Grove for the first time this season.

Wheeling's Bill McGeshick won the only Wildcat event title as he took the free ex portion of the meet with an 8.1 score.

Arlington had everything else nailed down as Gordon Schmidt paced the usual tough Cardinal side horse squad with an event best 8.55. Mark Hogrefe threw an 8.0 routine to aid the Arlington side horse effort.

Drew Parlee picked up three event titles for his trophy room with an 8.35 on high bar, 8.35 on P-Bars and an all-around average of 7.23. Chris Smith picked up the trampoline title with an 8.3 score and Carl Chamblee the rings with 8.15.

Don Marquis, who trailed McGeshick on free ex by a tenth of a point, averaged 6.08 for all-around to place fifth on the conference Honor Roll. His teammate Parlee won the all-around portion of the Honor Roll.

GRENS HANDLE MEADOWS
With Hersey's week off Elk Grove's

128.77 to 125.86 dual meet triumph over Rolling Meadows put the spotlight for the conference meet squarely on the only two unbeaten teams in the league.

Both squads boast 7-0 marks which will be 8-0 when the meet begins at Fremd on Saturday at 7 p.m. And, tantalizingly, both schools have been scheduled around each other, setting up an exciting confrontation.

"We're still so darn young," said Elk Grove coach Fred Gaines, "and I can't tell from meet to meet how consistent we're going to be. If we can eliminate small breaks we should be in the middle 140s but I don't know that we can always do that. I just know we have the talent to do it every meet."

Elk Grove's free ex team knocked together a 24.45 team score in their dual with Meadows, led by all-arounder Gene Christensen's event winning 8.45.

Christensen, despite an injured foot, also won the high bar (8.5) and the all-around (7.22).

Matt Damore's 8.25 in free ex added nicely to the team total but the Grens' ace had a sub-Damore meet otherwise.

"Matty injured his chest," Gaines said, "and it's the type of painful injury that really bothers his performance. After he only got a 1.8 on the high bar I pulled him out of the meet until the rings."

Tim Connelly won the side horse event with an 8.6 score and Steve Phillips threw an 8.3 and Tom Balla a 7.5 to combine with Christensen's event winning mark to total 24.30 on the high bar.

Jim Lostio and Bob Gauger hauled down event titles for Rolling Meadows. The trampoline belonged to Lostio's 8.0 and the rings were the province of Gauger, who marked an 8.1, good enough for second place on the Honor Roll.

KNIGHTS RIDE OVER CONANT

If a darkhorse had to be selected from the MSL gymnastics teams with shots at the conference title the Prospect Knights would be it. So dark as to be almost invisible at the start of the season, Pat Kivland's crew has been chalking up impressive 140-plus point totals in their most recent outings and their 141.50 to 120.91 dual meet handling of Conant is just shades of things to come.

"The thing that encouraged me most about this meet," Kivland said, "was the fact that we scored 20 points or better as a team in every event for the first time this year."

Exciting for the Knights, also, is the Spotlight on gymnastics

prospect of having a healthy Kurt Cederberg on hand when Prospect and Arlington collide in the final conference dual meet of the season Thursday night.

"He could have gone against Conant," Kivland said of Cederberg's condition, "but we wanted to save him for Arlington and let some of our other kids come on."

Don Bartlett, Russ Klingaman and Doug Zahour led the Knights coming out party as Bartlett (7.15) and Klingaman (6.69) paced Prospect's all-around efforts and Zahour won the free ex (8.8) and high bar (8.3) event championships. Klingaman threw an 8.15 and Doug Krebs an 8.2 to boost Prospect's free ex team score over 25.

Tom Hall captured Conant's only event title as he scored an 8.35 on the trampoline.

SAXONS TAKE FALCONS

The Schaumburg Saxons exploded 15 points beyond their average for a 97.55 to 80.2 dual meet win over Forest View, their first conference win of the season.

The week was memorable, also, in that two Saxons made their way onto the conference Honor Roll for the first time this season.

Mark Post slipped into the No. 4 slot with an event clinching 7.9 effort on the still rings and all-arounder Steve Ninow caught the No. 5 flight with a 7.35 average.

PALATINE SOCKS FREMD

The sparse silver lining around this dark cloud of a gymnastics season at Fremd is that the youthful Vikings have been improving minutely with each meet.

The improvement wasn't enough to keep them from falling to their eighth straight MSL dual meet loss, 67.77 to 37.63 to Palatine, and the Vikings will have to sit by at the conference meet while everybody else plays on their apparatus.

For the Pirates it was victory No. 2 in the league and was led by Bob Garland's 5.0 in free ex and 4.9 on P-Bars. Garland's all-around average was 4.02. (8

Four teams take it on the chin in non-league meets

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

It was a grim week for MSL gymnastics team as far as venturing out of the safety of the conference was concerned.

Four teams took to non-league apparatus and all four came out on the low end. The biggest loss came Friday night in the duel of giants when Hersey's defending state champion Huskies fell to Hinsdale Central 155.19 to 152.60. Hersey can take some consolation in the fact that Hinsdale had to produce the highest team total in the history of high school gymnastics to beat them. Hoffman Estates faced Malne North Thursday when all the league teams but Hersey and Buffalo Grove were engaged in conference duals and took an 89.48 to 77.8 loss. The Hoffman free ex team completed a strong 18-plus team score as Tom Heuer marked 6.75, Mike Sorensen 6.25 and Dave Stronz 5.10. Hoffman also got strong performances from Corwin Cook on trampoline (5.8), Jim Wingate on rings (6.15) and Rick Lindow on P-Bars (5.1). Brian Faczek threw an 8.05 routine on the rings but Buffalo Grove came out on the raw end of a 121.55 to 111.35 dual meet score with New Trier East Saturday.

MSL meet at Fremd
Fremd High School will host the Mid-Suburban League gymnastics championships Saturday, Feb. 15 with the sophomores contending for their title at 2 p.m. and the varsity at 7 p.m. For full details and a preview of the conference meet see Saturday's edition of the Herald.

Phil Laler and John Relos clicked on their routines for seven-plus scores with Laler taking a 7.25 in free ex and Relos a 7.2 on the P-Bars. All-around man Wayne Dulin averaged 5.35 for his five event average. Palatine's gymnasts hit only 67.77 in winning their conference dual meet with Fremd but they boosted that way up to 90.5 Saturday against Rockford Gullford yet that wasn't enough to win the duel as Gullford edged them with 91.36. Bob Garland, the Bucs' all-arounder, averaged 5.40 and posted team highs of 6.6 on P-Bars and 6.0 on high bar.

Harper women prep for qualifying meet

The Harper women's gymnastics squad brought up the rear of a four team parade over the weekend as they amassed 82.60 points to trail Oakton (83.0), Moraine Valley (85.80) and host Triton (89.95) in the Junior College Invitational. The meet gave head coach Martha Lynn Bolt a good idea of what to expect when her team competes in the Northwest Qualifying Meet at Kishwaukee this Saturday to determine which teams and individuals will advance to the state finals at DeKalb, Feb. 28 through March 1. The qualifying meet will begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday. Both regular four year as well as two year junior colleges will be attempting to qualify for the state finals. "If all the routines come in we should have a good chance of advancing some people to the state meet," Bolt said. "We had a lot of minor mistakes over the weekend and we can't afford them in the qualifying meet. "The girls were a little nervous but I don't think they will be this time around." Pacing the team's efforts in the J.C. Invite was Sherry Newkirk, who placed in two events. Newkirk took a third place on the balance beam with a 7.35 score and tied for third in the free exercise event with a mark of 8.05. The high marks posted by the team in the other events were Carol Higley (7.2 on uneven P-Bars) and Sue McCormack (6.85 in vaulting).

Mustangs clinch Metro hockey title

Rolling Meadows clinched first place in the Northwest Division of the Chicago Metro High School Hockey League last weekend.

Despite splitting games last week, the Mustangs maintained their two-point bulge over St. Viator. Although the Lions could tie the Mustangs in points after this weekend's play, the deadlock would be broken because Meadows holds the edge in goals scored in head-to-head competition.

St. Viator faces Hersey this Sunday at 12:30 p.m. and Rolling Meadows meets Driscoll at 2 p.m. in the final regular season games.

Meadows lost to Lake Forest on Thursday 4-1 with Steve Voss picking up the lone Mustang goal. On Sunday, the Mustangs bounced back to down Hersey 3-1 on goals from Russ Rlandeau, Randy Voss and Tom Sweeney. Hersey's Steven Beck spoiled goalie Fred Mock's bid for a shutout with a second period tally.

Viator, down 1-0 on an unassisted goal by Mike Aquino, scored seven straight to beat Fremd 7-1 on Thursday. Ron Menoni and Mike Rodell each scored twice, with single scores by Jack McLoraine, John O'Shaughnessy and Mark Gustafson.

Palatine spoiled St. Viator's chance to move back into a first-place tie with a 4-2 victory over the Lions on Sunday. The Pirates, struggling to catch Lake Forest for a first division berth in the playoffs, rallied from a 2-0 deficit. Viator's Rick Herdrick and Dave Thompson scored first period goals.

Rick Flynn made it 2-1 with his first of two goals, the only second period scoring. Palatine finished strong with third period goals from Mark Langer, Bob Greenhill, the winning goal, and Rick Flynn's second of the game.

In other Sunday action, Arlington Heights skated to a 6-4 win over Fremd, taking a 4-0 lead on goals by Larry Hermanson, Rich Minor, Jeff Gardner and John Walsh. Fremd came back with three straight tallies with Jerry Dudziak, Mike Aquino and Mitch Gullett hitting the net. The Cardinal's Jeff Gardner scored again followed by Billy McGuire to ice the victory. Fremd's Dudziak scored his second of the game to close out the scoring. Driscoll and Lake Forest played to a 3-3 tie on Sunday to round out the schedule.

Round robin playoffs involving first division teams will be held after the completion of the regular season schedule to determine the Northwest Division representative in the Chicago Metro High School Championship playoff. Second division teams will also compete for the right to play for the Founders Cup, with the round robin winner competing against similar winners from other divisions.

Thursday, Feb. 20, is the first round in the championship bracket and Sunday, Feb. 23, the first round in the Founders Cup playdown. Complete schedules will be listed after the regular season is completed.

Huskie jayvees 'Top' Hawks, 45-43

Long bombs are a way of life for Scott Topczewski in the fall. As Hersey's varsity quarterback, he threw plenty of them.

He proved to be a long range threat again last weekend, but this time on a basketball court. The lanky junior tossed in a shot from the corner at the end of the game to edge hosting Hoffman Estates Friday night, 45-43.

It was a tough loss for the Hawks, who saw their record drop to 7-5 against junior varsity competition.

Hoffman held a seven-point lead going into the final quarter. It was tied twice, at 40-40 and 43-43. After a Hersey shot misfired and Hoffman rebounded, a charging foul was called on one of the Hawks. Hersey had the ball out of bounds with three seconds left.

Then "Top's" shot from the corner slipped through the net as the clock ran out. He finished with 18 points. Bob Newren had 10.

Hoffman was led by Joe Gajewski and Gene Foster with 11 points each. Foster, making his first start in quite some time, showed Coach Jerry Segebrecht something by his scoring and his game-high 14 rebounds.

Hoffman's field goal shooting dropped off to 35 per cent after being in the 50's for three games. Hersey hit 43 per cent.

The Hawks will host Arlington Saturday at 8 p.m.

Evanston's DuCanti scored twice in the first period assisted by Ingram, but the Blues tied it in the second period on two goals by Greg Beth assisted by Mike Evans and Dan Rorer. Grade school cage results

In the concluding games of the 1st round of the Mt. Prospect 6th Grade Basketball League, the St. Raymond Saints ended up as champs as they romped past the Dempster Wildcats. The Lions from St. Marks squeaked by the St. Zachary's Friendship Zebras and the Holmes Hawks upset the St. Emily Eagles, creating a three way tie for 2nd place between the Lions, Hawks and Eagles.

LIONS 77, WILDCATS 22

In a tight game, the fast breaking Lions nipped the Zebras as the Lions used their outside shooting and outstanding rebounding to pull away in the 2nd half. Karl Vogelgesang was high point man for the Lions with eight. Also contributing points were Jim Lewis, Paul Welsenstein, Brian Gerber, Scott Rubin, Ken Dix and Anderson. It was Ken Dix's basket in the 4th quarter that led the game for the Lions.

Bill Vaccino, Chad Sprinkman and Kurt Diederick keyed the Zebras offense as both teams played an excellent 1st half. Aggressive rebounding by Kevin Murray, Tom Drazitt and Mike Mosney helped keep the score close in the last half.

SAINTS 41, EAGLES 24

The 1st place Saints easily won their 5th straight game as they were just too much for the Dempster Wildcats to handle. Another balanced scoring effort by the whole team as 9 players contributed points with Lewis and Vaccino contributing 10 and 9 points respectively.

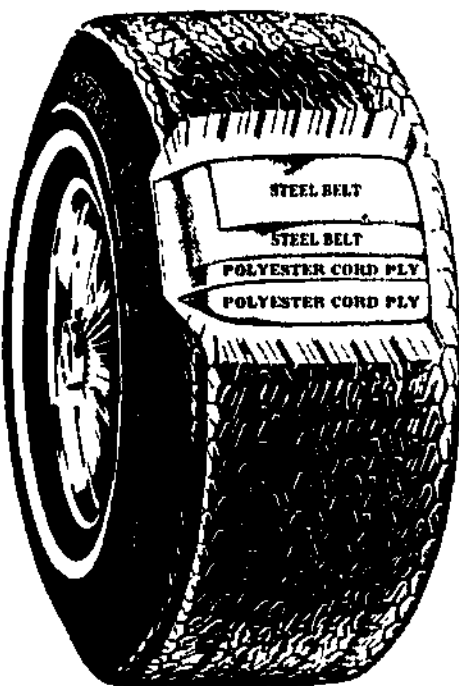

HAWKS 34, EAGLES 24

The Hawks and Eagles played a tough, aggressive ball game with the Holmes Hawks coming out on top. The Hawks were again led by the fine shooting of Mike Maloney with 20 points and Jamie Maw with 12. The Hawks defense was led by Bill Anderson, Tom Burke, Tom Maloney, Mike Trossen and Tom Benson. The Eagles just were not able to keep up a sustained drive and it is their 2nd loss of the season. Shot after shot kept falling out and the Eagles just were being out-muscled under the boards. Both Bill Hubby and Dave Rodiek scored 9 points apiece. Lee Jucka and Roland Elmuel scored the balance of the points for the Eagles.

2 Paddock men's teams post sweeps

by GENE KIRKHAM

Bowling at Fair Lanes Rolling Meadows Bowl the Paddock Classic Men's League saw two seven-point victories as Sullivan Pontiac continues to lead the league.

Formco Products had one of the seven-point wins against AFCC Products. Formco and AFCC Products engaged in a high-scoring first game with Formco winning 1060 to 1032. Formco went on to win the next two games with 1017 and 905 and totaled 2972.

Fred Hansen of Formco led the league in individual scoring as he found the pocket for games of 223, 215, and 242 for a big 680 series. Russ Grosch chipped in with 241, 232, and 158 for a 631 series.

Arnie Yusim Chevrolet knocked off Rolling Meadows Shell for seven points behind series of 951, 942, and 864. Meanwhile, the Shell men were hitting 909, 899 and 852 for 2660. Carl Mackerer led his Chevrolet team with a 594 series while Gene Kirkham of Rolling Meadows Shell hit 626 with games of 226, 198, and 202.

Sullivan Pontiac won five points from Des Plaines Ace Hardware in three very close games. Sullivan won the first game 912 to 904 with Des Plaines Ace winning the second game 935 to 933. The third game was another two-pin margin with Sullivan winning 979 to 977. Sullivan Pontiac barely took the series point over Des Plaines Ace Hardware, 2624 to 2816.

Bob Glaser led the Sullivan Pontiac team with a 650 series as he hit for games of 189, 213, and 248. Tom Kouras 593 series led the scoring for Des Plaines Ace Hardware.

Kole Realty won five of seven points from Teddy's Liquors in another match which went down to the wire in two out of the three games. Kole won the first game 938 to Teddy's 931. Teddy's turned it around in the second game in winning 938 to 930. Kole won the final game with a 926 and the series point 2794 to 2738.

Jerry Rogers 237, 178, and 213 games added up to a 628 series to lead the scoring for Teddy's Liquors while Ray Ischer had 190, 203 and 219 for a 612 series for Kole Realty.

With Sullivan in first place by only two points, next week's action at River Rand Bowl could see standings become even tighter.

Hoffman Estates Flyers hockey action

The Flyers hit the ball on with a resounding victory over Des Plaines 5-0. Goals Brian Strockek had little activity other than skating, as goals were scored by Derrick Thomas, Danny Williams, Bobby Nardella, Steve Quagliata, and Scott Martin. Assists were by Larry Brandon, Jim Cammarata, and Williams.

A hard fought game against Streamwood ended with the Flyers on top 3-1. Brian Strockek's saves on three breakaways made the difference. It was double patch duty as Steve Quagliata got his last trick, with a Play Maker patch being earned by defenseman Kelly Walker.

In a practice contest, the Flyers were led by the outstanding play of Steve Hart, Todd Green, Chris Dabolt, and Joe Kell. Defense was highlighted by hard checking Mike Kriemint. Score: Flyers 2 - Highland Park 1.

The Flyers Mites, with a record of 12-1-2, maintained first place by outscoring Addison 4-3. Goals were scored by Derrick Thomas - 2, Danny Williams - 1, and Steve Quagliata - 1. Assists were credited to Williams, Quagliata, Kenny Thompson, and Scott Martin.

The Flyers Minis were outscored by Streamwood 4-1. The lone Flyer goal was scored on a blistering shot from the point by Jeff Janopulos. Great efforts by Timmy Donovan, Joe Kell, Todd Green, and Jimmy Cammarata, playing cool, were supplemented by outstanding hockey by Scott Halby.

The Squirt Flyers battled Arlington to a 2-2 tie, despite playing with only eight players. Benny Eggers scored a first period goal, assisted by Jimmy Smith and Bobbie Chastus. The tying goal was scored in the third period by Bobbie Mead on an unassisted breakaway. The Flyers were outshot on this one 22-8, and only a sensational game in the nets by Mike Lewin saved the game.

Tuesday the Flyers were defeated 5-3 by Addison in the Woodfield Hockey League. Geoff Williams scored the last trick to account for all the Flyers scoring. Geoff was assisted by Ron Smith and Bobby Janhik on the first and third goals. The second was scored unassisted.

On Wednesday, the Flyers defeated Crystal Lake 4-1. It was a hard fought game, with Darren Strockek and Dennis Jackson scoring one each. Bobby Janhik, Bobbie Mead, Jim Smith, Tommy Vavra, and John Saulic all earned assists.

On Thursday the Flyers took on the Elmhurst Blades in Westmont and were defeated 4-1. This was probably the best game the Flyers have played all month, and it was close all the way. Geoff Williams scored first, assisted by Tommy Vavra. Bobbie Mead and Tommy Vavra both scored unassisted goals to round out the scoring. Goalsie Mike Lewin was outstanding once again, as were defensemen John Saulic, Dave Oline, and Danny Williams.

Burt Kutruba led the Flyers with two shut-out performances in goal in the Woodfield Hockey League to keep a share of first place. Frank Vavra led the scorers with 2 goals in a 4-0 whitewash of the Hoffman Park District. Brad Henley and Derek Gumpert scored single goals; while Scott Darling with 2, Bobbie Swanson, Mike Thompson, Chris Steed, and Rich Steinhake each contributed assists to round out the point parade.

Next came the competitive Addison A's, who had knocked off the Flyers in their last meeting. This time, however, the defense tightened and a first period goal by Frank Vavra on a low feed from Scott Darling held up all the last few minutes of the game, when Brad Henley and Bobbie Swanson added insurance markers for the 3-0 victory.

On the weekend the Flyer Pee Wees traveled south to Willowbrook to take on a fast skating Saints team, and came home with a hard fought 4-4 tie. Tim Ryan opened the scoring for the Flyers on a breakaway goal after stealing the puck from a Saints pointman on a fine check. The Saints came back for a 2-1 lead in the second period, before a good forechecking job again produced a goal on a breakaway, this time by Frank Vavra. After giving up the lead again early in the third period, Bobbie Swanson led the Flyers back with two goals, one again on a breakaway and the second on a beautiful passing play with Mike Tompkins. Unfortunately the Flyers couldn't quite hold on as the Saints came back for the tie on a screened shot that Buch Kutruba, who had made 25 saves in the game despite a bad ankle and bruised thigh, just couldn't quite come up with.

In League action, the Hoffman Flyer Ban-ts tied the Hoffman Park District 1-1. The tie goal was scored by Mike Brandon, with assists credited to Gerry Mounsey and Tom Sitariski. Defenseman Dave Hart played a strong game at the blue line.

The Bantam Flyers lost to a much improved Addison team 7-3 in League play. Flyer goals were scored by Tom Sitariski and Kevin Fyio. Assisting on Sitariski's goal were Dan Ryan and Mike Brandon. Dave Hundreiser assisted on Fyio's goal.

Ed and Carl put together a plastic cylinder that's going to help keep your rates down.

It's called a vacuum chamber weld tester. It's not too fancy, and it doesn't have any microcircuits or chrome trim, but it could save us more than $100,000 a year.

Ed Steeve, Commonwealth Edison engineer, designed it; Carl Knulson, Assistant Shop Superintendent, helped put it together at our Maywood Technical Center.

The vacuum chamber consists of a short, transparent plastic cylinder that's slightly larger in circumference than the pipe it's testing. We fasten it around the weld, where the leaks are likely to occur, then seal it airtight. The space between pipe and cylinder is then partially filled with a clear liquid (usually water) and a vacuum pump is attached to remove the air. If there are any leaks in the weld, the air from inside the pipe will create a column of telltale bubbles.

It's a simple process, but vitally important. When we put cables in underground pipes, we expect them to last for many years. A pin-hole leak would result in a cable failure, a loss of power, and a loss of valuable man-hours in repair work.

We have been testing welds by other methods, which were time-consuming, and cost as much as $14,000 for every mile of pipe.

But our new vacuum chamber device will do the same job for a fraction of that cost. The money we save will help keep your rates down. And the time we save will give our Commonwealth Edison engineers a chance to do a little more of that valuable experimentation.

Commonwealth Edison
Working for you.

Early sales fail to deflate market; Dow down only .79

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices refused to collapse Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange despite a rash of early sales.

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped seven points at the start, but ended down only 0.79 points at 707.60. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, a broader indicator, gained 0.22 to 78.58. The average price of a NYSE common share advanced by six cents.

Declines topped advances, 799 to 598, among the 1,798 issues traded. Declines led two-to-one earlier in the day.

Volume totaled 16,470,000 shares, compared with 16,120,000 traded Monday. Analysts said trading followed a trend established last year: slowing when prices decline and accelerating in an upswing.

THE EARLY SELLING, caused by investors taking their gains, was considered normal and the late comeback encouraging. The market has made such a strong and broad advance since the first of the year that most analysts said it is due to calm down in profit-taking. Trading during the past two weeks was the heaviest ever.

American Telephone & Telegraph warrants led the actives, unchanged at 1 1/4 on 303,000 traded. The common stock gained 1/4.

Sony, a recent favorite, was the second most active issue of the day, unchanged at 7 5/8 on 102,100 shares.

Polaroid was third most active, up 1 to 21 1/4 on 163,500 shares.

PRICES CLOSED SLIGHTLY lower in light trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share declined one cent. Volume totaled 1,820,000 shares, compared with 1,891,000 traded Monday.

On the Chicago Board Options Exchange, 37,404 contracts were traded, compared with 33,647 Monday. Polaroid April 20s led the actives, up 1/4 to 3 1/4. IBM April 220s followed, up 7/8 to 6 1/4. McDonald's April 40s were third, up 1/8 to 2 1/4.

BESS TRUMAN, widow of President Harry Truman, will be 90 years old Thursday. Still active, she lives alone in the Truman Victorian style house in Independence, Mo., except for daytime help and Secret Service men who watch at night. The picture was taken in 1971. Mrs. Truman refuses to talk about her private life.

Bess Truman

Still active as she nears her 90th

by MARGARET P. RICHARDS

Harry S. Truman often said he wanted to live until he was 90 because he figured it would take him that long to finish his work. He missed his goal by about 10 months but his widow, Bess, will reach it Thursday.

Since the death of President Truman, Bess has lived alone in their 17-room Victorian-style mansion except for daytime household help and Secret Service men who stand watch at night.

In a telephone conversation with this reporter she has known for many years, she laughed happily and frequently while refusing, as usual, to talk about her private life. She remains cheerful and moderately active, despite arthritis, which makes walking uncomfortable.

MRS. TRUMAN said she has no special plans for her 90th birthday but friends plot unobtrusively to make it a special day, at least in small ways. The friends will not talk about specific plans. Like her household help, they guard her privacy.

As usual there will be a bouquet of red flowers from the men who served under "Capt. Harry" in World War I. This year there will be a small change in the tradition.

"We've always sent red carnations," said a member of the thinning ranks of Battery D, 129th Field Artillery. "But we got a letter from one of the men (a retired general) who lives in Florida. He said Bess's favorite flower and Harry's, too, was red roses, not carnations. So this year I guess it will be red roses."

There will be a telephone call from daughter Margaret Truman Daniel in Washington. And there will likely be a cake or two and a big bowl of old-fashioned homemade soup she likes brought in by friends and neighbors.

WHILE MRS. TRUMAN has helped these days to prepare some meals, she still does her own marketing, weather permitting, and is one of the most frequent patrons of the Independence Public Library. Detective stories have long been her favorite.

And she still keeps a weekly beauty shop appointment to get her hair done.

More than 600,000 persons have visited the Truman Library and its courtyard where the President was buried after his death Dec. 26, 1972. But Mrs. Truman's frequent visits are always private.

She no longer drives, but friends say the Secret Service men who took over driving chores and whose presence once seemed to her an invasion of privacy now are friends.

"These young men think a lot of her and she of them," a friend said.

TWO AGENTS who currently stand watch in the house took Mrs. Truman to dinner recently at a local restaurant. The friend said the agents "acted so gentle with her she might have really been their mother. You could tell everybody was having a good time."

Mrs. Truman continues many of the friendships and activities her husband held dear.

When a member of Battery D dies, she sends the Battery Association's condolences in a note of sympathy to the family. The notes are carefully prepared and each contains some personal references.

Mrs. Truman has acquired a franking stamp so she can exercise the free postage privilege of a presidential widow. Her mail goes out marked simply "Bess Truman."

"She still writes a beautiful, firm hand," a member of Battery D said. "Not a bit like the writing of an old person. Her memory is as keen as ever. She's as gracious as ever — the most remarkable woman in Missouri or anywhere else. She does more kindnesses for other people than anyone knows about."

MRS. TRUMAN retains her beautiful penmanship despite the pain of arthritis in her hands.

As with most persons her age Mrs. Truman sees her friends slipping away. She was greatly distressed by the death of Lyndon B. Johnson shortly after her husband's death. A few months ago Edgar Hinde, former Independence postmaster and lifelong intimate of President Truman, died.

On Jan. 19, Thomas Hart Benton, internationally known artist and a dear friend of Truman's, collapsed and died of a heart attack in his carriage house studio in Kansas City.

"Mrs. Truman's immediate concern was for Rita (Benton's widow)," a mutual friend said. "She wondered whether to send flowers or a memorial to the heart association or what. Then she wanted to go see Rita as quickly as possible."

TO SEE Rita Benton meant a 35-mile round trip in January weather.

Mrs. Truman conducts important business affairs with the aid of her attorney, Rufus Burrus. As with other Independence professional men of the Truman era, he was a lifelong family friend. Burrus visits Mrs. Truman every Saturday morning and guards her privacy as zealously as she does, refusing to answer any questions about her.

Mrs. Truman also has the help of Rose Conway, who was Truman's personal secretary from the first day of his presidential administration to the day of his death.

Frail and not yet fully recovered from crushed leg bones suffered in a fall at her home, Rose works three days a week at the Truman Library a few blocks from the Truman family home. She had planned to retire in June 1973, but couldn't bring herself to quit as long as Mrs. Truman needed her.

Under-cover books

by KAY MARSH

To paraphrase an old saying "Candy is dandy, but reading won't rot your teeth." Which is one reason a book is one of the handiest, dandiest Valentines you can give. Choose a collection of love poems, a romantic novel or whatever appeals to you. Then, to make it extra special, stitch up a colorful book cover for it.

These little book covers were best sellers at a bazaar I recently attended. Moreover, they take a minimum of material. One quarter of a yard will make one easily with scraps left over. I bought half a yard of fabric and made three, at a cost of about 33 cents each.

What kind of fabric do you need? For Valentines, you might want to choose material with hearts printed on it, or a gay red and white check. However, any sturdy cotton that appeals to you is suitable.

THESE INSTRUCTIONS, by the way, produce a cover that will fit a standard paperback. You can, of course, alter the dimensions to fit other sizes of books. And you can make covers for other occasions and holidays, or any time you need a "little gift" for someone special.

As for the work involved, you can easily stitch up one of these covers in just a few minutes if you can sew at all. Here's how:

1. Cut one main back piece, 10½x8½ inches. Notch or mark center top and center bottom. (The 10½-inch edges are the top and bottom; the 8½-inch edges are the sides.)

2. Cut two side pieces, 5x8½ inches. Hem one long edge on each piece.

3. Cut one center piece, 5x8½ inches. Hem both long edges and notch or mark center top and center bottom.

4. FOR HANDLES, cut two strips 2x7 inches. Turn two long edges in to meet in center. Fold in middle so raw edges are inside. Top stitch on both long edges. (Note: You can, if you prefer, put right sides together, folding in the middle so you have a strip 1x7", then stitch the two long raw edges together and turn on a pencil. If you prefer this, do top-stitch on both long sides of the turned piece for extra strength.)

5. Lay your back piece down on a flat surface with right side of material facing up. Position handles at each side so that one raw edge is about 2½ inches from the top and the other raw edge of the handle is about 2½ inches from the bottom. Raw edges of handles should be even with raw edges of sides. And be sure that the handles themselves go inside, toward the center. Baste or stitch in place.

6. Keeping right sides together and handles inside, pin or baste on the two side pieces, matching raw edges to raw edges of back piece.

7. KEEPING RIGHT sides together and matching center notches, pin or baste top and bottom of center piece to back piece. (Note: Finished edges of the center piece will overlap the finished edges of the two side pieces.)

8. Allowing ½ inch for seam, stitch all around the four outside edges. Trim corners at slant, and trim seams if desired.

9. Turn entire cover so right sides of all pieces are on the outside.

10. Press cover and insert your pocket paperback book.

In case you ever wondered about Valentine's Day, the celebrations are older than Christianity, but the meaning of them remains essentially the same. The ancient Romans set aside one night a year (the eve of Lupercalia, the feast of the pastoral Roman god Lupercus) for declarations of love, proposals of marriage or the choosing of partners for the coming year. With the coming of Christianity, pagan rites were banned. Love, however, was not, and the early Christians renamed the ritual after St. Valentine, whose feast day fell on Feb. 14.

GAMES OF chance to pair boys and girls continued for centuries after the Christianizing of the pagan rites. Originally, the newly paired couples exchanged gifts, but eventually only the young man gave a gift to his partner.

The English originated the custom of sending cards instead of gifts. In the United States, it was customary to make your own Valentines, either composing your own verses or copying ones you liked from a popular "verse book." It was traditional, too, to put a red seal on the back and have your Valentines hand-delivered by a messenger.

Beginning Friday, Feb. 21, Harper College will open a women's center where women may get together for relaxation, conversation and coffee.

Advising, information and referral service will be available at this new facility.

The women's center, to be known as "A Room of Your Own," is located on the first floor of Building P. The center will be open on a drop-in basis Wednesday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

All women of the community are welcome; they need not be students at the college. Reservations may be made for child care while mothers are at the center.

Mrotek, formerly on the staff of Continuing Education Services in the counseling center at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She holds a master's degree in education from Wisconsin.

"At the outset, I hope women will just drop in for coffee and conversation," said Miss Mrotek. "We will develop activities as ideas and needs are expressed."

"MY FUNCTION will be to see people informally to provide them with support, information and referrals."

"Examples of resource information that will be available in the Women's Center are child care and other family service agencies, information on scholarships for women, placement information and volunteer service possibilities.

"We also hope to have a library from which books may be borrowed, as well as magazines and newspapers appealing to all feminine lifestyles."

The women's center, a cooperative project with College of Lake County, has been funded for one year by an exemplary grant from public service funds of the Illinois Community College Board.

Through the project, the post of Rena Trevor, Harper's coordinator of women's programs, was expanded to full-time. She and Miss Mrotek will assist the College of Lake County in developing women's programs already implemented at Harper College.

Women and children first

Too old to work? The law says no

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

It isn't creating headlines, but something good has been happening in this country that should make every older person from 40 through 64 climb out of the doldrums and start dancing through employment office doors.

What is it? When did this take place? How can I take advantage of the law?

One question at a time, please.

Let's go back to 1969, the year the Age Discrimination in Employment Act was passed. It didn't make waves then, but ripples are now beginning to show. The law applies to private employers of 25 or more workers. Employers must not discriminate against employees 40 to 65.

• Does this mean preferential treatment for the over-40s?

Not at all. It simply means fair treatment for persons in that age group.

• What does the law provide?

Among other things, the law says it's unlawful to discharge or refuse to hire anyone simply because he or she is between 40 and 64. It also applies to discrimination with respect to compensation, terms, conditions or privileges of employment.

• What about unions and employment agencies?

They're included.

• I know we older workers have been discriminated against, but can you give a few examples?

Some companies have been unfair in discharging older workers so that younger ones may be hired at lower wages. It works a great hardship on older workers particularly if they're fired a year or so before they are entitled to receive pensions. There are more subtle ways of discriminating, too. For instance, a case now pending charges that a 50-year-old man was discharged because of his age. He maintains that some employers interviewed him but didn't want him because he was 50 despite the fact that he had a degree in engineering and 25 years experience.

The ad, he says, tried to get around the law by asking for a "junior executive" or "recent college graduate."

• Who handles the age discrimination problem?

The U.S. Labor Dept. and other departments within it.

• Has the Labor Dept. filed many suits so far?

Since 1969, more than 200 law suits have been filed. Complaints and investigations run into the 100,000s. Many have been settled without reaching court. Others are still pending.

• Can you mention a few cases in point?

In 1974, Standard Oil of California agreed to give $2 million in back pay to 160 former employees and to rehire 120 of them. Some of the other 40 were ill, others had reached beyond the age limit.

Earlier, in 1972, the largest age discrimination settlement involved the Pan Am World Airways in which they were ordered to pay $250,000 to 29 former employees.

• How do the states stand on this question so far?

Some states have already adopted similar legislation and others are considering or working on the problem.

• Is this all there is to the Age Discrimination law?

No. There's a great deal more. I've only touched on the subject to get you acquainted with it.

• What can I do if I feel I've been discriminated against because of my age?

I'd either contact the Equal Opportunity Employment Office or I'd find a lawyer who specializes in this field.

• Have you any idea of how many persons this law may affect?

There are some 38 million workers between 40 and 64 or about 40 per cent of the total U.S. labor force.

• Since the law doesn't include anyone over the age of 64, what is being done about those over the age limitation?

At least one man has filed a suit. He's a 70-year-old attorney with the Chicago Office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. In a new twist, he's taking the government to court! The department acknowledges the fact that he is above average in ability and physically able.

In support of his claims, the American Medical Association has filed an amicus brief (friendly, but not a party to the suit) in which they cite a gerontological social study. The AMA said, "Workers between 60 and 75 are not only proving to be capable of working in many occupations, but they also actually excel younger persons because of their superior judgment, experience and safety performance."

Let's try to remember that Benjamin Franklin was 84 when he wrote his appeal to Congress for slavery abolition, that Mark Twain and Jules Verne were over 70 when they produced their best work.

It doesn't make sense for science to try to extend the life span and then for us to treat the results of its efforts as outcasts. Every person is entitled to be judged by standards of intellectual and physical competence and experience rather than as a member of an arbitrarily controlled age group.

Cottage cheese like Mom used to make

Dear Dorothy: Do you have a recipe for making cottage cheese? —Mrs. Steve Yourk

This query certainly brought back a lot of memories. When I was a youngster (about a hundred years ago, it now seems), there was often a bag of cheese-cloth containing cottage cheese hanging from the kitchen faucet, draining. It's one recipe I do remember — but checked with two old cookbooks to be sure. My mother let milk sour in a covered container in a warm place until there was a separation of the curd and whey. This was poured into a double-strength cheesecloth bag and hung until all the whey had drained. This was then put into a bowl, lightly salted, then refrigerated. It meant we were going to have some of her wonderful blintzes — a red-letter day.

Dear Dorothy: The elasticized tops of my panties wear out long before the panties. Is there some way to tighten this part? Seems such a waste to have to throw them away before they're worn out. —Anne Ringo making a casing, then use fresh elastic. Or you can buy panties that have the casing already with loose elastic. Then you can put in fresh elastic whenever needed.

You can turn that loose part back,

Dear Dorothy: The wheel of my tank-type cleaner fell off, and my husband twisted it on with some wire. It worried me as the angle could scratch the carpet, but it performed so beautifully I hated to think of buying a new machine. Don't know what prompted me to call the repair service, but what a lucky call. They put on two new wheels with a new angle bar — for under $5. —Shella Morton

A Paddock review

'My Father' superb theater

by PAT ADAM

"I Never Sang for My Father" is community theater at its finest; perfect casting, superb acting, excellent set, flawless directing and a play that captivates both emotions and intellect.

Masque and Staff opened its production of the Robert Anderson drama at Dempster Junior High last weekend and will present it again this Friday and Saturday. 'Tis a pity they cannot do so in a real theater because their production deserves the best of surroundings, but I hope play-lovers will pack the Dempster gym anyhow because they'll be missing something if they don't.

The play itself is a poignant, sensitive study of a man torn by guilt because he can't love his father, yet he must and tries without success to build something between himself and his crotchety, self-centered parent. The playwright has portrayed old age and middle age so truly and vividly that most likely every viewer will recognize something of his own parents, grandparents or self in its characters.

MASQUE AND STAFF couldn't have cast it better. Art Hassel and Bob Johnson as father and son are so in character one could believe they are really what they pretend to be, even knowing better.

The rest of the cast, down to those with the fewest lines, are just as excellent. Shirley Johnson has done a masterful job of directing these players.

Lola McKelvey plays the mother who enjoys close rapport with her son and loves her dominating husband despite his exasperating ways. Her death forces the son to do something about his relationship to the father. Mrs. McKelvey convincingly conveys the woman's gentleness and the physical annoyances of growing old.

Something of that same gentleness is seen in the son, a widower who'd like to marry again but who knows what his leaving would mean to the old couple. He wants to be a dutiful, loving son, yet his own needs cannot be denied. It's the kind of character that Bob Johnson depicts so well.

ART HASSEL'S portrayal of the father is outstanding. The measured walk of the elderly, the repetitious phrases, the telling and retelling of earlier experiences and accomplishments . . . these ring so true. I found myself moved by the "old man" despite his contentiousness and more sympathetic to the son than to the daughter, played by Karen Knudsen.

Deeply hurt by her father when he banished her for marrying a Jewish man, the daughter tries to view the situation practically. Her father has taught her there is no way to avoid the ugliness of life, if he's given her nothing else. What are they to do about their father now he is a widower? But her efforts at rational discussion end as they apparently always have, the father in a temper fit and the daughter hurt again.

Finally, even the son walks away. But he can never forget his father.

OTHERS IN THE cast, all excellent, are James Dean as the railroad station porter, Jan Hurley as the Irish waitress, Sandy Rode as the nurse, Chris Trafford as the minister, Guy Kowalski as the funeral parlor director and Pat O'Dea as the doctor.

Comment should be made on the set, an extraordinary one. It's multi-purpose because there are 18 scenes in the two acts. These changes are accomplished with only a few well chosen props suggestive of the setting. A blue-lighted back-drop and aptly selected music set the play's mood to perfection. I do think the set's effectiveness would have been increased by compressing it on the sides — the Dempster stage seems unduly wide for this type of set. But this is a minor flaw.

One hint that might help the coming weekend performances. I overheard an audience comment that she wished the actors would speak a little more loudly. This is too good a play and too good a production to have anything missed.

For those planning to catch "I Never Sang for My Father," the ticket number is 437-0679.

Driver errors cause accidents

Driver errors are the major cause of highway accidents, according to studies of automobile accidents completed for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

One study found that human errors were solely responsible for 57 per cent of crashes analyzed. In an additional 30 per cent blame was placed on driver mistakes compounded by weather conditions. Thus, errors by motor vehicle operators contribute to 87 per cent of accidents. Vehicle failures accounted for about 5 per cent.

Alcohol was found to be a significant causative factor. Drivers who were drunk, or who had been drinking, comprised only 14 per cent of the motorists studied but were cited as being to blame for 91 per cent of the crashes in which they were involved.

Local dealers enjoy sales upswing

by LINDA FISCHER

It's unanimous! Auto dealers in the northwest suburbs all report a noticeable upswing in business since manufacturers initiated national rebate programs.

Local dealers have witnessed a tremendous jump in showroom traffic, especially on weekends, and up to a 500 per cent increase in sales.

"The rebates have added an air of excitement to the auto business," Jim Cass, owner of Cass Ford in Des Plaines, summarized. "The programs have created an interest in 1975 models, and people have been coming to dealerships to inspect and buy."

Floor traffic has quadrupled at Roto Lincoln-Mercury in Arlington Heights, while Spradlin Chevrolet in Park Ridge has noted "at least" a doubling of traffic.

More traffic has also meant more sales for dealers, and they report January sales are much better than a year ago.

Joe Fallon, president of Fallon Ford in Arlington Heights, said his sales have been "fantastic. We're up 500 per cent since the rebate began."

His success story is echoed by other dealers. Bill Kelly, president of Martin Kelly Oldsmobile in Arlington Heights, said that as of Jan. 24, they had sold more autos than in the entire month of January, 1974.

Sales are up 40-50 per cent in Jim Whalen Ford in Elgin and have doubled at Marshall White Ford in Niles. Ray Campbell, vice president, said they had sold 36 cars one weekend in January — compared with approximately 18 before the rebate.

"This January was the largest in sales of any January since we opened in 1967," said Harry Schmerler, president of Schmerler Ford in Elk Grove Village. A salesman at Tom Todd Chevrolet in Wheeling had his best day in 20 years one January Saturday early in the rebate program, related Bill Bechtle, sales manager.

Local sales figures reflect the upturn in national sales reported by the manufacturers. Mid-January auto sales nationally were up more than 41 per cent from early January which gave the major automakers a good boost toward meeting sales levels of a year ago.

Chrysler Corp., which started the rebate concept in mid-January, features one Dodge model and one Chrysler model each week for a rebate up to $400. Another rebate of $100 is available for persons trading in one of two specified car makes during the "car clearance carnival."

Ford Motor Company's proposal offers up to $500 rebates on models of Ford Pinto, Maverick and Mustang, and Mercury Comet. General Motors listed rebates up to $500 on Chevrolet Vega, Nova, and Monza 2 Plus 2; Pontiac Astre and Ventura; Oldsmobile Omega and Starfire; and Buick Apollo, Skylark and Skyhawk.

American Motors also joined the rebate parade with $200 to $600 back on Gremlin, Hornet and Matador models.

Local dealers are having the greatest success with the small rebate models; in several cases, dealerships have sold out of some of those types.

Seventy-five per cent of the sales at two Ford dealerships — Fallon Ford and Whalen Ford — have been in the small car area. As Warren Lattot, general manager of Lattot Chevrolet in Arlington Heights, put it, small car sales are "booming" compared to recent months.

But most dealers are also experiencing an increased market for mid-size and full-size models not under the rebate plans. "The rebates are serving as a motivation; when people get to see a car dealer, they end up buying what they really want," said Keith Totten, general manager of Roselle Ford in Roselle.

Or, as Ron Sullivan, sales manager of Sullivan Pontiac in Arlington Heights, said, "People have resigned themselves that manufacturers will give nothing on the big cars, so they're going ahead and buying them."

Getting cash in hand is a good reason to buy an auto this month, but several dealers stressed other points which have also contributed to the increased sales volume.

The rebate program was just the incentive that hesitant buyers needed to new car sales manager for Hoskins Chevrolet in Elk Grove Village.

Not to be overlooked as reasons to buy are the manufacturers' claims for better fuel economy with the 1975 autos. One Chevrolet dealer quoted an estimated $396 savings in maintenance costs in 24 months for an average driver in this area.

Some local dealerships have instituted individual programs to attract customers in addition to the national rebate cam-

'People are looking'

Non-Big Four dealerships have also enjoyed an increase in sales lately, and attribute it indirectly to the rebate programs.

"The rebates have stimulated interest in new cars in general," said Don Halsoma, general manager of Koske Import Motors in Palatine. "People are looking at all kinds of autos."

Halsoma noted a 40 per cent increase in sales the end of January, with the dealership offering a $400 rebate on a 1974 Austin Marina and stressing the good gas mileage of the Fiat.

Des Plaines Mazda general manager Joe Wilson said he had had a 30 per cent increase in sales the end of January. He and other dealers are still selling 1974 models, since the 1975 lines will not be on the market until March or April.

November and December sales at Volkswagen of Des Plaines have more than doubled the previous year's totals, and sales in 1975 are continuing in that vein, related president Bob Vorreyer. One of his big sellers has been the new Rabbit, credited with 38 miles to the gallon. The dealership is also offering some rebates on discontinued models.

prompt them into action. "In general, we've noticed a change in consumers' attitudes," said Leo "Babe" Abrahamson of Abrahamson Chrysler-Plymouth in Highland Park. "Now they are really interested in buying."

Part of the consumer's philosophy change can be credited to the federal government. "Good news and positive action from Washington have made people's attitudes better today," said Bill Kelly.

Bill Haeger, owner of Des Plaines Chrysler-Plymouth cited three factors he feels have kept people from buying cars previously — the energy crisis, inflation and the higher priced cars, and recession. "We must gain consumer confidence. People just can't stop buying cars because so much of the economy depends on the auto industry."

Another factor in the rush to buy cars now is the state of the used car market. "Used cars are as strong as they have ever been," noted Jim Cass, "so the cash difference of a new car is smaller."

Plus, with dealers having large inventories, buyers are in a good position to get a better deal, added John Porcelli, paign. Dick Roto, president of Roto Lincoln-Mercury, gave cash rebates from $200 to $400 on selected used cars.

Northwest Dodge in Des Plaines followed the Chrysler carnival theme with an all-night sale-a-thon with popcorn, balloons and a wheel of fortune. One salesman sold a car at 4 a.m. that night, related sales manager Steve Rashkov.

The big question for dealers now is what happens after Feb. 28 when the rebate programs end. Several hope the factories will continue some type of rebate plan, even in abbreviated form. But indications from the manufacturers are that there will be no more rebates.

The natural pattern of auto sales shows an increase in February and March, according to Joe Mitchell, general manager of Mufich Buick in Mount Prospect. So he expects auto sales to keep escalating, however slowly.

Another optimistic dealer is Don Ladendorff, president of Ladendorff Oldsmobile in Des Plaines. He sees continued improvement for the automobile market even after the rebates are over, "provided things continue positively on the general market and with the economy."

GENERAL MOTORS engineers have "fool proofed" the fuel intakes on 1975 autos to guard against the wrong fuel getting into the tank. First (top, left) the warning "Unleaded Fuel Only" will be on the access door. In addition, the new type of fuel filler neck (bottom, left) is smaller in order to fit. A new type of threaded fuel filler cap (top, right) features a ratchet tightening device to reduce chances of its being improperly installed and allowing vapors to escape. The difference between new and old fuel tank filler openings and fuel filler nozzles (bottom, right) will stop an attempt to use the larger nozzles in the new filler.

1975 models stress fuel economy

What's new in the 1975 models? This year manufacturers are stressing technological changes which improve fuel economy.

The most talked about new piece of equipment is the catalytic converter, the auto industry's answer to government pollution regulations.

Under the 1970 Clean Air Act, manufacturers had to reduce the hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide content of auto exhaust by 90 per cent this year. The converter meets this requirement and, according to various estimates, improves fuel economy by 3 to 13 per cent.

Basically, the converter is a little chemical plant that screens the harmful exhaust emissions and changes them into carbon dioxide and water vapor.

Converters use either spherical pellets or a honeycomb-like cylinder base composed of alumina which is treated with the catalysts — platinum and palladium. These catalysts promote chemical reactions without being affected by them. The device, according to manufacturers, should last the 50,000 miles required by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The converters, as mandatory equipment on most 1975 autos, also signal a switch to unleaded gasoline, required to keep the converters in top working order. Leaded fuel will not hurt the car, the EPA says, but the pollutants will not be eliminated.

The impending introduction of the converters in 1975 models prompted the EPA regulation last summer that oil companies provide an unleaded fuel to gas stations which annually sell more than 200,000 gallons of gasoline.

The unleaded fuel, besides keeping the converter running smoothly, will also increase the life of spark plugs and exhaust system parts resulting in lowered maintenance costs.

Fewer maintenance stops for the 1975s will help offset the higher prices for the required unleaded fuel. Unleaded runs about two cents a gallon more than the leaded version. Plus, car owners will be paying about $150 for the converter in the initial purchase price.

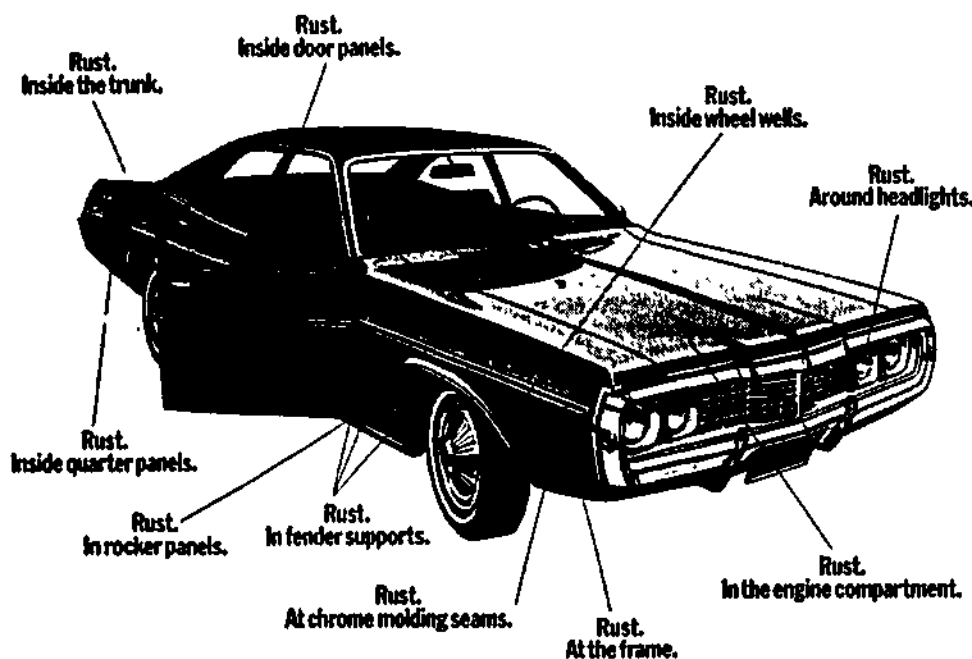

Besides the catalytic converter, auto manufacturers have taken other steps to make the 1975 autos more economical and increase the time between tuneups. American Motors, for example, has extended its recommended tune-up schedule from 15,000 miles to 30,000 miles.

Electronic ignition systems are now standard on most models, and many have new gas-saving 6-cylinder or smaller 8-cylinder engines. Improved carburetors and an early fuel evaporation system are standard in many cases.

Numerous components — among them windshields and grilles — have been made lighter to reduce the weight of an auto and help mileage. On the safety side, steel belted radials are becoming standard equipment on more and more models, while increased glass area and wider door openings aid drivers and passengers.

Flexible front ends and energy absorbing bumpers are also standard on '75 autos.

10 reasons why you should never let a car dealer rustproof your car.

We could give you more reasons, but you get the idea.

Your car dealer just doesn't have the know-how, spray tools, trained technicians or sealant to do the job.

Unless all the hidden, boxed-in areas of your car are rustproofed, you're likely to see rust spots on the outside in a couple of years.

Bring your new car to Ziebart Rustproofing. We've got nine patented spray tools to get inside all those hidden, boxed-in areas. And we coat every inch of vulnerable metal with a unique sealant that's attracted to metal, and actually creeps into welded seams.

If you're about to buy a car, give us a call before you see your dealer. We'll give you the whole rustproofing story.

Did you know...

The average age of U.S. cars in use is nearly 5.7 years.

California led the nation in new vehicle registrations in 1972 with nearly 996,000 passenger cars and 268,000 trucks.

Owing to the wide range of makes, models and options open to new car buyers, it is possible that no two cars turned out in any model year are exact duplicates.

Over 72 per cent of all passenger cars being built are equipped with air conditioning.

The U.S. produced 31.7 per cent of the world's automobiles in 1972.

The two-door hardtop is the largest selling passenger car body type.

Thirty-six of the 50 U.S. states have major facilities of automobile manufacturers located within their boundaries.

Amber front turn signals for automobiles were found to be more visible than previous white ones during motor vehicle industry tests. Laws were changed in 25 states to permit national use.

More than 98 per cent of all person-trips are taken in a motor vehicle.

Eight out of every 10 commuting workers travel between home and work in either a passenger car or truck.

Tune-ups can save money

How long since you had a tune-up? According to the Car Care Council, neglected engines emit up to five times more pollutants than mechanically healthy engines, besides consuming more gas to do the job.

Regular checking and servicing of spark plugs, points, condenser, timing and anti-pollution hardware can cut down on pollution and save money.

Owner's manual contains facts, tips

You've heard it said — when all else fails, read the instructions!

If you've ever tried to put together a child's bike, fire engine, doll house or some toy that arrives in about 99 pieces, you must know how true this is. Who needs instructions? That's what you think until you run into a snag.

Of course your new car comes all assembled, but the operation and maintenance call for instructions and they are all neatly categorized in that most important little booklet you'll find in the glove compartment. It's the Owner's Manual, and according to service writers at the various dealerships, it's one of the most unread booklets ever published.

When was the last time you looked at your Owner's Manual?

Take the advice of the manufacturer and the dealer where you purchased the car, and the salesman who handled the sale — if you do not read this booklet you are passing up some solid money-saving, car-saving opportunities. Bear in mind these two facts: The auto maker has already sold you, this far. There is no advertising pitch in the booklet, other than the manufacturer's hope that you will abide by the instructions and thus be satisfied with the vehicle.

You will be surprised at how much information is crammed into this manual. Besides general operating and maintenance instructions some booklets even contain minor repair hints. Your new car warranty is also therein and is definitely on the "must read" list.

The owner's manual will never make the best seller list, but you'll have to admit the price is right!

Night driving more dangerous

When the sun goes down — the accident rate goes up.

More than three times as many drivers get killed at night than during the daytime.

They get killed because they can't see, or because they see too late, or because other drivers can't see them. And sometimes they get killed because they fall asleep. Many fool themselves into thinking they can safely drive as fast at night as they do in the daylight.

Then there are other hazards. You've probably read about them from time to time, but their importance validates repeating them here:

As you grow older, your night vision decreases. A driver at age 40 needs more light than a person of 20. And at age 60 he needs considerably more light.

Drunk drivers are more common at night, and you must have heard or read that more than 50 per cent of all highway fatalities involve a drinking driver.

Secondary roads are loaded with hazards and call for extra nighttime caution. Unmarked curves, blind intersections, narrow bridges and ragged or soft shoulders.

Stalled, parked and unmarked cars, with taillights off, are much harder to see at night.

Some drivers will always tend to follow too closely. This is dangerous during the day, and doubly so at night. Let the tailgaters pass.

Pedestrians and animals are more difficult to see at night. If you must drive at night — you must. But if you have a choice, drive during the day.

"I'd like to show you the best auto insurance plan available."

"Hello, I'm your local Safeco agent. I represent Safeco because it offers an auto insurance plan tailored to the individual. And one of the best things about Safeco protection is that it usually costs less."

"Safeco has long been known for fast, fair claims service. But not enough drivers are aware just how competitive Safeco prices are."

"I offer Safeco because Safeco really has something to offer! If you'd like to know all the details, drop by my office or simply give me a call."

Care for lights

Are your fellow drivers flashing their lights at you? Improperly aimed or burned-out headlamps are distracting and dangerous to other motorists. The Car Care Council urges your checking headlights and taillights regularly for condition and proper aim.

We're in business to make friends. And money.

You, as a consumer, can make or break a business. Since we opened our doors in 1971, over forty thousand people like yourself have had the opportunity to go thumbs-down on Woodfield Ford.

Like so many other retail businesses, we're on trial everytime someone passes through our doors. 80 hours a week. 360 days a year. Whether they buy anything or not. And dealing with thousands of people a year, we have more than a handful of opportunities to create an army of enemies in a business that's already infiltrated with a lot of justified ill-will.

All you're looking for as a customer is the best possible price on a good car, with warranty protection, backed up with a fast, dependable service department that won't gouge your pocketbook.

And all we're looking for is customers who can understand that's exactly what we're here for — to eliminate the headaches of buying and maintaining a car, at a reasonable profit. Thankfully, we've been blessed with thousands of customers who have experienced just that.

We want your business because we can make money by keeping you happy. If we're providing a genuine service to you, other people will hear about it, and we can only get better at what we do best. You're a satisfied customer. We're a successful business.

At Woodfield Ford, that's not a dream. That's an ambition.

We thank you

Our many friends, employees and customers for helping us to win the Ford Motor Company 1972 Distinguished Achievement Award and the 1972 Distinguished Service Citation in our very first year.

These 1972 Awards place Woodfield Ford in Schaumburg in a truly unique category. The awards are granted annually to the top 15% of the Ford dealerships in the nation.

Woodfield Ford is proud of their accomplishments and will endeavor to maintain the high standards of dealership operation that won them these coveted awards.

(Distinguished Service Citation)

"In recognition of total excellence in customer service..."

In recognition of progressive dealership management, modern sales and service facilities... sound merchandising practices... high quality standards, and continuing interest in rendering superior service to Ford owners.

For your convenience we honor Master Charge, BankAmericard and Carte Blanche

Motor vehicle travel increases

Motor vehicles traveled an estimated 1,335 billion miles in the United States during 1973 — a 53 per cent increase over the preceding year, the Federal Highway Administration reports.

Passenger cars accounted for 78 per cent of the total travel, trucks 20 per cent, and buses and motorcycles made up the balance.

The largest share of travel — 54 per cent — was logged on urban streets and arterial roads.

According to the latest available figures, buses register the highest annual average miles covered per vehicle with 12,553; trucks average 12,229 miles, while the typical passenger car records 10,184 miles yearly. The average for all motor vehicles is 10,370.

Over half of auto trips are less than 5 miles

Billions of auto trips are made every year, but surveys indicate that 54 per cent are less than five miles and nearly three-quarters less than 10 miles, according to the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association. Less than one per cent of trips by car involve one-way travel of 100 miles or more, yet such trips account for 17 per cent of total vehicle miles traveled. Passenger car mileage in 1973 totaled 1 023 trillion miles.

Trips of 15 miles or less make up 87.5 per cent of the total number of trips but account for only 43.6 per cent of miles traveled.

Of all passenger car trips, nearly 37 per cent are made in earning a living including 32.3 per cent traveling to and from work and another 4.4 per cent on business related to work. Family business, such as visits for medical and dental treatment and shopping trips, account for more than 31 per cent of trips while social and recreational use provide for some 22 per cent.

The average commuter by car travels 9.4 miles to work in an estimated 18 minutes. Trips to see doctors or dentists are slightly shorter but at 8.4 miles are still nearly twice as far as the average trip to shop of 4.4 miles.

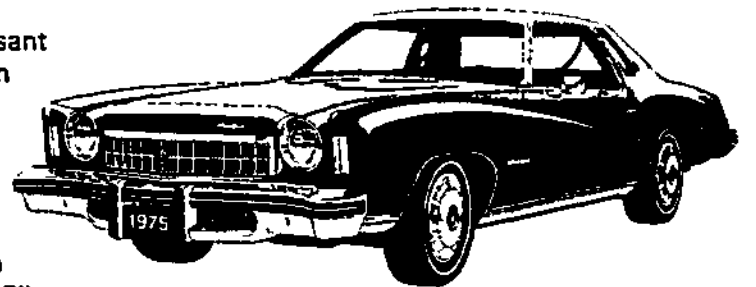

Cars remain the favorite method for Americans to see their country with the average vacation trip totalling just over 330 miles. Visits to friends or relatives average 12 miles in each direction while an average pleasure ride runs to 20 miles each way.

Trips for educational, civic or religious purposes account for 9.4 per cent of the total and average 4.7 miles.

Northwest Community to build new wing

Hospital officials hope to break ground next month for 20-bed intensive-care facility

Officials of Northwest Community Hospital announced plans Tuesday for a new intensive-care wing and expressed hope they would be able to start work within a month.

The wing, to be located on the south side of the main building facing Central Road, would have 20 beds and life-monitoring and support devices for critically ill patients. The wing is part of the hospital's expansion program, financed through the sale of a $20.5 million bond issue backed by the Village of Arlington Heights.

The new wing would increase the hospital's capacity to 600 beds. The officials said that, while a review of growth plans is being considered, the 600-bed facility would adequately serve the area. They said, however, plans for Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke Medical Center in Schaumburg could affect plans for further growth.

Plans for the $16 million Schaumburg hospital have been under way for several years, but have not received final approval from the state. That hospital is expected to have 160 beds and expand to a maximum of 400. Schaumburg officials approved zoning for the hospital site at Schaumburg and Barrington roads last week.

MEANWHILE, Northwest Community Hospital is now completing work on a nine-story addition to the main hospital building as part of the expansion program. The intensive-care wing was part of the growth package presented to Arlington Heights trustees when they agreed to issue the bonds, a hospital spokesman said.

The latest plans were presented to the plan commission Tuesday by hospital attorney William R. Kucera and administrative vice president Burton Chotiner.

Kucera and Chotiner asked for permission to begin digging the foundation before approval of the project is granted by the village. They said the unusual procedure would represent savings in construction costs, which they said are rising about 1 per cent a month.

Chotiner said if the hospital could start to "dig the hole (for the foundation)" while still going through the approval procedure, the hospital would be able to curb inflation of the construction costs. He said the digging could start in "three to four weeks," with village authorization.

PLAN COMR. Lewis O'Donnell said the commission only makes recommendations to the village board and start-work authorization would have to come from the trustees.

He said such action "is out of our bailiwick" and because "this is all in the family," village regulations and rules would have to be closely followed.

Under the bonding agreement, the village is the technical owner of the hospital and has a lease-back arrangement with the hospital's board of directors, who retain policy-making authority. After the 20-year life of the bonds, the hospital would be sold back to its board of directors for $1.

Chotiner said the hospital wanted to appear before the trustees as soon as possible for the granting of approval to start the foundation. He said the hospital is "committed to abide by the rules of the village."

The subcommittee agreed to schedule hospital officials to appear before the plan commission March 5 to give village departments time to study the plans and comment.

Kucera said hospital officials would seek to appear before the trustees March 3 to get permission to start work on the foundation early.

Some trustees favor disclosure

Passolt objects to release of village-government study

by JOE FRANZ

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt said Tuesday he is opposed to disclosure of a consulting firm's study of village government.

Three of four trustees contacted by The Herald, however, said they favor disclosure of the results with some exceptions.

The study, being conducted by Yarger and Associates, Falls Church, Va., is almost finished and recommendations probably will be presented to the village board in about two weeks.

"I don't think it's a good thing to have the results and recommendations blasted all over the newspapers," Passolt said. "But it's not up to me, it's a board decision."

Trustees indicated they didn't object to releasing the report, as long as comments on specific employees are omitted.

"In my opinion, the taxpayers and public have a right to see the report since they're paying for it," said Trustee John Koepfen. "I don't know how we can keep them from seeing it."

Trustee Ronald Bruhn said, "People have a right to see what problems the village has. I think it should be an open report."

BRUHN AND KOEPFEN, however, said they are not sure they would approve the release of matter that is critical of the performance of specific village employees.

"I'm not sure how I would feel about the release of derogatory remarks regarding certain individuals," Koepfen said. "I would hope if such material is released the newspapers would use discretion."

"We don't want to embarrass anyone," Bruhn said, "so the answer might be to withhold anything pertaining to a specific person."

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said although he does not object to releasing the report, he thinks the village board's decision will depend on the recommendations. "It will all depend on what is in the context of the report," he said.

TRUSTEE ALBERT LANG said he is not sure if he will vote to make the report public. "I would like to see it made public, but I won't make any decision until I read it and digest what's in it."

Trustees Donald Jackson, William Hein and Edward Berger could not be reached for comment. Officials from Yarger and Associates also could not be reached.

Prospect parents want students to go to Hersey

A group of Prospect Heights parents, calling for "equal rights for all students," has petitioned the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education to allow all students in their neighborhood to attend Hersey High School in Arlington Heights.

The parents are from an area along Mandel Lane between Willow and Camp McDonald roads which was shifted last year from Hersey's attendance area to that of Wheeling High School.

Students attending Hersey, however, were allowed to stay and younger children in their families also will be allowed to go to Hersey. Parents of children who have no older brothers or sisters at Hersey and now must go to Wheeling are charging district policy discriminates against them.

The board agreed Monday to look into the problem by directing district administration to determine the number of students affected and report back to the board. The board, however, offered the parents little hope that their request would be granted.

Board Pres. Jack Costello said he didn't want to give the impression that by studying the issue, the board would change its policy on boundaries.

The board appeared firm against putting any more students into Hersey which is slightly over capacity. Wheeling is slightly below its optimum attendance level.

PARENTS WHO appeared at the meeting to complain that the board's policy of allowing families to continue to attend the same school is "splitting up" their neighborhood seemed receptive to one board member's suggestion that all stu-

Ordered to leave for Sandstone Friday

by BARRY SIGALE

Former Des Plaines physician Dr. James G. Middleton was ordered Tuesday to begin serving an 18-month sentence in a federal prison for violation of federal firearms and explosives regulations.

U.S. District Court Judge James B. Parsons told Middleton, 48, to report Friday to federal authorities at Sandstone, Minn., after reducing the doctor's original four-year sentence.

The judge's ruling came minutes after he turned down Middleton's request for a new trial. The order came as a surprise to Middleton who said he was assured by Parsons he would not have to begin his sentence until he had exhausted all his appeals on a separate state conviction of deviate sexual assault.

James G. Middleton

PARSONS APPARENTLY agreed to the reduction in sentence because of the hardship Middleton contends it would cause his wife, Margaret, and because Middleton's record has been clean since his conviction on the charges in February 1972.

The sentence may be appealed, Middleton said, but his attorney, Federal Defender Jean Kamp, said the process probably would be futile.

"I'm afraid we'd just be spinning our wheels," she told the couple outside the Federal Building courtroom in Chicago. Parsons originally sentenced Middleton.

Miss Kamp said there was no evidence that Middleton ever used or intended to use any explosives and that he never posed any danger to anyone. Probation is appropriate.

Middleton and his wife were dazed when they heard Parsons' decision. "It's not the worst thing in the world... but I don't like it," said Middleton, who had offices at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines. "I'm not looking forward to this vacation, but I'm not going to set any duration record."

MIDDLETON WAS relieved when he heard he would be eligible for parole in six months and would be able to return to his wife by September. "Is she going to fall apart? No, she's not going to fall apart. And neither am I," he said.

Middleton was convicted on charges resulting from a raid on his office Dec. 1, 1970, by Sheriff's Police. Investigators discovered pipe bombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and what were described as bizarre sexual devices.

The exact charges were possession of material which could be assembled into a destructive device and possession of a tear gas pen gun that did not have a serial number and was not registered.

Passolt to review Plum Creek plans

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt has been instructed to review plans for the Plum Creek apartment project to see if they meet village building standards.

The village board this week ordered Passolt and the village staff to examine plans for the apartments, under construction northeast of Hintz and Wolf roads, Wheeling Township.

"What we're going to do is look at the areas where the project does not meet our codes and decide which can be corrected and which cannot," Passolt said Tuesday. "We will see which areas are critical and then see if anything can be done to correct the problems."

Passolt said after the project is reviewed, he and the staff will meet with the developer to see if an agreement can be worked out.

BECAUSE CONSTRUCTION already has begun, he said, the developer probably will be unable to make changes in some areas. "There are some deficiencies that already are built and obviously can't be changed," Passolt said.

"But we're going to look at it and talk to the developer and then decide if we want to annex the property despite the deficiencies," he said. "At this point we aren't sure what we want to do."

The 14-acre Plum Creek project will consist of 200 condominium apartments.

Several months ago, officials told the developer, James DiPietro, that the village would not annex the project unless several changes were made to bring it into compliance with village ordinances.

As a result of the village's resistance, the developer decided not to seek annexation to Wheeling and obtained county building permits. After construction began, village officials decided to reconsider the development and renew talks of possible annexation to the village.

DiPietro said he still is interested in annexing to Wheeling and is willing to make some changes in the plans to make that possible. He also said, however, that some changes will be impossible because the project is partially complete.

FOR EXAMPLE, the height of the buildings is three to four feet higher than village ordinances permit and cannot be modified. Village officials have cited deficiencies in the water lines on the site, but those also are already complete.

Passolt said the project may not provide enough parking spaces or water retention and that village officials will push to get the developer to conform. "We feel there is room for changes in these areas," he said.

At the time annexation talks were suspended, members of the plan commission objected to the density of the project. Since that time, however, the Plum Creek density has been reduced by 23 units which brings it into near compliance with the village regulations.

Award $105,078 contract for pool work

The Prospect Heights Park District Tuesday night awarded a contract of more than $100,000 to Dolphin Pool Co., Chicago, to renovate the swimming pool at Lions Park, Camp McDonald Road and Elm Street.

The $105,078 contract includes an unspecified amount for a gutter system to be installed by Whitten Co., Massachusetts, which flew four members of the park board to the East Coast last November to inspect gutter systems.

The park commissioners traveled by commercial airlines, at Whitten's expense, at a cost of at least $640 for transportation.

BOARD PRES. Max Lyle said the board opted for the Whitten system because of its safety and attractiveness.

The swimming pool project is part of a $1.1 million parks improvement program which also includes the construction of a community center and sports complex adjacent to the pool. The improvement program was approved in a referendum last June.

The new pool also will be equipped with six new starting platforms to be used in swim competitions.

The contract package does not include a whirlpool which was included as part of the pool renovation plans. The whirlpool will be discussed at another time, commissioners said.

CHANCES OF the pool project being finished in time for the 1975 swimming season are "slim," Lyle said. Renovation could be hastened by further negotiation with the building contractors, Lyle said.

The park district is making arrangements for summer swimming at another pool. Park officials are currently negotiating with the Wheeling Park District to use its pool. Arrangements also are being made for the Prospect Heights swim team, Lyle said.

The Dolphin pool and Whitten system was one of two bids made for the project. The other bid was submitted by Paragon Pools which uses a gutter system manufactured by Paddock Co. The Paragon package was more than $10,000 higher, park officials said.

Junkyard rejected for Lake County

The Lake County Board rejected a developer's request Tuesday to build a junkyard in Vernon Township near Buffalo Grove.

The board of commissioners voted down the request 18 to 0.

Developer Eugene Potempa requested permission for an auto-scrap and metal-salvage yard on four acres near Aptakisic and Weiland roads.

Cranston Byrd, chief of planning and zoning for the county, said the yard would have been large enough to store 400 autos.

The proposal drew formal objections from Buffalo Grove officials who were concerned about access and traffic problems, along with noise pollution and chemical spillage problems they say would have resulted.

Byrd said a number of area residents also raised objections to the yard.

The county's zoning board of appeals recommended the project's denial. Earlier, the planning and zoning commission returned a favorable recommendation.

Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said Tuesday he was "absolutely delighted" by the county action.

Vehicle-sticker deadline to remain at Feb. 15

Wheeling officials have decided to keep the Feb. 15 deadline for displaying 1975 vehicle stickers despite the recent decision by the state to extend the license plate deadline to March 1.

The decision not to change the deadline was made by Village Mgr. George Passolt and announced Monday by Village Clerk Evelyn Diens.

The state license plate deadline was extended because of delays in processing applications.

Motorists who do not display village stickers by midnight Saturday can be fined $5, as well as being required to purchase a sticker at regular price.

Village residents can purchase the stickers at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd. The cost of the stickers is $10 for cars and $6 for motorcycles. Senior citizens can purchase them for $3.

Mrs. Diens said the village hall will be open until 9 p.m. Friday and from 8:30 a.m. to noon Saturday to give residents additional opportunity to purchase the stickers.

But others groaned at the proposal, suggesting such a move would merely touch off a round of complaints from a group of people pleased with boundary policies.

THE PROBLEM of boundary disputes has been virtually a constant problem in the district as rising attendance and addition of schools has forced areas in and out of school-attendance areas as many as three times in less than five years.

Since 1971, the area of Prospect Heights in question has been a part of Wheeling High School, then was switched to Hersey, then returned to Wheeling last year.

ONE SUGGESTION that virtually could eliminate the district's yearly boundary problems would be to implement relaxed policies that would allow students more of a choice as to which district school they will attend.

The open-transfer policy, because of present attendance levels, is not feasible now, but may be a possibility in the future when district attendance is expected to drop, said Supt. Edward Gilbert.

Gilbert said an open-transfer policy is not actively being considered, but "it looms ahead in one to two years." Gilbert estimated about 400 students probably would take advantage of such a policy.

Gilbert says he expects to handle about 150 transfer requests this year.

An open-transfer policy would be subject to some refinement, especially in the area of athletics, said Gilbert. Under an open-transfer policy, the district could theoretically field an all-star team in any sport, made up of the best district athletes transferred to one school.

Youth satisfactory after car-truck crash

A 17-year-old Buffalo Grove youth was admitted in satisfactory condition Tuesday to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines after a car-truck accident on Milwaukee Avenue in Wheeling.

The youth, Daniel Lawyer, 17, of 616 Raupp Blvd., Buffalo Grove, went through the windshield of his car, sustaining facial cuts and a possible concussion, police said.

The driver of the truck, Cruz Moreno, 33, of 14 Grove Dr., Wheeling, was uninjured, police said.

The truck had been stopped to make a turn into Wheeling Auto Parts, 141 141 S. Milwaukee Ave., when it was struck from behind by Lawyer's car, authorities said. Police charged Lawyer with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident. He will appear in circuit court March 14.

The accident occurred shortly after 3 p.m.

MSD must cover tanks or move plant to get funding

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The Metropolitan Sanitary District has been required to cover huge settling tanks at its proposed Des Plaines sewage plant or move the plant to receive state or federal funding.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday it will not certify the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant for construction funds unless the sanitary district agrees to cover open-air tanks or ponds "which are sources of odor" or possible disease — or to move the plant away from established residential areas.

The state position was disclosed in a letter from Daniel J. Goodwin, manager of the planning and standards section, to Harland Hirt, who holds a similar position with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Deputy Director Jeffrey Diver of the Illinois agency said Goodwin's letter reflects the official position of the state EPA.

GOODWIN SUGGESTED in his letter that the MSD might be able to avoid the estimated $30 million cost of covering the tanks by moving the plant from the southeast corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road across the Northwest Tollway to an isolated area the MSD owns and has slated for future use as the site of a combined sewage reservoir.

Des Plaines Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, who lives in the area of the Oakton-Elmhurst site, said, "It will now be very difficult for the MSD to justify the additional expenditure of over $45 million to purify the air at the Oakton-Elmhurst site rather than building the plant on the more remote site southwest of Elmhurst and the tollway."

"It is ironic that this is the same site Des Plaines asked the MSD to consider over nine years ago," Ward said.

THE ALDERMAN said only neutral agencies such as the Illinois or U.S. environmental protection agencies could have made the 'truly impartial judgment on the site question' announced Tuesday.

He said his $45 million estimate of the cost to prevent odors and disease at the current site was predicated on his belief that the MSD would have to find ways to filter the air coming from under the covers.

DES PLAINE'S Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said he was pleased with the EPA announcement. "It certainly is what the City of Des Plaines has been requesting and we hope they will do that (cover the tanks) or agree to move the plant," Behrel said.

MSD officials declined comment.

Behrel said he would go along with the state in letting the sanitary district build the plant large enough to treat 72 million gallons of sewage per day. The mayor said while he has not studied the detailed engineering on the plant capacity, he wants the plant large enough that Des Plaines won't have to have raw sewage dumped into streams, as was the case in Streamwood and Hanover Park.

THE STATE LETTER said that while 72 million gallons per day may be too large for the rate of growth projected in the area, it would not be worth added costs to delay the plant construction to redesign the plant for a smaller capacity.

But the state agency's letter said the sanitary district can't even begin to plan any expansion of the plant to treat 96 million gallons per day without first justifying the expansion to the state if it wants any federal or state money to pay for the expansion.

Goodwin's letter said "We (the state EPA) share with you and your staff (the federal EPA) considerable reservation about the (sanitary) district's choice of site for this facility in view of the proximity of the site to an established residential neighborhood."

GOODWIN SAID the MSD must be certified by the state EPA to get federal or state money to pay 75 per cent of the cost of the $95 million plant.

Goodwin said in his letter and told The Herald that the state agency reserves the right to change its mind on any requirements if there is additional information provided in a federal impact statement which would change the agency's views.

But Goodwin indicated it would take major new facts to change the state agency's position.

In addition to listing the siting change or tank-covering requirements, Goodwin said the state agency would require the MSD to screen the plant on the north and east with landscaping if the plant is built at Oakton and Elmhurst.

If THE MSD moves the plant to a more remote area "it is conceivable these requirements (for landscaping and covering tanks) can be relaxed somewhat." (Continued on Page 3)

Council expected to reject proposal

Home inspections unlikely, says Behrel

by STEVE BROWN

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said Tuesday he does not think the city council will support a residential home-inspection program proposed in a preliminary community development task-force report.

The task force, which is preparing the city's application for the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act funds has developed a program costing about $25,000 that would involve some residential inspections to help prevent blight and deterioration.

"I am against going into residential areas," Behrel said at his regular weekly press conference. He said the city has faced a problem resulting from conversion of large houses into rooming houses for years.

He said detecting the conversions is difficult and questioned the city's ability to get homeowners to remove certain improvements, such as extra kitchen facilities, that allow the rental of houses to several tenants.

WHILE QUESTIONING the code - enforcement provisions of the preliminary application, Behrel said he did support the proposal to become involved in the federal government's rental-subsidy program.

The city cannot use any of the $2.5 million it stands to receive in the next six years for construction of housing for low- and moderate-income families. But it can express an interest in a rental subsidy for apartments in existing complexes. Under the program, the owner of the property would contract with the federal government to rent no more than 25 per cent of the complex to low- and moderate-income families.

SOME CITY OFFICIALS have said the rent limits set by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development may be too low to allow suburban apartments to qualify for the program. Behrel said HUD Regional Director John Waner has been working to increase the rent limits, which range from about $150 for studio apartments to $190 for two-bedroom units.

Behrel said if the city council approves the grant application and the companion housing-assistance plan, the city probably will have to canvass property owners to determine if they would be interested in the program.

The mayor declined to predict what the city council's final action on the application and task force report might be. He said the council was sharply divided when it voted to approve a move to establish the task force. The council probably will vote on the application Tuesday.

THE TASK FORCE has slated a meeting for 8 p.m. Thursday to review the comments made at a public hearing last week during which eight of the 12 speakers suggested the city not become involved in the program. It is expected the task force will prepare a recommendation for the city council during that session.

Trust fund established for five Zilligen orphans

A trust fund has been established for the five Des Plaines children orphaned Friday by an apparent murder and suicide in Mount Prospect.

The trust fund has been set up for the children of Gary and Virginia Zilligen by officials of the Messiah Lutheran Church, Park Ridge. The children range in age from nine to 14 years.

Virginia Zilligen, 36, of 970 Rose Ave., Des Plaines, was slain in a shooting about 11 p.m. Friday at 7 N. Main St., Mount Prospect. Police said Mrs. Zilligen was shot twice in the back and once

Police said Gary Zilligen, 40, of 4289 W. Palmer St., Chicago, was found nearby, shot in the head. Police said the wound apparently was self-inflicted. The couple reportedly was separated.

No inquest date has been set yet by the coroner's office.

Persons who wish to contribute to the trust fund should make their checks payable to the Messiah Lutheran Church — Zilligen Children Fund. Contributions should be sent in care of the church, 1605 Vernon Ave., Park Ridge, Ill. 60068.

Ordered to leave for Sandstone Friday

by BARRY SIGALE

Former Des Plaines physician Dr. James G. Middleton was ordered Tuesday to begin serving an 18-month sentence in a federal prison for violation of federal firearms and explosives regulations.

U.S. District Court Judge James B. Parsons told Middleton, 48, to report Friday to federal authorities at Sandstone, Minn., after reducing the doctor's original four-year sentence.

The judge's ruling came minutes after he turned down Middleton's request for a new trial. The order came as a surprise to Middleton who said he was assured by Parsons he would not have to begin his sentence until he had exhausted all his appeals on a separate state conviction of deviate sexual assault.

James G. Middleton

his conviction on the charges in February 1972.

The sentence may be appealed, Middleton said, but his attorney, Federal Defender Jean Kamp, said the process probably would be futile.

"I'm afraid we'd just be spinning our wheels," she told the couple outside the Federal Building courtroom in Chicago. Parsons originally sentenced Middleton.

Miss Kamp said there was no evidence that Middleton ever used or intended to use any explosives and that he never posed any danger to anyone. Probation is appropriate.

Middleton and his wife were dazed when they heard Parsons' decision. "It's not the worst thing in the world... but I don't like it," said Middleton, who had offices at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines. "I'm not looking forward to this vacation, but I'm not going to set any duration record."

MIDDLETON WAS relieved when he heard he would be eligible for parole in six months and would be able to return to his wife by September. "Is she going to fall apart? No, she's not going to fall apart. And neither am I," he said.

Middleton was convicted on charges resulting from a raid on his office Dec. 1, 1970, by Sheriff's Police Investigators discovered pipe bombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and what were described as bizarre sexual devices.

The exact charges were possession of material which could be assembled into a destructive device and possession of a tear gas pen gun that did not have a serial number and was not registered.

Mount Prospect Park District

New tax asked to redo greenhouse

by LYNN ASINOF

Voters in the Mount Prospect Park District this spring will be asked to approve a special tax levy to renovate and operate the greenhouse at Friendship Park near Algonquin Road at Janice Street, Des Plaines.

The issue will appear on the April 1 park ballot as a result of a resolution approved Monday at the park board.

The tax levy, which is not to exceed 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, could bring the park district a maximum of $110,000 for greenhouse operations. Assistant Park Director Thomas T. Tayler, however, said the park district does not expect to use the full levy power.

"All we want is the authority to develop a budget for $25,000 to $30,000 to run the thing," Tayler said saying figures on greenhouse operation are not available. He said if voters do not approve the levy, the park district will have to "be digging into our present budget and cut back."

TAYLER ESTIMATED the greenhouse is worth about $200,000. He said it will cost about the same amount to renovate it as it would to tear it down. "We're stuck with it," Tayler said.

Officials said the full 5-cent levy, which would raise annual taxes by $5 for a house with an equalized assessed value of $10,000, probably would not be needed. The district is more likely to levy only 1 or 2 cents per $100, they said.

THE PARK DISTRICT has been exploring renovation of the greenhouse since December. Tayler said it has been difficult to get specifications on the renovation, and therefore is uncertain what the greenhouse will cost the taxpayer.

The greenhouse is to be used for park and school programs. Groups from the Mount Prospect Garden Club and High School Dist. 214 have been working with the park district to develop programs.

Although the park district has owned the greenhouse property since 1970, the former owner only recently vacated the building and adjacent house. He was renting the property from the district.

Tayler said he expects more information to be available in about two weeks. He said this information will be made available to the public in an effort to educate voters on the tax-levy proposal.

Larger quarters sought for state job agency

City officials are trying to help the Illinois Employment Service in Des Plaines move to larger offices and avoid problems which have developed because of recent overcrowding.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said he has been working with officials from the local office, which processes unemployment checks, to obtain the use of a building formerly occupied by Craftwood Lumber, 815 Lee St.

Behrel said the increasing number of unemployed persons has caused several problems for the city.

He said the state has hired about 30 additional persons to work in its office at 601 Lee, which has cut down on the number of parking spaces available for local shoppers.

THE MAYOR said a number of downtown merchants have complained about the situation. The state office has been processing about 800 claims a day in recent weeks.

Behrel suggested that the state shift some of its operation to offices it has rented at the corner of Pearson and Elmhurst streets. That space, however, is being used by another division of the state employment service.

The mayor said Deputy Fire Chief David Wolf voiced concerns about conditions in the agency's Lee Street office, but said there was not much the city could do about the overcrowding situation.

He said Marvin Martin, a city health inspector, checked the offices recently and that several persons waiting in line there grabbed him thinking that he was trying to sneak to the head of the lines.

"Sometimes tempers get a little short," Behrel said.

HE SAID THE local unemployment officials have sought the city's support in its efforts to get additional funds to move into larger offices.

In another development related to the unemployment situation, Behrel said he was glad to see that Des Plaines residents were hired by the Forest Preserve District as part of a federal program to provide jobs for the unemployed.

The city turned down $78,000 in federal funds last month, because Behrel said he was opposed to hiring persons on a short-term basis. He said he believed the county had more work to be done and said the city would have probably had to create work to give new workers something to do.

Parks candidate petitions OK

Nominating petitions filed by Comr. Rosemary Argus for the Mount Prospect Park District are apparently safe from a challenge by candidate William Hickey.

Hickey challenged Mrs. Argus' petitions Monday night, charging that 23 persons who signed her petitions also signed the nominating petitions of incumbent William Selep. He said these signatures are invalid because the petition forms state all signers must certify they have not subscribed to any other candidate's petition.

State law, however, says that "each voter may subscribe to one nomination for such office to be filled, and no more."

A spokesman at the county election department said this means that residents can sign petitions for as many candidates as there are open seats.

"A voter may sign a petition for more than one candidate as long as there is more than one to be elected for that particular office," the spokesman said.

PARK ATTY. William Ward, however, said he is referring the matter to the county officers electoral board. He said the board will "have a hearing on it shortly and determine if the objection is valid."

Ward said the electoral board probably will receive the objection today with a hearing scheduled next week.

Hickey is one of three candidates challenging Mrs. Argus and Selep for the two available six-year board seats. Other candidates include Richard P. Coleman and Theodore Pandak.

Victor M. Rose, a Mount Prospect resident, is the only candidate for the four-year board seat vacated with the death of Roland C. Becker.

Mrs. Argus and Selep are the only candidates from the Des Plaines section of the park district, with the others coming from Mount Prospect.

Northwest Community to build new wing

Hospital officials hope to break ground next month for 20-bed intensive-care facility

Officials of Northwest Community Hospital announced plans Tuesday for a new intensive-care wing and expressed hope they would be able to start work within a month.

The wing, to be located on the south side of the main building facing Central Road, would have 20 beds and life-monitoring and support devices for critically ill patients. The wing is part of the hospital's expansion program, financed through the sale of a $20.5 million bond issue backed by the Village of Arlington Heights.

The new wing would increase the hospital's capacity to 600 beds. The officials said that, while a review of growth plans is being considered, the 600-bed facility would adequately serve the area. They said, however, plans for Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke Medical Center in Schaumburg could affect plans for further growth.

Plans for the $16 million Schaumburg hospital have been under way for several years, but have not received final approval from the state. That hospital is expected to have 160 beds and expand to a maximum of 400. Schaumburg officials approved zoning for the hospital site at Schaumburg and Barrington roads last week.

MEANWHILE, Northwest Community Hospital is now completing work on a nine-story addition to the main hospital building as part of the expansion program. The intensive-care wing was part of the growth package presented to Arlington Heights trustees when they agreed to issue the bonds, a hospital spokesman said.

The latest plans were presented to the plan commission Tuesday by hospital attorney William R. Kucera and administrative vice president Burton Chotiner.

Kucera and Chotiner asked for permission to begin digging the foundation before approval of the project is granted by the village. They said the unusual procedure would represent savings in construction costs, which they said are rising about 1 per cent a month.

Chotiner said if the hospital could start to "dig the hole (for the foundation)" while still going through the approval procedure, the hospital would be able to curb inflation of the construction costs. He said the digging could start in "three to four weeks," with village authorization.

PLAN COMR. Lewis O'Donnell said the commission only makes recommendations to the village board and start-work authorization would have to come from the trustees.

He said such action "is out of our bailiwick" and because "this is all in the family," village regulations and rules would have to be closely followed.

Under the bonding agreement, the village is the technical owner of the hospital and has a lease-back arrangement with the hospital's board of directors, who retain policy-making authority. After the 20-year life of the bonds, the hospital would be sold back to its board of directors for $1.

Chotiner said the hospital wanted to appear before the trustees as soon as possible for the granting of approval to start the foundation. He said the hospital is "committed to abide by the rules of the village."

The subcommittee agreed to schedule hospital officials to appear before the plan commission March 5 to give village departments time to study the plans and comment.

Kucera said hospital officials would seek to appear before the trustees March 3 to get permission to start work on the foundation early.

MSD must move plant or cover tanks

by ANNE SLAVICEK

The Metropolitan Sanitary District has been required to cover huge settling tanks at its proposed Des Plaines sewage plant or move the plant to receive state or federal funding.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday it will not certify the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant for construction funds unless the sanitary district agrees to cover open-air tanks or ponds "which are sources of odor" or possible disease — or to move the plant away from established residential areas.

The state position was disclosed in a letter from Daniel J. Goodwin, manager of the planning and standards section, to Harland Hirt, who holds a similar position with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Deputy Director Jeffrey Diver of the Illinois agency said Goodwin's letter reflects the official position of the state EPA.

GOODWIN SUGGESTED in his letter that the MSD might be able to avoid the estimated $30 million cost of covering the tanks by moving the plant from the southeast corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road across the Northwest Tollway to an isolated area the MSD owns and has slated for future use as the site of a combined sewage reservoir.

Des Plaines Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, who lives in the area of the Oakton-Elmhurst site, said, "It will now be very difficult for the MSD to justify the additional expenditure of over $45 million to purify the air at the Oakton-Elmhurst site rather than building the plant on the more remote site southwest of Elmhurst and the tollway."

"It is ironic that this is the same site Des Plaines asked the MSD to consider over nine years ago," Ward said.

THE ALDERMAN said only neutral agencies such as the Illinois or U.S. environmental agencies could decide.

Village gives 10 acres to park district

The Elk Grove Village Board Tuesday night approved a resolution turning over 10 acres west of Ill. Rte. 33 to the Elk Grove Park District.

The land represents a donation from Centex Homes Inc., which gave the land to the village last September in accordance with the village's requirement that builders donate a portion of the site they propose to develop as open space.

Centex owns 900 acres west of Rte. 53 and has been meeting with village officials to discuss development plans for the area. The board has already approved plans for construction of 320 houses for 102 acres of the site in the Winston Grove subdivision.

IN OTHER ACTION the board authorized partial payment to the J. Marich &

Sons Inc. Co., Lemont, for construction work on the water main extension along Arlington Heights Road from Brantwood Avenue to Elk Grove Boulevard.

The $51,692 payment represents a substantial share of the total project cost of $76,066. Village officials said all that remains to be done on the project is complete landscaping work.

The water main extension has already passed pressure tests and officials said the main is being chlorinated.

AN AMENDMENT to an ordinance authorizing the number of full-time fire department personnel was approved. The amendment reduces the number of fire engineers in the department from two to one. The department will still maintain one chief, three captains, 12 lieutenants and 32 firemen for a total of 69.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis said the results of the special census completed in October have been forwarded to the village.

Willis said the census shows the village population unchanged at 25,303; the number of dwelling units up 16 per cent in two years to 7,546; about half the population under 21 and the median age of village residents, 25.3 years.

Trustee Nanci Vanderweel called a meeting of the transportation committee for 7:30 p.m. Monday to discuss the latest contract proposal for village dial-a-ride bus service from the Davidsmeyer Bus Co.

Details of the proposal were not available. The village contract with the bus company for the service expires Feb. 28.

Ordered to leave for Sandstone Friday

18-month jail sentence for Middleton

by BARRY SIGALE

Former Des Plaines physician Dr. James G. Middleton was ordered Tuesday to begin serving an 18-month sentence in a federal prison for violation of federal firearms and explosives regulations.

U.S. District Court Judge James B. Parsons told Middleton, 48, to report Friday to federal authorities at Sandstone, Minn., after reducing the doctor's original four-year sentence.

The judge's ruling came minutes after he turned down Middleton's request for a new trial. The order came as a surprise to Middleton who said he was assured by Parsons he would not have to begin his sentence until he had exhausted all his appeals on a separate state conviction of deviate sexual assault.

James G. Middleton

PARSONS APPARENTLY agreed to the reduction in sentence because of the hardship Middleton contends it would cause his wife, Margaret, and because Middleton's record has been clean since his conviction on the charges in February 1972.

The sentence may be appealed, Middleton said, but his attorney, Federal Defender Jean Kamp, said the process probably would be futile.

"I'm afraid we'd just be spinning our wheels," she told the couple outside the Federal Building courtroom in Chicago. Parsons originally sentenced Middleton.

Miss Kamp said there was no evidence that Middleton ever used or intended to use any explosives and that he never posed any danger to anyone. Probation is appropriate.

Middleton and his wife were dazed when they heard Parsons' decision. "It's not the worst thing in the world... but I don't like it," said Middleton, who had offices at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines. "I'm not looking forward to this vacation, but I'm not going to set any duration record."

MIDDLETON WAS relieved when he heard he would be eligible for parole in six months and would be able to return to his wife by September. "Is she going to fall apart? No, she's not going to fall apart. And neither am I," he said.

Middleton was convicted on charges resulting from a raid on his office Dec. 1, 1970, by Sheriff's Police. Investigators discovered pipe bombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and what were described as bizarre sexual devices.

The exact charges were possession of material which could be assembled into a destructive device and possession of a tear gas pen gun that did not have a serial number and was not registered.

Committee to hear proposal

Changes of 4 schools' borders urged

Proposed boundary changes affecting children in four schools in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 will be presented Thursday to the board of education's building and sites committee.

The Dist. 54 administration is recommending changes in the boundaries of Hanover Highlands and Fox Schools in Hanover Park, MacArthur School in Hoffman Estates and Link School in Elk Grove Village. The changes are scheduled to take effect in September.

The boundary changes are made possible by a new school and additions to two other schools. Stevenson School will open next fall on Volkner Street, south of Nerge Road and east of Meacham Road. Additions will be completed next fall on Einstein School, 1111 Laurie Ln., Hanover Park; and Muir School, 1973 N. Kensington, Hoffman Estates.

RON RUBLE, assistant superintendent for personnel and transportation, said the administration is recommending that students living in the Schaumburg Green apartment complex and in the Centex subdivision south of Nerge Road in Elk Grove Village be moved to the new school. Most of these students now attend Link School.

It also is recommending that students living on Park View Lane in Hoffman Estates be transferred from MacArthur School to Muir School.

Students living north of Irving Park Road in Hanover Park may be moved to Einstein School, according to the proposed boundary change. These students attend Hanover Highlands and Fox schools. The change includes students living in the Hanover Square and Larkspur subdivisions and student living west of Kingsbury Drive.

RUBLE SAID the recommendations will be presented to the committee at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Dist. 54 administrative offices, 804 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg. The meeting is open to the public.

Ruble said the committee will present the boundary changes to the board of education and the board probably will hold a public hearing on the matter as it has done in the past.

Hansen may run for school board

Jay Hansen, former president of the teachers' union in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, said Tuesday he is considering running for the Dist. 54 Board of Education in the April 12 election.

Hansen, president of the Schaumburg Education Assn. last year, was critical of the current board, saying it tends to "perpetuate the status quo" and sometimes tends to "obscure what is really going on in the school from parents."

He said he would run on "strictly an educational platform" if he decides to enter the race. Hansen is a mathematics teacher at Frost Junior High School, Schaumburg.

Hansen said a seat on the board would not be a conflict of interest even though he is employed by the district. If elected, he said he would abstain from voting on all board resolutions that would affect him directly.

Although teachers rarely run for boards of education in their own districts, Hansen said his candidacy would not be prohibited by law. He said he checked with an attorney and found no provision in the Illinois School Code that prohibits teachers from becoming board members.

HANSEN STRESSED that his candidacy still is undecided. He plans to attend law school next year and hopes to continue teaching in Dist. 54 during the day. He said he doubts he would have enough time to commit to board of education matters.

Hansen has been teaching in Dist. 54 for seven years. He lives in Village in the Park in Schaumburg.

Four seats are open on the Dist. 54 board in the election. The first day for filing nominating petitions for the board is Feb. 26. Two members of the Dist. 54 board, Dr. Edgar Feldman and Arelen Czajkowski, have said they will seek to retain their seats. Board Pres. Gordon Thoren has said he will probably not run for reelection.

Cover tanks or lose funds, MSD told

ronmental protection agencies could have made the "truly impartial judgment on the site question" announced Tuesday.

He said his $45 million estimate of the cost to prevent odors and disease at the current site was predicated on his belief that the MSD would have to find ways to filter the air coming from under the covers.

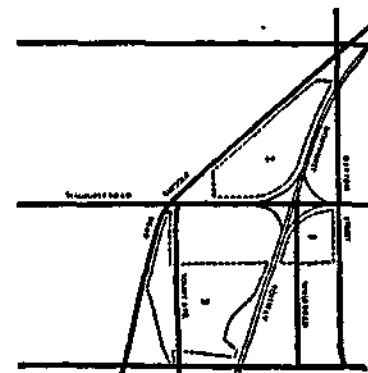

DES PLAINE'S Mayor Herbert H. Behr said he was pleased with the EPA announcement. "It certainly is what the City of Des Plaines has been requesting and we hope they will do that (cover the tanks) or agree to move the plant," Behr said.

MSD officials declined comment.

Behr said he would go along with the state in letting the sanitary district build the plant large enough to treat 72 million gallons of sewage per day. The mayor said while he has not studied the detailed engineering on the plant capacity, he wants the plant large enough that Des Plaines won't have to have raw sewage dumped into streams, as was the case in Streamwood and Hanover Park.

THE STATE LETTER said that while 72 million gallons per day may be too large for the rate of growth projected in the area, it would not be worth added costs to delay the plant construction to redesign the plant for a smaller capacity.

But the state agency's letter said the sanitary district can't even begin to plan any expansion of the plant to treat 96 million gallons per day without first justifying the expansion to the state if it wants any federal or state money to pay for the expansion.

Goodwin's letter said "We (the state EPA) share with you and your staff (the federal EPA) considerable reservation about the (sanitary) district's choice of site for this facility in view of the proximity of the site to an established residential neighborhood."

GOODWIN SAID the MSD must be certified by the state EPA to get federal or state money to pay 75 per cent of the cost of the $95 million plant.

Goodwin said in his letter and told The Herald that the state agency reserves the right to change its mind on any requirements if there is additional information provided in a federal impact statement which would change the agency's views.

But Goodwin indicated it would take major new facts to change the state agency's position.

In addition to listing the site change or tank-covering requirements, Goodwin said the state agency would require the MSD to screen the plant on the north and east with landscaping if the plant is built at Oakton and Elmhurst.

IF THE MSD moves the plant to a more remote area "it is conceivable these requirements (for landscaping and covering tanks) can be relaxed somewhat and perhaps eliminated," Goodwin wrote to the federal agency.

While saying current evidence of any health risks is "very weak," Goodwin said his agency would reserve the right to add health-control requirements if further evidence comes to light.

Despite the need to keep from overloading the North Side sewage plant in Skokie, which treats Northwest suburban sewage, and the need for an end to overflows of combined sewage into streams, Goodwin said the state agency is "unwilling to allow state or federal grant funds to be applied to a project which may unnecessarily impose a negative impact on the integrity of the community in which it is located."

For that reason the state EPA wants the plant moved or the design improved if the plant is kept at the current site, Goodwin said.

Woman, 21, may have suffered heart attack

An inquest will be conducted by the County Coroner's office into the death of an Elk Grove Village woman Monday after an auto accident in Chicago.

Margaret Gorman, 21, of 595 Laurel St., died after an accident on N. Delphia Street. Chicago police said they did not believe her death resulted from injuries suffered in the accident, but possibly from a heart attack.

Police said Miss Gorman was southbound on Delphia when her car veered right, hitting two parked cars. No date has been set for the inquest.

Northwest Community to build new wing

Hospital officials hope to break ground next month for 20-bed intensive-care facility

Officials of Northwest Community Hospital announced plans Tuesday for a new intensive-care wing and expressed hope they would be able to start work within a month.

The wing, to be located on the south side of the main building facing Central Road, would have 20 beds and life-monitoring and support devices for critically ill patients. The wing is part of the hospital's expansion program, financed through the sale of a $20.5 million bond issue backed by the Village of Arlington Heights.

The new wing would increase the hospital's capacity to 600 beds. The officials said that, while a review of growth plans is being considered, the 600-bed facility would adequately serve the area. They said, however, plans for Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke Medical Center in Schaumburg could affect plans for further growth.

Plans for the $16 million Schaumburg hospital have been under way for several years, but have not received final approval from the state. That hospital is expected to have 180 beds and expand to a maximum of 400. Schaumburg officials approved zoning for the hospital site at Schaumburg and Barrington roads last week.

MEANWHILE, Northwest Community Hospital is now completing work on a nine-story addition to the main hospital building as part of the expansion program. The intensive-care wing was part of the growth package presented to Arlington Heights trustees when they agreed to issue the bonds, a hospital spokesman said.

The latest plans were presented to the plan and subdivision subcommittee of the plan commission Tuesday by hospital attorney William R. Kucera and administrative vice president Burton Chotiner.

Kucera and Chotiner asked for permission to begin digging the foundation before approval of the project is granted by the village. They said the unusual procedure would represent savings in construction costs, which they said are rising about 1 per cent a month.

Chotiner said if the hospital could start to "dig the hole (for the foundation)" while still going through the approval procedure, the hospital would be able to curb inflation of the construction costs. He said the digging could start in "three to four weeks," with village authorization.

PLAN COMR. Lewis O'Donnell said the commission only makes recommendations to the village board and start-work authorization would have to come from the trustees.

He said such action "is out of our bailiwick" and because "this is all in the family," village regulations and rules would have to be closely followed.

Under the bonding agreement, the village is the technical owner of the hospital and has a lease-back arrangement with the hospital's board of directors, who retain policy-making authority. After the 20-year life of the bonds, the hospital would be sold back to its board of directors for $1.

Chotiner said the hospital wanted to appear before the trustees as soon as possible for the granting of approval to start the foundation. He said the hospital is "committed to abide by the rules of the village."

The subcommittee agreed to schedule hospital officials to appear before the plan commission March 5 to give village departments time to study the plans and comment.

Kucera said hospital officials would seek to appear before the trustees March 3 to get permission to start work on the foundation early.

Panel to hear proposal

Administration urges school border shifts

Proposed boundary changes affecting children in four schools in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 will be presented Thursday to the board of education's building and sites committee.

The Dist. 54 administration is recommending changes in the boundaries of Hanover Highlands and Fox Schools in Hanover Park, MacArthur School in Hoffman Estates and Link School in Elk Grove Village. The changes are scheduled to take effect in September.

The boundary changes are made possible by a new school and additions to two other schools. Stevenson School will open next fall on Volkaner Street, south of Nerge Road and east of Meacham Road. Additions will be completed next fall on Einstein School, 1111 Laurie Ln., Hanover Park; and Muir School, 1973 N. Kensington, Hoffman Estates.

RON RUBLE, assistant superintendent for personnel and transportation, said the administration is recommending that students living in the Schaumburg Green apartment complex and in the Centex subdivision south of Nerge Road in Elk Grove Village be moved to the new school. Most of these students now attend Link School.

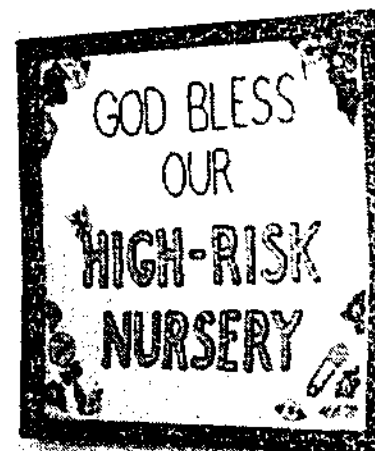

It also is recommending that students living on Park View Lane in Hoffman Estates be transferred from MacArthur School to Muir School.

Students living north of Irving Park Road in Hanover Park may be moved to Einstein School, according to the proposed boundary change. These students attend Hanover Highlands and Fox schools. The change includes students living in the Hanover Square and Larkspur subdivisions and students living west of Kingsbury Drive.

RUBLE SAID the recommendations will be presented to the committee at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Dist. 54 administrative offices, 804 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg. The meeting is open to the public.

Ruble said the committee will present the boundary changes to the board of education and the board probably will hold a public hearing on the matter as it has done in the past.

State funds OK'd for high-risk nursery in area

SHELLY SANTOS of Arlington Heights, held by her mother, Sally, is one of the premature babies treated at the high-risk nursery at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge. The nursery is not only bigger, but the state has agreed to help eligible parents pay their baby's high medical bills. Story on Page 11.

Woodfield 76 gains rezoning approval

Woodfield 76, the proposed massive metro-center, received the approval Tuesday night of the Schaumburg Village Board despite a trustee's warning of no control over the construction phases.

The village board voted 5 to 1 to rezone the 237-acre parcel north of the Woodfield Shopping Center. Trustee Herbert Almer, who cast the dissenting vote, said the village should require approval of the development by phases as is demanded of planned-unit developments.

Before considering the rezoning request, the board unanimously approved the "planned metro" zoning district ordinance and annexation of the land at Golf Road and Ill. Rte. 53.

Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher left the room during discussion of the development because he had been involved in preliminary discussions with the developer and indicated he did not want to influence the vote.

Almer said his "chief concern is that we have no control over what will be built, where and how."

He said that although a land-use plan was submitted, restricting certain types of development for portions of the property for the first phase of development, the board was adopting concepts rather than specific plans.

He said the residential area could be built and the commercial area plan fall through, leaving Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 with a heavy load of students without commercial tax benefits.

Planned for the $250-million metro center are 3,500 residential units, commercial and recreational space and a 640-room Hyatt convention hotel. Developers are Bennett and Kahnweiler Associates, Chicago; the Pritzker family of the Hyatt International Corp.; and Union Oil Co. of California.

Jack Siegel, village attorney, said, "From the start we were not treating this (metro center) as we would treat PUD's."

Trustee Raymond Kessell said the whole plan was interrelated and that the understanding was that one section would not be constructed without the other.

The first phase for 104 acres is planned to be developed over a 20-year span and the remaining 133 acres, now containing the Union Oil headquarters, would be developed in a similar way in the second 20-year phase.

18-month jail sentence for Middleton

by BARRY SIGALE

Former Des Plaines physician Dr. James G. Middleton was ordered Tuesday to begin serving an 18-month sentence in a federal prison for violation of federal firearms and explosives regulations.

U.S. District Court Judge James B. Parsons told Middleton, 48, to report Friday to federal authorities at Sandstone, Minn., after reducing the doctor's original four-year sentence.

The judge's ruling came minutes after he turned down Middleton's request for a new trial. The order came as a surprise to Middleton who said he was assured by Parsons he would not have to begin his sentence until he had exhausted all his appeals on a separate state conviction of deviate sexual assault.

James G. Middleton

his conviction on the charges in February 1972.

The sentence may be appealed, Middleton said, but his attorney, Federal Defender Jean Kamp, said the process probably would be futile.

"I'm afraid we'd just be spinning our wheels," she told the couple outside the Federal Building courtroom in Chicago. Parsons originally sentenced Middleton.

Miss Kamp said there was no evidence that Middleton ever used or intended to use any explosives and that he never posed any danger to anyone. Probation is appropriate.

Middleton and his wife were dazed when they heard Parsons' decision. "It's not the worst thing in the world... but I don't like it," said Middleton, who had offices at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines. "I'm not looking forward to this vacation, but I'm not going to set any duration record."

MIDDLETON WAS relieved when he heard he would be eligible for parole in six months and would be able to return to his wife by September. "Is she going to fall apart? No, she's not going to fall apart. And neither am I," he said.

Middleton was convicted on charges resulting from a raid on his office Dec. 1, 1970, by Sheriff's Police. Investigators discovered pipe bombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and what were described as bizarre sexual devices.

The exact charges were possession of material which could be assembled into a destructive device and possession of a tear gas pen gun that did not have a serial number and was not registered.

Village board wrapup Jaycees, GOP get temporary liquor licenses

Temporary liquor licenses were granted by the village board Monday to the Hoffman Estates Jaycees and Republican Party for fund-raising events.

The Jaycees were given approval for the license for the annual carnival to be held in the Golf-Rose Shopping Center June 23 to 29.

The Republicans were given a temporary liquor license for a campaign dinner dance planned in the Moon Lake Village recreation building April 5. GOP spokesman Glenn Hoffman said in the past a license has not been needed because the dance was held in facilities which served liquor. The dance will be held to raise campaign funds for the GOP's ticket running for three seats on the village board April 15.

In response to a question from Trustee Edward Hennessy, Village Atty. Edward Hofert said the Republican board members would not be voting a conflict of interest by voting in favor of the license. He said the vote would be the same as if the trustees granted a temporary license to any organization to which they might belong.

Lawsuit settlement OK'd

The village board also voted to accept a settlement of a 1973 lawsuit involving the Windermere subdivision in South Barrington.

The suit was filed by the small subdivision against the Centex-Winston Co. and the Meridian Co., both owners of land surrounding the subdivision which lies immediately west of the Winston Knolls subdivision in Hoffman Estates.

The Windermere Homeowners Assn. filed suit when water, diverted from the two companies' land parcels, flooded the subdivision. Settlement of the suit provides that the two companies will pay for a storm water retention facility in the area and that the village will maintain the facility in the future.

An expenditure of up to $350 was approved by the village to permit Deputy Fire Chief Edward Kalasa to attend a fire department instructors conference in Memphis, Tenn. next month.

Crime Prevention Week

Trustee William Cowin, chairing the board meeting in the absence of Village Pres. Virginia Hayer, proclaimed this week to be Illinois Crime Prevention Week in Hoffman Estates.

GOP platform pledges to remove utility tax

A five-point platform, including a pledge to remove as quickly as possible the village's new 5 per cent utility tax, has been adopted by Hoffman Estates Republicans for the April 15 village election.

The document adopted recently by party members includes planks on fiscal responsibility, village growth, use of federal and state funds, intergovernmental cooperation and public accountability.

"We decided to keep the platform as brief as possible while still making each plank point toward several goals," platform committee chairman Dyrle Rathman said.

Running on the Republican ticket will be incumbent William Cowin, plan commission member William Palmer and Jeanne M. Pavey. The only independent challenger will be William Dooley, 104 Gentry Ct. Dooley has predicted the village utility tax will become an issue in the campaign but he said Monday he will campaign on the issues as they arise.

The four will be competing for three 4-year terms on the village board. CURRENTLY ALL seats on the village board are held by Republicans.

Platform planks include:

- Fiscal responsibility: The party states it will continue to maintain a balanced village budget and pledges "that the recently imposed utility tax . . . will be removed at the earliest possible date."

- Growth and industrial development: annexation of land "will only be considered if the development of the area can contribute its full share to funding of services." The plank also states a committee will be established "to attract desirable industrial development . . . to broaden the tax base and provide additional employment within the area."

- Federal or state revenue-sharing funds: Will not be solicited "in any area where a federal or state agency would then be in a position to dictate action or withhold funds for noncompliance."

- Governmental cooperation: The party pledges to "expand existing working relationships with other area governmental agencies for the best interests of the village."

- Responsiveness: The party pledges to be "responsive to the needs of the village and its citizens and will seek input from all residents concerning the services and administration directed by the board of trustees."

SUP campaign chest contains over $11,000

The Schaumburg United Party (SUP) has built up a treasury of more than $11,000, considerably larger than the amount of funds reported by other local political parties.

SUP, in a campaign statement filed recently with the county clerk, reported $11,701 in funds on hand.

Similar statements filed with the county by the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township show assets of $2,726, and the Republican Party of Hoffman Estates has reported a total of $503. Schaumburg Citizens for Planned Progress candidates, who are challenging SUP candidates, say they do not need as much money for their campaign. The new party is conducting a membership drive and seeking contributions of $1 to $2 per person.

The parties are not required to indicate the sources of funds raised prior to Jan. 1.

VINCENT CARSELLO, SUP campaign manager, has said the party originally budgeted $4,000 for the 1975 village election campaign, but he predicted costs would be kept "substantially" lower.

SUP candidates refiled nominating petitions Monday in an apparent attempt to avoid a challenge on their petitions by opponents.

Last month SUP leaders learned they inadvertently missed the deadline for filing petitions as an established party and were advised by the Illinois Board of Elections to appoint candidates after the Feb. 25 primary to preserve their status as an established political group.

When the error was discovered, Michael LaVelle, director of the state elections board, accepted partial blame for the filing error because his office had given incorrect information to Carsello's wife, Sandy, who is village clerk.

"We thought we would simply play it safe and file petitions before the deadline and also have SUP's executive committee certify candidates after the primary date," Carsello said.

Hansen may run for school board

Jay Hansen, former president of the teachers' union in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, said Tuesday he is considering running for the Dist. 54 Board of Education in the April 12 election.

Hansen, president of the Schaumburg Education Assn. last year, was critical of the current board, saying it tends to "perpetuate the status quo" and sometimes tends to "obscure what is really going on in the school from parents."

He said he would run on "strictly an educational platform" if he decides to enter the race. Hansen is a mathematics teacher at Frost Junior High School, Schaumburg.

Hansen said a seat on the board would not be a conflict of interest even though he is employed by the district. If elected, he said he would abstain from voting on all board resolutions that would affect him directly.

Northwest Community to build new wing

Hospital officials hope to break ground next month for 20-bed intensive-care facility

Officials of Northwest Community Hospital announced plans Tuesday for a new intensive-care wing and expressed hope they would be able to start work within a month.

The wing, to be located on the south side of the main building facing Central Road, would have 20 beds and life-monitoring and support devices for critically ill patients. The wing is part of the hospital's expansion program, financed through the sale of a $20.5 million bond issue backed by the Village of Arlington Heights.

The new wing would increase the hospital's capacity to 600 beds. The officials said that, while a review of growth plans is being considered, the 600-bed facility would adequately serve the area. They said, however, plans for Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke Medical Center in Schaumburg could affect plans for further growth.

Plans for the $16 million Schaumburg hospital have been under way for several years, but have not received final approval from the state. That hospital is expected to have 160 beds and expand to a maximum of 400. Schaumburg officials approved zoning for the hospital site at Schaumburg and Barrington roads last week.

MEANWHILE, Northwest Community Hospital is now completing work on a nine-story addition to the main hospital building as part of the expansion program. The intensive-care wing was part of the growth package presented to Arlington Heights trustees when they agreed to issue the bonds, a hospital spokesman said.

The latest plans were presented to the plan and subdivision subcommittee of the plan commission Tuesday by hospital attorney William R. Kucera and administrative vice president Burton Chotiner.

Kucera and Chotiner asked for permission to begin digging the foundation before approval of the project is granted by the village. They said the unusual procedure would represent savings in construction costs, which they said are rising about 1 per cent a month.

Chotiner said if the hospital could start to "dig the hole (for the foundation)" while still going through the approval procedure, the hospital would be able to curb inflation of the construction costs. He said the digging could start in "three to four weeks," with village authorization.

PLAN COMR. Lewis O'Donnell said the commission only makes recommendations to the village board and start-work authorization would have to come from the trustees.

He said such action "is out of our bailiwick" and because "this is all in the family," village regulations and rules would have to be closely followed.

Under the bonding agreement, the village is the technical owner of the hospital and has a lease-back arrangement with the hospital's board of directors, who retain policy-making authority. After the 20-year life of the bonds, the hospital would be sold back to its board of directors for $1.

Chotiner said the hospital wanted to appear before the trustees as soon as possible for the granting of approval to start the foundation. He said the hospital is "committed to abide by the rules of the village."

The subcommittee agreed to schedule hospital officials to appear before the plan commission March 5 to give village departments time to study the plans and comment.

Kucera said hospital officials would seek to appear before the trustees March 3 to get permission to start work on the foundation early.

City may not need $4,000 land-use housing plan

by TONI GINETTI

The City of Rolling Meadows may be able to save $4,000 by not drawing up a special land-use plan to regulate low- and moderate-income housing projects.

John Gann of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) told the city council Tuesday night a proposed $4,000 land-use plan would have no bearing on the city's authority to object to proposed housing projects the U.S. Dept.

of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) may consider in the city.

Gann said the city need only adopt a housing-assistance plan to help protect it from accepting housing it may not consider good for the city. A housing-assistance plan would describe the needs for low-income housing for existing residents and those "who may be expected to live in the community because of employment opportunities here," Gann said.

"ALL YOU WOULD need is the housing plan on file, in terms of what the law says," Gann said. "The others are nice to have, but they're not necessary."

Gann's statements came as the city council was to consider awarding a $4,000 contract to Planning Horizons Inc. of Des Plaines to develop a city land-use plan.

Instead the council, at the suggestion of Ald. John Rock, 3rd, agreed to set aside the matter for further study in committee.

Questioning on the need for the land-use plan has arisen in connection with a new federal program, the U.S. Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, which will provide funds to communities to benefit low- and moderate-income families and prevent community blight.

The $2.45 billion program will provide funds automatically to towns of more than 50,000, with any leftover funds to go to smaller communities on a first-come, first-served basis.

Part of the program will also permit developers and builders to apply for funds to build low-income units or convert existing units for low-income residences. Gann said in order for the city to exercise any danger to restrict funds to developers, a HUD-approved local housing assistance plan, must be on file with that federal agency.

Gann said if a municipality shows that a developer's plans would be inconsistent with the town's housing plan, HUD would not grant money to the developer.

"THE PLAN GIVES leverage" to the community, Gann said, to insure that the city's own low-income housing plans would be followed.

In response to a question from Mayor Roland J. Meyer, Gann said a municipality could comment on any HUD plans for local funding, but he added lack of a housing plan would mean "there will not be the clout" the city might otherwise have.

The city would also be qualified to draw up its own plan if it used only its own funds to do so, Gann said. He said only if the city would seek federal funds to help prepare the plan would a HUD-recognized planning consultant be required to assist the city.

Gann said the city would only need to ensure that housing plan requirements set by HUD be met and that the plan be accepted by the federal agency.

He added he did not believe the city would have any authority to object to possible housing plans in unincorporated areas near the city, but at the aldermen's urging Gann said he would confer with HUD officials on the point.

Rock indicated after the discussion that his public works committee may resume discussion of the matter next week. Action on any of the plans will have no bearing on Community Development Act funding actions from now through June 30, Gann said, but he said the city plans, if approved in time, would apply to any federal funding grants for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

18-month jail sentence for Middleton

by BARRY SIGALE

Former Des Plaines physician Dr. James G. Middleton was ordered Tuesday to begin serving an 18-month sentence in a federal prison for violation of federal firearms and explosives regulations.

U.S. District Court Judge James B. Parsons told Middleton, 48, to report Friday to federal authorities at Sandstone, Minn., after reducing the doctor's original four-year sentence.

The judge's ruling came minutes after he turned down Middleton's request for a new trial. The order came as a surprise to Middleton who said he was assured by Parsons he would not have to begin his sentence until he had exhausted all his appeals on a separate state conviction of deviate sexual assault.

James G. Middleton

PARSONS APPARENTLY agreed to the reduction in sentence because of the hardship Middleton contends it would cause his wife, Margaret, and because Middleton's record has been clean since his conviction on the charges in February 1972.

The sentence may be appealed, Middleton said, but his attorney, Federal Defender Jean Kamp, said the process probably would be futile.

"I'm afraid we'd just be spinning our wheels," she told the couple outside the Federal Building courtroom in Chicago. Parsons originally sentenced Middleton.

Miss Kamp said there was no evidence that Middleton ever used or intended to use any explosives and that he never posed any danger to anyone. Probation is appropriate.

Middleton and his wife were dazed when they heard Parsons' decision. "It's not the worst thing in the world... but I don't like it," said Middleton, who had offices at 909 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines. "I'm not looking forward to this vacation, but I'm not going to set any duration record."

MIDDLETON WAS relieved when he heard he would be eligible for parole in six months and would be able to return to his wife by September. "Is she going to fall apart? No, she's not going to fall apart. And neither am I," he said.

Middleton was convicted on charges resulting from a raid on his office Dec. 1, 1970, by Sheriff's Police. Investigators discovered pipe bombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and what were described as bizarre sexual devices.

The exact charges were possession of material which could be assembled into a destructive device and possession of a tear gas pen gun that did not have a serial number and was not registered.

$6,000 now in city grant program

More scholarships offered to college-bound students

Three more scholarships for college-bound Rolling Meadows students will be available this year, bringing to six the number of grants the city will sponsor.

The city council Tuesday night unanimously approved a resolution increasing to six the number of scholarships to be offered. A total of $6,000, to provide up to $1,000 to six students, will be available for the grants.

The three new scholarships will allow three new students to enter the program. The other three renewal grants will be offered to the students who won the grants last year.

"This way we have the same kind of program as last year," Ald. Thomas Waldron, 2nd, said of the plan. "Meanwhile, we continue with the three (students in the program), provided their grades stay up."

THE SCHOLARSHIP program was instituted last year to provide middle-class city students with financial aid toward higher education. Graduating high school seniors from Rolling Meadows, Sacred Heart of Mary, Fremd and St. Viator high schools are eligible to apply for the grants.

The grants may be made available to junior college students as well, however, if Waldron's scholarship committee agrees to revise the grant policy which apparently limits consideration only to high school seniors.

Ald. William Ahrens, 2nd, asked Waldron if junior college students planning to continue to a four-year college could be eligible for consideration. He said he knew of several such students who applied for the grants last year but were apparently disqualified.

Waldron said he did not believe a definite policy existed concerning the matter, but he and committee member Ald. Daniel Weber, 4th, agreed the policy should be reviewed.

The scholarships may be used by students for tuition at a four-year college, junior college or trade or vocational school of their choice. Applications are available through the high schools, with a panel of educators and a city representative responsible for choosing winners.

APPLICATIONS FOR the scholarships are expected to be available soon.

In other action at the council meeting Tuesday, aldermen approved a resolution to provide up to $5,000 for a Fourth of July celebration in the city. Waldron, whose public information and education committee recommended the appropriation, said the money would help pay for a fireworks display and a drum and bugle corps competition. Other activities would be sponsored by the city park district and civic groups.

Waldron said the committee agreed to request the money so that some observance of the holiday could be held even though the city is planning major celebrations in May to observe its 20th anniversary of incorporation.

Funds for the Fourth of July affair will come from next year's budget which takes effect May 1, Waldron said.

Legion Post seeking new members

Rolling Meadows Post 1231 of the American Legion is seeking new members who may have served in World Wars I or II, Korea or Vietnam.

Commander Lawrence E. Renkal says prospective members may contact him by calling 255-3904. Among activities of the local post are campouts, target shooting, picnics and fund-raising events to support civic and youth-oriented service projects.

Renkal noted the Legion recently opened membership to a larger number of veterans by making its eligibility dates coincide with those in which the U.S. government discontinued combat pay for wars. Instead of those dates on which hostilities ceased. There was no change in the eligibility dates for World War I veterans, but for World War II, the Legion now accepts members who served between Dec. 7, 1941 and Dec. 31, 1946. It previously did not take persons who had not served prior to Jan. 1, 1946.

For the Korean Conflict, veterans may join if they served between June 25, 1950 and Jan. 31, 1955. The previous cutoff was Jan. 31, 1953.

A cutoff date has been established for veterans of Vietnam, with Legion membership extended to persons serving from Aug. 5, 1964 to Aug. 15, 1973.

Northwest Community to build new wing

Hospital officials hope to break ground next month for 20-bed intensive-care facility

Officials of Northwest Community Hospital announced plans Tuesday for a new intensive-care wing and expressed hope they would be able to start work within a month.

The wing, to be located on the south side of the main building facing Central Road, would have 20 beds and life-monitoring and support devices for critically ill patients. The wing is part of the hospital's expansion program, financed through the sale of a $20.5 million bond issue backed by the Village of Arlington Heights.

The new wing would increase the hospital's capacity to 600 beds. The officials said that, while a review of growth plans is being considered, the 600-bed facility would adequately serve the area. They said, however, plans for Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke Medical Center in Schaumburg could affect plans for further growth.

Plans for the $16 million Schaumburg hospital have been under way for several years, but have not received final approval from the state. That hospital is expected to have 160 beds and expand to a maximum of 400. Schaumburg officials approved zoning for the hospital site at Schaumburg and Barrington roads last week.

MEANWHILE, Northwest Community Hospital is now completing work on a nine-story addition to the main hospital building as part of the expansion program. The intensive-care wing was part of the growth package presented to Arlington Heights trustees when they agreed to issue the bonds, a hospital spokesman said.

The latest plans were presented to the plan commission Tuesday by hospital attorney William R. Kucera and administrative vice president Burton Chotiner.

Kucera and Chotiner asked for permission to begin digging the foundation before approval of the project is granted by the village. They said the unusual procedure would represent savings in construction costs, which they said are rising about 1 per cent a month.

Chotiner said if the hospital could start to "dig the hole (for the foundation)" while still going through the approval procedure, the hospital would be able to curb inflation of the construction costs. He said the digging could start in "three to four weeks," with village authorization.

PLAN COMR. Lewis O'Donnell said the commission only makes recommendations to the village board and start-work authorization would have to come from the trustees.

He said such action "is out of our bailiwick" and because "this is all in the family," village regulations and rules would have to be closely followed.

Under the bonding agreement, the village is the technical owner of the hospital and has a lease-back arrangement with the hospital's board of directors, who retain policy-making authority. After the 20-year life of the bonds, the hospital would be sold back to its board of directors for $1.

Chotiner said the hospital wanted to appear before the trustees as soon as possible for the granting of approval to start the foundation. He said the hospital is "committed to abide by the rules of the village."

The subcommittee agreed to schedule hospital officials to appear before the plan commission March 5 to give village departments time to study the plans and comment.

Kucera said hospital officials would seek to appear before the trustees March 3 to get permission to start work on the foundation early.

Village attorney rules

LaDore to be on ballot despite ethics violation

Thomas D. LaDore's name will be on the April 15 ballot for election to the Palatine Village Board even if he remains in violation of the village's 1974 ethics code.

Village Atty. Bradley M. Glass said LaDore's incomplete conflict-of-interest disclaimer form will not disqualify him from the election.

LaDore, an independent candidate and real estate salesman, has refused to ask his employer, Holding O'Connor Blaeser Real Estate Inc., Palatine, to sign his conflict-of-interest disclaimer. Under the ethics code, a broker must sign a form that he will not profit from land or property transactions being considered by a board or commission that includes an employe.

In a heated discussion this week with Republican trustees, LaDore charged the ethics code was discriminatory against real estate salesmen.

"I can't see why you want to keep real estate salesmen off the board," LaDore said.

TRUSTEE Philip E. Stern, a GOP-endorsed candidate to retain his seat, charged LaDore with "representing a special interest group and flagrantly violating the intent, letter and spirit of our ethics ordinance."

Stern called on LaDore to drop out of the village board race or "live up to what the rest of us live up to — clean government."

The Republican-dominated board passed a motion asking LaDore to at least request his employer to sign the conflict-of-interest disclaimer form.

LaDore indicated Monday he would ask his broker to sign the form, but doubted if he would comply. On Tuesday he said he had second thoughts about requesting the signature and doubted if he would.

"I AM STILL adamantly against it. I don't feel they (the brokerage firm) should be responsible for what I do," LaDore said.

Glass said if the brokerage firm refuses to sign the conflict-of-interest disclaimer there is nothing the village could do. "I know of no legal way to enforce (the ethics code) against a party (a firm) that is not actually filing as a candidate," Glass said. Glass said legal action could also not be taken against LaDore if he asked his employer for a signature and was refused because he would have carried out the intent of the law.

Violation of the ethics code is a misdemeanor and carries a possible $300 fine.

Citizens may be hearing something other than overhead heaters soon at the Palatine Village Board meetings at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

The village board Monday night agreed to repair the delapidated sound system at a cost not to exceed $250.

After seconding Trustee Philip E. Stern's motion, Trustee Fred H. Zajonc said, "I like to hear everything that's being said, too."

Village to meet with schools

Village ordinances, annexation of school sites, and street and sidewalk improvements are all up for discussion today in a meeting of the Palatine Village Board and the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education.

The board will meet at 7 p.m. at the Dist. 15 administration center, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine, just prior to the school board's regular meeting.

A discussion of the effects of village ordinances on school operations was suggested by the village board. The boards also plan to discuss the possible annexation of Palatine Hills Junior High School, 110 N. Smith Rd., north of Palatine, and a vacant school site north of Virginia Lake School, 925 N. Rohlwing Rd., Palatine. The village is considering the purchase of water and sewer facilities for that area from the Fernside Heights Utility Co.

The boards also plan to talk about street and sidewalk installation in new subdivisions, joint use of school buildings with community groups, Dist. 15's acquisition of school sites and plans for new buildings, and the problem of vandalism to school property.

Village to celebrate 2 birthdays on sticker

The Village of Palatine will celebrate two birthdays with the 1976 vehicle sticker design.

The village board this week decided to combine the themes of the nation's Bicentennial celebration and Palatine High School's 100th birthday. Combined on the sticker will be the Bicentennial seal and a design to be selected from a contest at the school, said Trustee Philip E. Stern.

Powers of downtown panel questioned

Patricia Miramonti, an independent candidate for the Palatine Village Board, has challenged the far-reaching authority of the downtown redevelopment commission.

Mrs. Miramonti questioned the legality of giving the commission power to condemn property and assemble large tracts of land for developers in a prepared statement. The powers the proposed commission will have have not been determined by the village board yet. Suggestions have included the power to condemn property, assemble large tracts of land for developers, apply for federal and state grants and remove or demolish structures.

"I would think that this kind of commission could develop more 'conflict of interest' than any business that we already have in relation to village government," Mrs. Miramonti said.

VILLAGE FINANCING, ethics and flooding are some of the other issues

Patricia Miramonti

Mrs. Miramonti will raise in her campaign.

"I would like to give the people the story behind some of the things that are happening," Mrs. Miramonti said, referring to herself as an average citizen with little political experience. She said the village budget and its implications on homeowners should be clearly explained to residents.

'No solicitors' signs available at village hall

Three signs to protect Palatine residents from unwanted solicitors are available at the village hall.

"No solicitors invited" and "Only charitable solicitors invited" signs are on sale at the village hall, 54 S. Brockway St., for 5 cents. A third sign, "Only solicitors registered in Palatine invited" is expected to be available shortly.

The signs are part of the village's recently adopted solicitation ordinance which was passed after the alleged rape of an elderly woman last fall by a magazine solicitor.

The 3-by-4-inch signs are for display on or near the main entrance of the residence. Any solicitor violating the notice on the door could be fined a maximum of $500 and forbidden from future solicitation in the village.

"I would encourage all residents to get a sign," said Ted Becker, a resident who helped draft the ordinance. "For the cost you can't beat the protection you will receive."

Palatine residents who do not display one of the three signs will not be covered by this section of the ordinance, said Becker. However, all solicitors must leave a residence immediately after they are asked to.

In addition to the signs, the new solicitation ordinance restricts solicitation to 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and sets strict registration requirements for solicitors.

Residents seek Robertson Street barrier removal

Residents of the Fairgrounds Park subdivision have petitioned the Palatine Village Board to remove a barricade on Robertson Street that blocks access to Northwest Highway.

The village board referred the petitions, signed by 63 residents, to the Palatine Police dept. for a recommendation.

The barricade was put up recently just east of Northwest Highway to eliminate traffic problems in the subdivision caused by the nearby Burger King restaurant.

The residents said police patrol of the subdivision has been reduced since the barricade was installed and Robertson Street access is necessary for fire protection of the 72 homes. The only other access to the subdivision is Ashland Avenue.

Residents suggested stop signs be installed as an alternative to the barricade to help control traffic. The residents proposed stop signs be installed at Robertson Street and Linden Street, Robertson Street and Ashland Avenue, and Ashland Avenue and Colfax Street.

Five-ton load limit signs are recommended by the residents for Ashland Avenue and Robertson Street to eliminate truck traffic. A final traffic control recommendation is the installation of no left turn signs from the Burger King.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman A. Sietman, 537 E. Colfax St., wrote to the board opposing removal of the barricade. The Sietmans said they believe the barricade will eliminate the problem of motorists speeding through the subdivision.

"The original plan was for a semi-private subdivision, with no access to Northwest Highway from Robertson," they wrote. "Your recent action has done more to achieve that Utopian situation than anything else in many years."

Volunteer firemen to get more pay

Palatine's volunteer firemen will be paid more money to answer fire calls on a new hourly wage system approved by village officials this week.

Volunteer firemen will receive $10 for the first hour they respond to a call, and $6 for each hour they continue to work under the new pay system. Volunteer firemen were formerly paid a flat fee of $10 for each call.

The pay change was prompted by a recent village personnel study and by a state labor law that became effective Feb. 1, requiring employees be paid for overtime work.

Fire Chief Orville Holms said full-time firemen who are not on duty but respond to fire calls also will receive $10 for the first hour and will receive their regular hourly rate for each additional hour.

The village appropriated enough funds for fire department salaries this year to cover the cost of the new program until April 30, the end of the fiscal year, Holms said.

Village Trustee Richard Fonte, chairman of the administration, finance and legislation committee, said the new pay system probably will be more economical for the village.

Many of the fire calls have been false alarms. Volunteer firemen were paid the $10 fee just for responding to the call, regardless of the amount of time they worked, Fonte said. Under the new system, if firemen work less than an hour they are paid on a per cent of the hour worked.

Mrs. Schwab gets township GOP post

Mrs. Allen Schwab, 266 N. Oak St., Palatine, has been appointed Palatine Township Republican committeewoman.

The appointment fills a position recently vacated by Mrs. Martin Keller, 223 N. Highland St., Inverness.

Mrs. Schwab, "brings a record of demonstrated ability and performance to her new responsibilities. She has an unusual talent for dealing with people and organizing volunteer effort," Committeeman Bernard E. Pedersen, said in announcing the appointment.

Mrs. Schwab has been active in GOP activities since 1969. In addition to her recent headquarters duties, she has served on the board of the Republican Township Organization, the Republican Women's Club and the township yearbook. She has been ticket cochairman of two recent Republican social events, served on the Palatine village elections credentials committee and was secretary of the GOP convention.

Northwest Community to build new wing

Hospital officials hope to break ground next month for 20-bed intensive-care facility

Officials of Northwest Community Hospital announced plans Tuesday for a new intensive-care wing and expressed hope they would be able to start work within a month.

The wing, to be located on the south side of the main building facing Central Road, would have 20 beds and life-monitoring and support devices for critically ill patients. The wing is part of the hospital's expansion program, financed through the sale of a $20.5 million bond issue backed by the Village of Arlington Heights.

The new wing would increase the hospital's capacity to 600 beds. The officials said that, while a review of growth plans is being considered, the 600-bed facility would adequately serve the area. They said, however, plans for Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke Medical Center in Schaumburg could affect plans for further growth.

Plans for the $16 million Schaumburg hospital have been under way for several years, but have not received final approval from the state. That hospital is expected to have 160 beds and expand to a maximum of 400. Schaumburg officials approved zoning for the hospital site at Schaumburg and Barrington roads last week.

MEANWHILE, Northwest Community Hospital is now completing work on a nine-story addition to the main hospital building as part of the expansion program. The intensive-care wing was part of the growth package presented to Arlington Heights trustees when they agreed to issue the bonds, a hospital spokesman said.

The latest plans were presented to the plat and subdivision subcommittee of the plan commission Tuesday by hospital attorney William R. Kucera and administrative vice president Burton Chotiner.

Kucera and Chotiner asked for permission to begin digging the foundation before approval of the project is granted by the village. They said the unusual procedure would represent savings in construction costs, which they said are rising about 1 per cent a month.

Chotiner said if the hospital could start to "dig the hole (for the foundation)" while still going through the approval procedure, the hospital would be able to curb inflation of the construction costs. He said the digging could start in "three to four weeks," with village authorization.

PLAN COMR. Lewis O'Donnell said the commission only makes recommendations to the village board and start-work authorization would have to come from the trustees.

He said such action "is out of our bailiwick" and because "this is all in the family," village regulations and rules would have to be closely followed.

Under the bonding agreement, the village is the technical owner of the hospital and has a lease-back arrangement with the hospital's board of directors, who retain policy-making authority. After the 20-year life of the bonds, the hospital would be sold back to its board of directors for $1.

Chotiner said the hospital wanted to appear before the trustees as soon as possible for the granting of approval to start the foundation. He said the hospital is "committed to abide by the rules of the village."

The subcommittee agreed to schedule hospital officials to appear before the plan commission March 5 to give village departments time to study the plans and comment.

Kucera said hospital officials would seek to appear before the trustees March 3 to get permission to start work on the foundation early.

Issue on April 1 ballot

Voters to be asked to OK tax levy to redo greenhouse

by LYNN ASINOF

Voters in the Mount Prospect Park District this spring will be asked to approve a special tax levy to renovate and operate the greenhouse at Friendship Park near Algonquin Road at Janice Street, Des Plaines.

The issue will appear on the April 1 park ballot as a result of a resolution approved Monday at the park board.

The tax levy, which is not to exceed 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation, could bring the park district a maximum of $110,000 for greenhouse operations. Assistant Park Director Thomas T. Taylor, however, said the park district does not expect to use the full levy power.

"All we want is the authority to develop a budget for $25,000 to $30,000 to run the thing," Taylor said saying figures on greenhouse operation are not available. He said if voters do not approve the levy, the park district will have to "be digging into our present budget and cut back."

TAYLOR ESTIMATED the greenhouse is worth about $200,000. He said it will cost about the same amount to renovate it as it would to tear it down. "We're stuck with it," Taylor said.

Officials said the full 5-cent levy, which would raise annual taxes by $5 for a house with an equalized assessed value of $10,000, probably would not be needed. The district is more likely to levy only 1 or 2 cents per $100, they said.

THE PARK DISTRICT has been exploring renovation of the greenhouse since December. Taylor said it has been difficult to get specifications on the renovation, and therefore is uncertain what the greenhouse will cost the taxpayer.

The greenhouse is to be used for park and school programs. Groups from the Mount Prospect Garden Club and High School Dist. 214 have been working with the park district to develop programs.

Although the park district has owned the greenhouse property since 1970, the former owner only recently vacated the building and adjacent house. He was renting the property from the district.

Taylor said he expects more information to be available in about two weeks. He said this information will be made available to the public in an effort to educate voters on the tax-levy proposal.

Businessmen hit master plan changes

Opposition by downtown businessmen to portions of the proposed Mount Prospect revised comprehensive village plan was voiced Tuesday night at the first village board public hearing on the plan.

Jack Keefe, owner of Keefe's Pharmacy, who said he represented the Chamber of Commerce, said, "The Chamber is violently opposed to the re-routing of Ill. Rte. 83." He said a change in the traffic patterns in downtown Des Plaines was detrimental to some businesses.

Keefe referred to a suggestion that Main Street be made one-way south and Emerson Street one-way north between Central Road and Lincoln Street. Mayor Robert D. Telchert, who said that was one aspect of the comprehensive plan that likely will be changed in upcoming months, said he had yet to talk with anyone other than planners who liked the one-way proposal.

MRS. WILLIAM Borgstrom, who said she was speaking on behalf of the Riverhurst Civic Assn., expressed concern over what recommendations the village's plan makes for the Northern Illinois Gas Co. property and unincorporated areas near the northeast section of the village. She also asked about the percentages of houses and apartments under the plan's "balanced community development."

Trustee Marie L. Caylor said business owners in the area near Palatine Road and Milwaukee Avenue have been approached by the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce and have indicated they would like to be annexed to the village. Mrs. Caylor said annexation would increase the village's tax base and give the village access to Palwaukee Airport. However, she said the village also would have to annex numerous apartments on the north side of Willow Road-Seminole Lane.

Church's $200 liquor stock stolen

Burglars took $200 worth of liquor for the St. Raymond's Church Jubilee Tuesday from the church school, 300 S. Elmhurst Ave., Mount Prospect.

Police also reported $180 stolen in a burglary Monday or Tuesday at the John Oster residence, 609 N. Elmhurst Ave.; $6 and candy stolen from the River Trails Park District building, 1600 E. Euclid Ave., Monday night; and $50 worth of clothing and a $650 stereo receiver stolen Tuesday from the apartment of Glen Sandberg, 1966 Algonquin Rd.

Ordered to leave for Sandstone Friday

by BARRY SIGALE

Former Des Plaines physician Dr. James G. Middleton was ordered Tuesday to begin serving an 18-month sentence in a federal prison for violation of federal firearms and explosives regulations.

U.S. District Court Judge James B. Parsons told Middleton, 48, to report Friday to federal authorities at Sandstone, Minn., after reducing the doctor's original four-year sentence.

The judge's ruling came minutes after he turned down Middleton's request for a new trial. The order came as a surprise to Middleton who said he was assured by Parsons he would not have to begin his sentence until he had exhausted all his appeals on a separate state conviction of deviate sexual assault.

James G. Middleton

PARSONS APPARENTLY agreed to the reduction in sentence because of the hardship Middleton contends it would cause his wife, Margaret, and because Middleton's record has been clean since his conviction on the charges in February 1972.

The sentence may be appealed, Middleton said, but his attorney, Federal Defender Jean Kamp, said the process probably would be futile.

"I'm afraid we'd just be spinning our wheels," she told the couple outside the Federal Building courtroom in Chicago. Parsons originally sentenced Middleton.

Miss Kamp said there was no evidence that Middleton ever used or intended to use any explosives and that he never posed any danger to anyone. Probation is appropriate.

Middleton and his wife were dazed when they heard Parsons' decision. "It's not the worst thing in the world... but I don't like it," said Middleton, who had offices at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines. "I'm not looking forward to this vacation, but I'm not going to set any duration record."

MIDDLETON WAS relieved when he heard he would be eligible for parole in six months and would be able to return to his wife by September. "Is she going to fall apart? No, she's not going to fall apart. And neither am I," he said.

Middleton was convicted on charges resulting from a raid on his office Dec. 1, 1970, by Sheriff's Police. Investigators discovered pipe bombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and what were described as bizarre sexual devices.

The exact charges were possession of material which could be assembled into a destructive device and possession of a tear gas pen gun that did not have a serial number and was not registered.

Let's hear it for these 17-year-olds

At the village blood drawing last week, 17-year-olds were permitted to donate blood for the first time. Four young ladies of that age did so.

Actually, the four girls were involved in the local blood program right from its start. About two years ago, when the village was gearing up for its very first blood drive, these same four girls distributed literature telling about the plan. They are members of a Camp Fire Girl group that provided volunteers for the project.

The girls are Carol Parkinson, Julie Eichelman, Mary Greenhalgh and Gloria Bateman.

THE MUELLERS of 306 N. Pine St. thought tropical birds were moving into the area last week when they saw a bright green bird at a feeder in their yard. They caught it, discovered it to be a parakeet and are now caring for it in a cage in their home.

"It has to be someone's lost pet," said

Edna Mueller. "It's so very tame."

To claim the bird, call Edna at 253-2539 in the evening.

THE KIDS in the Office Education Assn. at Prospect High School really scored well in a recent skills contest at Conant High School. The competition was between all OEA members in Dist. 211 schools, Barrington High School and Dist. 214's Arlington, Rolling Meadows, Buffalo Grove and Prospect high schools.

The winners will compete at the state level in Springfield in March at the Leadership Conference of OEA. First and second place winners in that competition will go on to 'nationals.'

In the skills contest at Conant, Wendy Hecht took first place for Accounting I; Lynn McHugh, first place, Stenography II; Kim Tomnesen, first place, File Clerk; Cindy Nelson, first place, General Clerical I; Debbie Davidson, second place, Information and Communication II.

Prospect parents want students to go to Hersey

A group of Prospect Heights parents, calling for "equal rights for all students," has petitioned the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education to allow all students in their neighborhood to attend Hersey High School in Arlington Heights.

The parents are from an area along Mandel Lane between Willow and Camp McDonald roads which was shifted last year from Hersey's attendance area to that of Wheeling High School.

Students attending Hersey, however, were allowed to stay and younger children in their families also will be allowed to go to Hersey. Parents of children who have no older brothers or sisters at Hersey and now must go to Wheeling are charging district policy discriminates against them.

The board agreed Monday to look into the problem by directing district administration to determine the number of students affected and report back to the board. The board, however, offered the parents little hope that their request would be granted.

Board Pres. Jack Costello said he didn't want to give the impression that by studying the issue, the board would change its policy on boundaries.

The board appeared firm against putting any more students into Hersey which is slightly over capacity. Wheeling is slightly below its optimum attendance level.

THE PROBLEM of boundary disputes has been virtually a constant problem in the district as rising attendance and addition of schools has forced areas in and out of school-attendance areas as many as three times in less than five years.

Since 1971, the area of Prospect Heights in question has been a part of Wheeling High School, then was switched to Hersey, then returned to Wheeling last year.

ONE SUGGESTION that virtually could eliminate the district's yearly boundary problems would be to implement relaxed policies that would allow students more of a choice as to which district school they will attend.

School board cancels meeting

The Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Board of Education meeting scheduled tonight has been canceled. The next board meeting will be at 8 p.m. March 5 at the administration building, 700 N. Schoenbeck Rd., Prospect Heights.

Contract awarded for park pool work

The Prospect Heights Park District Tuesday night awarded a contract of more than $100,000 to Dolphin Pool Co., Chicago, to renovate the swimming pool at Lions Park, Camp McDonald Road and Elm Street.

The $105,078 contract includes an unspecified amount for a gutter system to be installed by Whitten Co., Massachusetts, which flew four members of the park board to the East Coast last November to inspect gutter systems.

The park commissioners traveled by commercial airlines, at Whitten's expense, at a cost of at least $640 for transportation.

Parks candidate petitions OK

Nominating petitions filed by Comr. Rosemary Argus for the Mount Prospect Park District are apparently safe from a challenge by candidate William Hickey.

Hickey challenged Mrs. Argus' petitions Monday night, charging that 23 persons who signed her petitions also signed the nominating petitions of incumbent William Selep. He said these signatures are invalid because the petition forms state all signers must certify they have not subscribed to any other candidate's petition.

State law, however, says that "each voter may subscribe to one nomination for such office to be filled, and no more." A spokesman at the county election department said this means that residents can sign petitions for as many candidates as there are open seats.

"A voter may sign a petition for more than one candidate as long as there is more than one to be elected for that particular office," the spokesman said.

PARK ATTY. William Ward, however, said he is referring the matter to the county officers electoral board. He said the board will "have a hearing on it shortly and determine if the objection is valid."

Ward said the electoral board probably will receive the objection today with a hearing scheduled next week.

Officials of Northwest Community Hospital announced plans Tuesday for a new intensive-care wing and expressed hope they would be able to start work within a month.

The wing, to be located on the south side of the main building facing Central Road, would have 20 beds and life-monitoring and support devices for critically ill patients. The wing is part of the hospital's expansion program, financed through the sale of a $20.5 million bond issue backed by the Village of Arlington Heights.

The new wing would increase the hospital's capacity to 600 beds. The officials said that, while a review of growth plans is being considered, the 600-bed facility would adequately serve the area. They said, however, plans for Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke Medical Center in Schaumburg could affect plans for further growth.

Plans for the $16 million Schaumburg hospital have been under way for several years, but have not received final approval from the state. That hospital is expected to have 160 beds and expand to a maximum of 400. Schaumburg officials approved zoning for the hospital site at Schaumburg and Barrington roads last week.

MEANWHILE, Northwest Community Hospital is now completing work on a nine-story addition to the main hospital building as part of the expansion program. The intensive-care wing was part of the growth package presented to Arlington Heights trustees when they agreed to issue the bonds, a hospital spokesman said.

The latest plans were presented to the plan and subdivision subcommittee of the plan commission Tuesday by hospital attorney William R. Kucera and administrative vice president Burton Chotiner.

Kucera and Chotiner asked for permission to begin digging the foundation before approval of the project is granted by the village. They said the unusual procedure would represent savings in construction costs, which they said are rising about 1 per cent a month.

Chotiner said if the hospital could start to "dig the hole (for the foundation)" while still going through the approval procedure, the hospital would be able to curb inflation of the construction costs. He said the digging could start in "three to four weeks," with village authorization.

PLAN COMR. Lewis O'Donnell said the commission only makes recommendations to the village board and start-work authorization would have to come from the trustees.

He said such action "is out of our bailiwick" and because "this is all in the family," village regulations and rules would have to be closely followed.

Under the bonding agreement, the village is the technical owner of the hospital and has a lease-back arrangement with the hospital's board of directors, who retain policy-making authority. After the 20-year life of the bonds, the hospital would be sold back to its board of directors for $1.

Chotiner said the hospital wanted to appear before the trustees as soon as possible for the granting of approval to start the foundation. He said the hospital is "committed to abide by the rules of the village."

The subcommittee agreed to schedule hospital officials to appear before the plan commission March 5 to give village departments time to study the plans and comment.

Kucera said hospital officials would seek to appear before the trustees March 3 to get permission to start work on the foundation early.

To replace 10-year-old vehicle

Chief Hayden makes plea for $120,000 fire truck

Chief John Hayden of the Arlington Heights Fire Dept., using this year's village budget hearings as a forum, made a plea Tuesday night for a new fire truck next year.

Hayden, appearing before the finance committee of the village board, said this year's tentative budget request for six new firetrucks and a new ambulance was adequate but that plans should be made now for replacing the department's aerial-ladder truck. He said a new truck would take about two years to deliver and would cost $120,000 to $180,000.

He said the department's aerial truck is more than 10 years old and has been out of service for a total of three months this year because of mechanical problems. He said the village must rely upon neighboring communities to aid when alarms are sounded in buildings higher than three stories.

HOWEVER, Hayden said the village's fire protection rating and its ability to handle fires is not yet affected because of the 10-year-old truck.

Turning to the budget for 1975-76 now under consideration, Hayden said a new paramedic-style ambulance is needed to meet the expected 2,300 ambulance calls this year. He said the department made 2,000 calls last year and would reach the higher figure because of the increased population.

The new firefighters would be used to man the new ambulance, he said.

If the budget appropriation is approved, he said the paramedics would be stationed in the central village and at the northern and southern fire stations.

Hayden's call for a new truck was prompted by Trustee Alice Harm's inquiry into the status of the village's fire protection rating.

HAYDEN SAID the village would eventually need at least one more truck company and possibly two. He said if there was a new aerial-ladder truck, the older one would be reduced to backup status.

Also appearing before the finance committee was Police Chief L. W. Calderwood.

The tentative budget calls for the police to get six new patrol officers, which Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said "... won't probably do more than keep the same level of service with the increase of population."

Calderwood said the new men would be used to break the village down into small beat areas covered by the patrol officers.

One of the new men would be assigned to the traffic detail.

Mrs. Harms asked Calderwood if more is needed to improve the quality of service from the department. She said she had received complaints from citizens that it took the police half an hour to answer a call about persons cutting across lawns.

Hanson said police have to act with an eye on priorities. "We can't always have the policemen there like Superman — boom," he said.

Hanson extended an invitation to the trustees to ride with police on patrol for one night to get a better understanding of their problems and procedures.

63-year-old escapee arrested in Wheeling

An escaped convict from Arkansas was arrested by Arlington Heights police Tuesday in Wheeling.

Louis A. Voltz, 63, was captured without a struggle. Police said Voltz was carrying identification listing three Arlington Heights addresses, but he had been staying in Wheeling recently. He was reportedly carrying five $100 bills with consecutive serial numbers when arrested.

Voltz has been sought since late 1969 when he failed to return from a furlough at the Hemstead County Penitentiary in Grundy, Ark., where he was serving a 15-year sentence for armed robbery.

Voltz came to the attention of local police in December when he was arrested in Arlington Heights for shoplifting. He also was charged with unlawful use of a weapon, police said.

Although an initial record check failed to show him as an escaped convict, police, acting on a tip, later contacted authorities in Arkansas.

Police said Voltz has an extensive criminal record dating to 1930. His record includes arrests and convictions for highway robbery, assault to commit murder, stolen and forged security schemes and confidence games, police said.

Voltz is being held in the Arlington Heights lockup in lieu of $100,000 bond.

Ordered to leave for Sandstone Friday

18-month jail sentence for Middleton

by BARRY SIGALE

Former Des Plaines physician Dr. James G. Middleton was ordered Tuesday to begin serving an 18-month sentence in a federal prison for violation of federal firearms and explosives regulations.

U.S. District Court Judge James B. Parsons told Middleton, 48, to report Friday to federal authorities at Sandstone, Minn., after reducing the doctor's original four-year sentence.

The judge's ruling came minutes after he turned down Middleton's request for a new trial. The order came as a surprise to Middleton who said he was assured by Parsons he would not have to begin his sentence until he had exhausted all his appeals on a separate state conviction of deviate sexual assault.

James G. Middleton

PARSONS APPARENTLY agreed to the reduction in sentence because of the hardship Middleton contends it would cause his wife, Margaret, and because Middleton's record has been clean since his conviction on the charges in February 1972.

The sentence may be appealed, Middleton said, but his attorney, Federal Defender Jean Kamp, said the process probably would be futile.

"I'm afraid we'd just be spinning our wheels," she told the couple outside the Federal Building courtroom in Chicago. Parsons originally sentenced Middleton

Miss Kamp said there was no evidence that Middleton ever used or intended to use any explosives and that he never posed any danger to anyone. Probation is appropriate.

Middleton and his wife were dazed when they heard Parsons' decision. "It's not the worst thing in the world... but I don't like it," said Middleton, who had offices at 969 S. Elmhurst Rd., Des Plaines. "I'm not looking forward to this vacation, but I'm not going to set any duration record."

MIDDLETON WAS relieved when he heard he would be eligible for parole in six months and would be able to return to his wife by September. "Is she going to fall apart? No, she's not going to fall apart. And neither am I," he said.

Middleton was convicted on charges resulting from a raid on his office Dec. 1, 1970, by Sheriff's Police. Investigators discovered pipe bombs, detonators, three handguns, pornographic photographs, literature and movies and what were described as bizarre sexual devices.

The exact charges were possession of material which could be assembled into a destructive device and possession of a tear gas pen gun that did not have a serial number and was not registered.

Chapman to back Griffin; Schlickman Ryan

Village president hopefuls endorsed

by KURT BAER

Both candidates for the Arlington Heights village president's office apparently will get support from one of the village's three state representatives.

State Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, a Democrat, said Tuesday she will support candidate David Griffin, while State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, a Republican, endorses candidate James T. Ryan.

The third state representative, who is a resident of Arlington Heights, Virginia B. Macdonald, a Republican, said she would not support either candidate.

"I will lend whatever support I can to Jim Ryan for village president," Schlickman said. "I have made a financial contribution to his campaign. We have known each other for a number of years and I have a great deal of respect and admiration for his talents."

He said he has contributed $100 to Ryan's election campaign.

SCHLICKMAN, 1219 E. Clarendon Ave., is in his sixth term as a state legislator. He served on the Arlington Heights Village Board from 1959 to 1964.

"Because I served on the village board myself, I feel very comfortable with Jim's experience," he said.

Supporting village presidential candidates is "nothing new," Schlickman said. "In the past I have contributed to Caucus candidates when I felt I could support them."

"Four years ago when the Caucus was stacked, as I believe it was this time, I supported the opposing state," he said.

RYAN, RUNNING an independent campaign for village president, said he is "pleased for any support I get." He said he was not surprised by Schlickman's endorsement or Mrs. Chapman's backing of Griffin.

"I would be delighted to see a top-notch candidate like Dave Griffin elected village president and I will tell my friends and others who ask that I hope they would vote for a responsive candidate like Dave," Mrs. Chapman said.

"I'm not going to be out beating the bushes in behalf of any candidate — not that I wouldn't like to. But I don't see how I could find the time to do that and still do the job that's needed in Springfield."

Eugenia S. Chapman

MRS. CHAPMAN, 16 S. Princeton Ct., is in her sixth term as an Illinois state representative.

"I always vote in village elections, but I've just been too busy in recent years to get involved in a local campaign."

"I've known Eugenia for a number of years and always thought very highly of her and I'm grateful for her support," Griffin said Tuesday.

He said he was not surprised that Schlickman was endorsing Ryan. "The two are close personal friends and I'd have been very surprised if he hadn't supported Jim."

MRS. MACDONALD, 515 S. Belmont Ave., said Tuesday she thought it was "the better part of wisdom" not to back either candidate.

"Traditionally I have supported the Caucus, yet I hear wild stories on both sides this year," she said.

Mrs. Macdonald is in her second term as a state legislator. In 1972, she was involved in a three-way election primary contest with Ryan and Donald L. Totten of Hoffman Estates for the Republican Party's nomination for state representative. Ryan eventually withdrew from the race. Mrs. Macdonald and Totten were nominated and subsequently elected.

"I'm staying out of the (village) election pretty well," she said. "I have some very good friends who are running. I'm particularly fond of the women who are running (Caucus trustee candidates Madeline Schroeder and Mary Schlot)."

Mrs. Macdonald said that as a state legislator she would be working with whomever is elected village president and did not want to be at a disadvantage for having supported one candidate over another.

"We have enough trouble just running our own campaigns," she said.

Arlington Hts. Rd. work delay

by KURT BAER

The widening of Arlington Heights Road from Rand Road to University Drive — a major project village officials hope to get under way this year — may be delayed because of planning for the Arlington Heights Road underpass at Northwest Highway.

Although technically independent, the two projects have been combined into one engineering study which is just now getting started, Village Engineer Allen J. Sander said.

The road widening is estimated to cost $1.5 million, and the underpass is estimated at $4 million. Both projects will require a major commitment of federal funds.

The biggest part of the engineering report is environmental impact studies that must accompany application for the federal money.

"We're gathering information and setting up meetings, but there are no plans put together," Sander said. Asked if he believed the road widening could still be done this year, he said, "It's getting very tight."

The village had to wait until federal officials agreed to pay most of the cost of the engineering study before moving ahead, Sander said.

ENGINEERING the underpass will cost an estimated $349,000 total. Another $177,000 will be spent designing the wider Arlington Heights Road. Between Rand Road and University Drive, the street is a two-lane bottleneck. Except for this section, Arlington Heights Road is a fully improved four-lane thoroughfare in Arlington Heights from the Northwest Tollway to Dundee Road.

Preparation of the environmental impact statement will include meetings with a number of parties who could be affected by either project, Sander said.

"There will be meetings with the Chamber of Commerce, and Douglas Dodds (First Arlington National Bank president) has an alternate plan. All these things have to be reviewed to put the statement into a form that's acceptable to the federal government," he said.

Engineering for the two highway improvements is being done by the Des Plaines firm of M/E Alstot, March and Gullou Inc. George March, who is in charge of the project, could not be reached for comment on how long it will take to complete the preliminary plans.

ONCE THE ENGINEERING work and environmental reports are completed, public hearings on the projects will be scheduled. Then final engineering drawings must be prepared, bids solicited and contracts awarded before any construction work can get under way.

Agreement between the village, the Illinois Dept. of Transportation and the administrators of the Federal Air Urban Systems program is required each step of the way.

But despite the hurdles ahead, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said Monday he is still hoping the Arlington Heights Road widening will be done this year.

"If we can get everything in line by the Fourth of July I think it can still be done," he said. "The environmental impact study is really the biggest part of the whole thing."

WIDENING NORTH Arlington Heights Road is expected to be far less controversial than the underpass that would extend from Sigwalt Street on the south to Miner Street on the north. The road widening also could proceed sooner than the underpass because the right-of-way for the additional two lanes already exists, Hanson said.

Of the total $5.6 million for both projects, it is estimated that the federal government will pay $3.9 million, the village $1.1 million and the state $600,000.

Hanson said he is assuming that the federal government's commitment to pay 70 per cent of the engineering costs will be followed up by a similar promise to pay a like amount of the construction cost.

The Arlington Heights Road underpass and pavement widening has been assigned top priority status by the Northwest Municipal Conference. But if plans and controversy over the environmental impact statements take as much time as expected, it may be 1976 before any earth is moved for either project.

Youth council may get Wheeling Township funds

Wheeling Township officials tonight are expected to offer partial funding of an Arlington Heights Youth Council program which the village apparently will not fund again this year.

Alfred Barboro, youth council chairman, said he and Wheeling Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus will present the proposal at a special village board meeting at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson has reduced the youth council's $90,250 request for 1975-76 to $18,000.

The council has requested $30,000 to expand its youth services program by having its two counselors work under the direction of Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, Wheeling.

BARBORO SAID the township may be able to partially fund the youth services program because Wheeling Township already allocates federal revenue-sharing funds to Omni-House for services each year.

Hanson also dropped the council's $16,000 allocation request to hire a human resources director to oversee health, senior citizens and youth programs for the village. The council has requested for the second successive year that the village hire such a director.

The youth council received only a portion of its $90,800 request last year from the village, after village officials voiced strong opposition to many of its proposed programs.

Barboro said members of the village's senior citizen commission will be present tonight to urge the need for a human resources director.

Barboro said he intends to express his "displeasure" and "disparity" with Hanson's reduction of the budget request.

Hanson has recommended that the youth council receive $8,000 to continue its Uplift program, a therapy program for juvenile delinquents, although the council requested $18,000.

HANSON ALSO recommended that

$5,000 be allocated to continue the counselor-in-the-park program, conducted in the summer to prevent vandalism. The council requested $21,000 to expand the program.

Hanson recommended that $5,000 be allocated to continue the Ecology Corps program, the amount requested by the youth council. The Ecology Corps is made up of students who help beautify the village.

"We are not about to allow the budget to be cut in an unwarranted manner. We are ready to defend the need for the programs we have included in the budget. Maybe with the help of the township, we can still provide the programs we feel are necessary for the community," Barboro said.

Overheated fish and chips were blamed for a fire Monday night in an Arlington Heights apartment.

Patrolman James Eccles of Arlington Heights police responded to complaints of someone banging on doors of apartments at 7 W. Inside the apartment he found a blazing pan on the stove and Gilmore asleep.

Eccles turned off the stove, and firemen extinguished the pan of fish and chips.
